BRITISH MUSEUM.

RETURN to an ORDER of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 3 May 1837;—for,

COPIES or EXTRACTS of any MINUTES made by the Trustees of the British Museum since the 20th of July 1836, with reference to the RESOLUTIONS passed by the Select Committee of The House during the last Session of Parliament on the subject of the MUSEUM.

Resolutions of the Select Committee of the House of Commons, 14 July 1836.	Minutes of the Trustees of the British Museum.
1. That the great accessions which have been made of late to the collections of the British Museum, and the increasing interest taken in them by the public, render it expedient to revise the establishment of the institution, with a view to place it upon a scale more commensurate with, and better adapted to, the present state and future prospects of the Museum.	23 July 1836.—In accordance with the minutes of the meeting of July 20, the trustees now appointed a sub-committee to make a personal survey of the Museum, and to report the best method of carrying into effect several of the recommendations made by the Select Committee of the House of Commons. The following trustees were chosen to form this sub-committee: The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the President of the Society of Antiquaries, the Earl Cawdor, the Lord Stanley, the Lord Farnborough, the Lord Ashburton, Sir Robert H. Inglis, bart.; three trustees to be a quorum.
2. That this Committee do not recommend any interference with the family trustees, who hold their offices under Acts of Parliament, being of the nature of national compacts.
3. That, though the number of official trustees may appear unnecessarily large, and though, practically, most of them rarely if ever attend, yet no inconvenience has been alleged to have arisen from the number; and the Committee are aware that there may be some advantage in retaining in the hands of the Government a certain influence over the affairs of the Museum, which may be exercised on special occasions; yet, if any Act of the Legislature should ultimately be found necessary, a reduction in the number of this class of trustees might not be unadvisable.
4. That with regard to the existing elected trustees, the Committee think it very desirable that the trustees should take steps to ascertain whether some of those whose attendance has been the most infrequent might not be willing to resign their trusteeships. That, in future, it be understood that any trustee hereafter to be elected not giving personal attendance at the Museum for a period to be fixed, is expected to resign his trusteeship, being, however, re-eligible upon any future vacancy.	11 February 1837.—A letter was read from Lord St. Helens, resigning his office of an elected trustee of the Museum. 13 May 1837.—Resolved, That in future it be understood that any trustee hereafter to be elected not giving personal attendance at any of the meetings of the trustees for a period exceeding 12 months, is expected to resign his trusteeship, or to assign such reasons for his absence as may be satisfactory to a general meeting of the trustees. That in case of any trustee hereafter elected not giving his personal attendance, as specified above, the secretary transmit to such trustee a copy of the preceding minute.
5. That in filling up vacancies, it would be desirable that the electing trustees should not in future lose sight of the fact, that an opportunity is thus afforded them of occasionally conferring a mark of distinction upon men of eminence in literature, science and art.	One vacancy only has occurred since 20th July 1836, which was filled up 12th May 1837, by the election of Henry Hallam, Esq.
6. That the extension of the collections which has taken place, and the still greater extension which may be looked for, render a further division of departments necessary; and that at the head of each department there be	26 January 1837.—Resolved, That the department of natural history be divided into three branches; the mineralogical (including the fossil remains), the zoological and the botanical. That

be placed a keeper, who shall be responsible for the arrangement, proper condition and safe custody of the collection committed to his care.	That the print-room be made an independent department so soon as complete and accurately detailed inventories are in the hands of the secretary; which inventories the trustees have reason to think might be made as to all the collections in the print-room by Midsummer 1838.
7. That it is desirable that the heads of each department shall meet once in three months, for the purpose of consulting with reference to any matters of detail relating to the internal arrangements of the Museum, which they may desire jointly to submit to the trustees in writing.	No formal minute has as yet been made in reference to this resolution, but the subject will be considered by the trustees when the new arrangements are more completely in operation.
8. That whenever there may be a vacancy in the office of principal librarian, or in that of secretary, it is desirable that the distribution of the duties now discharged by those officers respectively, including the expenditorship, be reconsidered, and that the office of secretary be not combined with the keepership of any department.	26 January 1837.—Resolved, That considering the present extent of the collections, and the rapid extension which may be looked for from the liberality of Parliament, it is expedient to institute a general and uniform method of registering, numbering and marking the several objects and articles belonging to the Trust as soon as they are received into the Museum, and to direct a periodical verification of the inventories of the collections under the superintendence of the principal officers of the establishment.
14. That it be recommended to the trustees that every new accession to the Museum be forthwith registered in detail by the officer at the head of the department, in a book to be kept for that purpose; and that each head of a department do make an annual report to the trustees of the accessions within the year, vouched by the signature of the principal librarian, of desiderata, and of the state and condition of his own department.	That with the view of accomplishing the objects mentioned in the last resolution, and several others of much importance, it is desirable to separate the management of the pecuniary concerns of the Museum from those which are purely literary and scientific, and to confine the attention of the ordinary officers of the Museum to their literary and scientific duties. That in future the duties* of the principal librarian be 1. To provide for the safety of the Museum and its collections, to take every precaution against fire and other accidents, and to be personally and directly responsible for all property belonging to the trustees, which is not specifically committed by them to the custody of other officers. 2. To exercise a constant superintendence over every department, and to report to the trustees at stated intervals the progress made in the several works carried on in each. 3. To take care that the superior officers, the keepers and assistant-keepers of the several departments are at their respective posts and perform their proper duties, and to report any omission in this respect to the trustees. 4. To grant admission to persons of eminence desirous of inspecting the collections, but not able to avail themselves of the ordinary mode of admission, and to take care that such persons have proper attention paid to them. 5. To see that the Museum is kept open on the public days during the appointed hours, that the attendants who keep ward in the several rooms of public exhibition are at their respective posts, and that due order and propriety of behaviour is observed by all persons, whether visitors or domestics, and for this purpose frequently to visit every part of the Museum publicly exhibited. 6. To have the principal charge of the reading-rooms, to grant admission thereto, and to take care that the persons admitted have all such facilities as they may reasonably expect, and are consistent with the security and preservation of the collections. 7. When the Museum shall be visited by any of the Royal Family, or by Royal personages of other countries, to attend them in person, and to conduct them through the institution in such manner as is becoming their high station. 8. To communicate to the proper officers the orders made by the trustees relative to the internal management of the Museum, and to see that these orders are duly carried into effect, and to report thereon to the trustees. 9.* To

The particulars in which any material alterations have been made in the duties of the principal librarian, in conformity with the recommendations of the Committee of the House, are marked with an asterisk.

Minutes of the Trustees.

9.* To take care that the inventories of the several collections and of such other property as belongs to the trustees, are verified by the proper officers, and to superintend and attest such verification.

10.* To be the responsible editor of the Synopsis, to see that it is prepared and printed in a satisfactory manner, and in accordance with such directions as may from time to time be issued by the trustees, and to take care that a sufficient supply of copies is always ready to meet the demand of the public.

11.* To supply any objects being of such value as not to be trusted to the charge of the assistants, which may be urgently wanted during the allowed absence of the keeper in those departments, where in future there may be only one officer.

* That in order to perform the duty mentioned in the last paragraph, and in order that he may be enabled to exercise at all times the power of examining the state of the collections in each department, such visitation or examination to take place in the presence of the keeper of the department visited, or in his absence, of the secretary, the principal librarian shall have a pass-key of every room and of every case where any of the collections of the Museum may be deposited.

* That the pass-key of the cases be deposited in a box with two locks, the keys of which shall be kept by the principal librarian and secretary respectively.

That the office of expenditor, the duties of which are at present performed by the principal librarian without remuneration, be abolished.

That in addition to the duties now devolving upon the secretary, namely, to attend all meetings of the trustees, to take down minutes of their proceedings, to prepare the drafts for payments made by them, to keep an account of such drafts, to conduct the correspondence of the trustees, to notify to the principal trustees the vacancies which may occur in the establishment, and also to take the chief charge of all the inventories of the collections, and all records and other documents connected with the business of the trust;

1. The secretary in future be charged with all payments made on account of the Museum; that he therefore receive the imprests and other cheques drawn by the trustees; and that of these he keep an exact statement, to be audited by the trustees quarterly at every general meeting.

2. That he keep all monies received by him, whether as imprests or otherwise, at the Bank of England, and that he regularly lay the pass-book of his account before the trustees at every audit.

3. That he give securities for the due discharge of his office to the amount of 10,000*l.*; that is to say, his own bond for 5,000*l.*, and two other securities in a joint and several bond to the amount of 5,000*l.*

4. That he examine and check all bills sent in by tradespeople, and certify that the articles have been ordered by the proper authority, that the charges are duly made, and that the computations are accurate.

5. That he keep a weekly account of all work done for the Trust paid otherwise than by fixed monthly or annual salaries, and certify that such work has been duly authorized, and that the charges are accurate.

6. That he keep a registry of every article received into the Museum, and of every duplicate sold or otherwise disposed of, and of every object destroyed.

7. That he mark every article received into the collections with a number and with the Museum stamp, when it is possible, and, if presented, with the name of the donor.

8. That he prepare, with as much expedition as possible, accurate inventories of the several collections, and number and mark every article already in the Museum, in the same manner as the new accessions.

9. That he keep a regular account of all books published by the trustees, and the number of copies delivered and disposed of, and that he periodically ascertain that the stock in hand corresponds with the account.

10. That he examine and check the printers' and booksellers' accounts, and receive the monies due from the booksellers, as well as for the sale of the Synopsis.

11. That he keep an account of all casts made, and how disposed of, and receive the money for such as are sold.

12. That he keep an account of the stationery received and expended, and make all applications to the Stationery Office.

13. That he superintend the collection of the books claimable under the Copyright Act, and see that a regular register is kept of all books published in the United Kingdom, and mark off such as are received by the trustees.

That the office of secretary be no longer held with that of keeper of the MSS., and that it be declared incompatible with any other situation in the Museum.

Resolutions of the Committee.

9. That it is desirable that the hours during which the Museum shall be open on public days be hereafter from 10 o'clock until seven, throughout the months of May, June, July and August, and that the reading-room be opened throughout the year at 9 o'clock in the morning.

10. That it is desirable that the Museum be hereafter opened during the Easter, Whitsun and Christmas weeks, except Sundays and Christmas-day.

11. That it is expedient that the trustees should revise the salaries of the establishment, with the view of ascertaining what increase may be required for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing resolutions, as well as of obtaining the whole time and services of the ablest men, independently of any remuneration from other sources; and that when such scale of salary shall have been fixed, it shall not be competent to any officer of the Museum paid thereunder to hold any other situation conferring emolument, or entailing duties.

Minutes of the Trustees.

That the Tuesdays and Thursdays be reserved, as at present, for the arrangement of the collections, for the greater accommodation of students, especially artists, and for the visits of persons distinguished in science or art, and of foreigners and other persons of eminence who may be desirous of examining the collections more minutely and attentively than can be done in the crowd who are necessarily admitted on the public days.

That in future the vacation of the officers be limited to six weeks, to be taken between the 15th July and the 15th November in each year; the vacation of the assistants to a month, and the vacation of the attendants to a fortnight; the vacation of the two last classes to be taken at such times as the superior officers of the department shall judge to interfere least with the dispatch of the Museum business.

That the salary of the assistant messenger be 60 l. rising to 80 l. a year, but without the allowance which is now made to him for the care of the stationery, under the new arrangements to be withdrawn.

That

Minutes of the Trustees.

That the person who takes the umbrellas in the hall be employed every day in the week instead of three days in the week as at present, it being his duty to keep the stair-case and hall clean, to attend parties through the house, and to assist the messenger; his wages to be the same as those of the lowest class of attendants.

That in consideration of the additional responsibility and trouble which the extension of the hours for the admission of the public will throw on the porter, his salary be fixed at 80 l. with lodging, coals, and candles, but without any allowance for stationery, or other perquisite whatever.

That the housemaids be reduced as vacancies occur to the number of three; a head housemaid and two others.

12. That it is desirable that the heads of departments do consult together as to the best method of preparing, on a combined system, an improved edition of the Synopsis of the Museum; that each officer be responsible for that part which is under his immediate control, and attach his signature to such part; and that the work be prepared in such a manner as to enable each part to be sold separately, which should be done at the lowest price which will cover the expenses of the publication.

23 July 1836.—The following Minute as to the Synopsis was presented by the sub-committee:—"The trustees to whom the reports of the officers with respect to the improvement of the Synopsis were referred, having considered these reports and also the 12th resolution of the Select Committee of the House of Commons, were of opinion that the heads of departments, with the addition of Mr. Children, as taking the immediate superintendence of the zoological collections, should meet together without any delay, and proceed from day to day to examine and amend the present Synopsis, with a view to introduce into the next edition such alterations as are immediately practicable, and that this board of officers, having completed their examination, should report their proposed amendments, together with any suggestions as to the form and manner in which the Synopsis should be printed, to the next meeting of the trustees through the principal librarian, and that the principal librarian be requested to accompany such report with any remarks he may think necessary for the information and guidance of the trustees in their deliberations upon the subject.

The recommendations of the sub-committee were adopted, and the secretary was directed to obtain a meeting of the officers on the earliest possible day in the ensuing week.

8 October 1836.—The report of Sir Henry Ellis as to the Synopsis having been laid before the trustees, as well as the report from the principal officers upon the same subject, several orders were made in compliance with the suggestions of these reports.

[The price of the Synopsis has been reduced to 1 s., and in the last edition the officers have affixed their names to the parts for which they are severally responsible.]

13. That it is expedient that every exertion should be made to complete, within the shortest time consistent with the due execution of the work, full and accurate catalogues of all the collections in the Museum, with a view to print and publish such portions of them as would hold out expectations of even a partial sale.

[In the printed book department, the new transcript of the interleaved catalogue of the old library has been completed in 48 volumes folio, and was placed in the reading-room at the close of the last year. In the manuscript department, the catalogue of the Burney MSS. is completely printed, with the exception of the index and preface; the catalogue of the Syriac and Carshunic MSS. is also completely printed, with the exception of the index and preface; and a catalogue of the Greek papyri is nearly ready for press.]

15. That it be recommended to the trustees to take into consideration the best means of giving to the public a facility of obtaining casts from the statues, bronzes and coins, under competent superintendence, and at as low a price as possible.

[Moulds have been completed of the figures of the pediments of the Parthenon, of its metopes, and of almost all the frieze, and measures are in progress for making moulds of other marbles and of bronzes. See Return to the order of the House, 2 August 1836.]

7.—GLASGOW UNIVERSITY COMMISSION.

Sir, Edinburgh, 21 March 1837.

I HAVE had the honour of receiving your Letter of 17th inst., stating that Lord John Russell being desirous to afford his assistance, as Secretary of State, in obtaining a Return, which was ordered by The House of Commons on the 7th inst., had desired you to transmit to me a copy of the Order of The House, and to desire that I would prepare the Return required thereby, so far as relates to the Commission for visiting the University of Glasgow, and transmit the same to you, with a view to its being laid before The House of Commons.

While enclosing a Return made out in compliance with the Order, I take the liberty of observing that the Order, being confined to Commissions issued under an Act of Parliament, does not appear to embrace the Glasgow College one, as it is not a Parliamentary Commission, but one issued by His Majesty in the exercise of His general visitatorial power.

S. M. Phillipps, Esq., &c. &c. Home Office. I have the honour to be, &c.
Jas. Aitken, Secy.

The Commission is a Crown Commission, and is dated 23d November 1836, and it passed the Great Seal of Scotland on 9th December thereafter.

There are Seven Commissioners; viz.

The Viscount Melville, Chancellor of the University of Saint Andrew's.
Sir James Wellwood Moncreiff, Bart., one of the Lords of Session in Scotland.

The Rev. Dr. John Lee, one of the Ministers of Edinburgh.
John Wilson, Esq., Glasgow; and Alexander Earl Monteith, Esq., Advocate, Edinburgh.

Mr. Monteith is also one of the Commissioners for visiting the Aberdeen Universities.

There have been two general meetings of the Commissioners, and they were held at Glasgow on 12th December 1836, and 9th January 1837, each sitting not exceeding one day; and a Committee of their number have occasionally met at Edinburgh to transact business.

The Commissioners have only commenced their operations.

One Secretary has been appointed by them without any assistant, and his salary or allowance has not been fixed, and scarcely any expense has, as yet, been incurred.

—2.—

COPY of any MINUTE of the TREASURY by which an Arrangement was entered into to try an Action for Negligence against the Officer of Excise or Customs by whose fault the Fire was alleged to have happened; and any other Papers connected with this subject.

Copy of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 15th August 1834.

LORD ALTHORP states to the Board, that after a full consideration of the question, and communication with the Deputation of Irish Merchants, sufferers by the fire which consumed the Bonded Stores at Dublin, he is of opinion, that the parties should have every facility to bring the facts of their case before a competent tribunal; and that as it appears that they are prevented from proceeding in a court of law by a legal difficulty, he considers it proper that any technical objection should be waived on the part of the Crown, in order to bring the question to a fair issue on its merits. With this view, Lord Althorp states to the Board, that he has made the following communication to the Deputation of Irish Merchants, and he recommends to the Board that they should direct the proper steps to be taken to carry it into effect.

" The Deputation from the Sufferers by the fire which consumed the Bonded Stores, Dublin, on the 9th August 1833, understand the decision to be,—

" That those sufferers should be permitted to try the question as if the Act 6 Geo. IV. c. 112, were still in force.

" The question to be in the words of the Act, whether 'waste, spoil or destruction of or in the goods and merchandise destroyed, was made by or through any wilful misconduct of Paul Donlevy, he being then and there an Officer of the Customs; or of Robert Wallace, he being then and there an Officer of Excise.'

" The question to be tried on the merits, and all matters of form which may hinder or impede a trial of the merits to be waived on both sides.

" It is to be admitted by the Defendants respectively that the Act 6 Geo. IV. c. 112, is still in force.

" In case Dennis Conway, the servant boy of the Messrs. Scovell, the tenants of the Crown, shall not be forthcoming, the Prosecutors, on proof of due diligence to procure his attendance, shall be at liberty to give in evidence to the Jury, for their consideration, his testimony as taken down before the Magistrates of Police in Dublin in August 1833.

" Every

" Every necessary consent fully to effectuate the above purposes shall be given on both sides in writing, and signed by the proper parties.

" In case any difficulty should arise in a criminal court of the efficiency of such consents by reason of the actual repeal of the above Act or otherwise, then the question in the words of the Act shall be tried in the shape of a ' feigned issue ;' Donlevy and Wallace, or one of them, to be the defendants.

" The trial to take place at Nisi Prius in the King's Bench before Chief Justice Bushe, or such other Judge of that Court as shall sit at Nisi Prius in or after next Michaelmas Term ; so that in case of a verdict against the sufferers, they may be free to apply to Parliament upon all the other circumstances of their case early in the next Session.

" But in case the sufferers shall fail at the trial upon technical grounds alone, independently of the merits, then the case as to whether waste, spoil or destruction of or in the goods and merchandises destroyed, was made by or through any wilful misconduct of Paul Donlevy, he being then and there an Officer at the Customs, or of Robert Wallace, he being then and there an Officer of the Excise, shall be investigated either before a Committee of the House of Commons, or shall undergo some other satisfactory investigation, and the parties may be free to apply to Parliament upon all the other circumstances of the case."

My Lords concur in the recommendation of the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Let a Copy of this Minute be transmitted to the Commissioners of Customs for their instruction and guidance, and desire they will, without delay, communicate with the Law Officers of the Crown in Ireland, and take the proper steps for defending the action when it shall be brought before the legal tribunal, and direct that a copy of this Minute shall form part of the instructions to the Counsel employed on the occasion, in order that they may strictly conform themselves to the intention of this Board, by waiving any technical objections, and all matters of form, which might hinder the case from coming to a trial on the merits.

Copy of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 2d June 1835.

MY Lords have under their consideration the several proceedings which have already taken place with respect to the claims of individuals to be compensated for losses sustained by the fire which destroyed the Custom House Warehouses in Dublin Docks, and advert to the trial which took place, and to the verdict of the Jury.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer states to the Board, that although points might have been suggested on which an application for a new trial might have been made, yet that, under all the circumstances of the case, he was not disposed to think it expedient to disturb the verdict ; and he suggested, if the Board should concur with him in that opinion, that steps should be taken forthwith for ascertaining the Compensations which should be paid to those who sustained losses on the occasion in question, and that the following principles should be laid down for the government of all parties in this matter :—

1st. That goods bonded for Duty in the Customs' Warehouses should be considered to be within the verdict, and should be governed by that verdict.

2dly. That although the Irish Spirits deposited in the cellars under the Customs' stores did not technically come within the verdict, yet that the case is so analogous as to come within the same principle.

3dly. That the case of free goods destroyed in the free store was of another description, and that no compensation ought to be awarded for their destruction.

4thly. That the costs of the parties in the legal proceedings should be borne ; but that no interest should be allowed on the compensation which may be granted.

5th. That competent and impartial persons should be sent to Dublin without delay to examine and report as to the value of the goods destroyed, for which compensation would be granted upon the foregoing principles.

My Lords entirely concur in this matter with the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and are pleased to select Lieutenant-Colonel Maberly, one of the Commissioners of the Customs, and Mr. Alexander Macdonnell, a gentleman at the English Bar, as proper persons to proceed to Dublin for the purpose of making this inquiry, and of reporting the result of it to this Board, when My Lords will bring the whole subject under the consideration of Parliament, with a view to the grant of such sum as shall be necessary to enable their Lordships to defray the charge which will thus fall upon the Public, in consequence of the verdict of the Jury upon the trial.

Transmit Copy of this Minute to Lieutenant-Colonel Maberly, and desire he will forthwith proceed to Dublin to enter upon this inquiry in conjunction with Mr. Macdonnell, and that a joint Report may be made by them to this Board upon the subject, at the earliest possible period after his colleague and himself shall have obtained all the information which they consider necessary for the purpose.

Transmit Copy also, with similar directions, to Mr. Macdonnell.

Transmit Copy also to the Commissioners of the Customs, and desire they will afford every necessary assistance to Colonel Maberly and Mr. Macdonnell in prosecuting this inquiry ; and that they will pay from the Customs' Revenues the travelling allowances of these two gentlemen, at the daily rate granted by the established regulations to a Commissioner of Customs proceeding from London on the Public Service ; repaying to them also the exact amount which they shall disburse for travelling expenses in proceeding to and returning from Dublin.

Copy of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 4th August 1835.

MY Lords read their Minutes of 15th August 1834, and 2d June 1835, on the subject of the Compensation to the parties whose goods were destroyed by the burning of the Warehouses in the Dublin Docks.

My Lords have before them the Report of Messrs. Maberly and Macdonnell, in which it appears that the whole of the claims which, upon investigation, they submit to My Lords as entitled to compensation under the Treasury Minute of 2d June 1835, amounts to the sum of 68,031 l. 13*s.* 10*d.*

Let an Estimate be prepared for the purpose of being laid before Parliament ; and let Copies of the Minutes of 15th August 1834 and 2d June 1835, and of this Minute, accompany such Estimate.

COPY of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 31st August 1835.

READ Report of Messrs. Maberly and Macdonnell, dated 21 July last, on the claims for compensation by the sufferers by the Fire at the Custom House Warehouses at the Dublin Docks, amounting, in the whole, to £. 68,031. 13. 10., wherein they submit Schedules of the claims in two forms; one under the head of Owners, the other under that of Goods: they have added the original claims made by the parties, and various papers connected with them.

My Lords read the Resolution of The House of Commons of 12 August, granting the sum of £,68,031. 13. 10. to His Majesty, to enable Him to make Compensation to individuals for losses sustained by the Fire which destroyed the Custom House Warehouses in the Dublin Docks in August 1833.

My Lords have again before them the Report of Lieut.-Col. Maberly and Mr. Macdonnell, who were directed by My Lords to investigate the claims which should be made for losses sustained by the Fire in question.

In that Report, they submitted to this Board detailed Schedules, showing the names of the several parties claiming, the nature of the property destroyed, and the amount ascertained to be due to each party on account of such loss; the aggregate amount allowed being the sum which has been granted by Parliament to enable His Majesty to make compensation to the sufferers.

It appears to My Lords that the best and most simple course of proceeding in this matter will be, to submit for His Majesty's royal signature a Warrant, addressed to the Vice-Treasurer of Ireland, authorizing him to apply the said sum of £. 68,031. 13. 10. out of the Exchequer in Ireland, in payment to the several persons to be named in such Warrants, the sums set against their respective names, on their producing to him a certificate from the Collector of the Customs at Dublin, showing that they are authorized to apply for such payment, and that it may be properly and correctly made to them.

Let a Warrant be prepared for His Majesty's signature accordingly, and let the amount payable to each party, according to the Schedules which accompanied the Report of Lieut.-Col. Maberly and Mr. Macdonnell, be inserted therein.

Transmit Copy of this Minute to the Commissioners of Customs, and desire they will give instructions to their Collector at Dublin to give effect to the directions herein contained, so far as they relate to him.

PROTESTANT DISSENTING MINISTERS.

RETURN to an ADDRESS of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 9 March 1837;—for,

A RETURN of the NAMES of the COMMITTEE by whom the PARLIAMENTARY GRANTS to PROTESTANT DISSENTING MINISTERS have been distributed, and the mode in which they are apportioned.

THE undersigned, composing at the present date the Board of Trustees of the Parliamentary Grant to Poor Dissenting Ministers in England and Wales, in obedience to the Order of The House of Commons of the 16th of August 1836, beg respectfully to present the following "Return of the Names of the Committee" (or Board of Trustees) "by whom the Parliamentary Grants to Poor Dissenting Ministers have been distributed, and the mode in which they are apportioned."

And, First, as to "the mode in which those Grants are apportioned."

It appears from the most authentic sources of information upon the subject to which the undersigned Trustees have access, that when in the year 1723 his Majesty King GEORGE the First, out of his royal compassion to the distressed condition of many of the Dissenting Clergy and their families, directed an annual allowance to be paid out of the Royal Treasury for their relief, the money was issued every half year, under the customary Order, to a gentleman appointed to the office of Receiver by his Majesty's Government. After the money had been obtained by that gentleman, the entire sum was divided, in equal portions, among nine Protestant Dissenting Ministers of great respectability, of the Presbyterian and Independent denominations, residing in London and the neighbourhood, for the purpose of being distributed in the manner best fitted, in their judgment, to answer the benevolent intentions of the Royal Donor.

These nine Dissenting Ministers were in this way, with the knowledge and concurrence of his Majesty's Government, constituted the first "Committee" (by which, it is presumed, is meant the Board of Trustees) for the appropriation of the Royal Grant, each Trustee being held responsible for the application of that portion of the money which was placed at his disposal.

The plan thus established, in the earliest period of the Royal Grant, for its equitable apportionment and distribution, was, as the undersigned understand and believe, generally acted upon in after times. The money, as soon as it was issued from the Treasury, was divided in equal portions among the Ministers composing the successive Boards of Trustees, who distributed the whole at their earliest convenience, in small sums, among such Poor Protestant Dissenting Ministers as they deemed to be proper objects of the Royal Charity.

The course thus pursued, with very rare exceptions, during the whole period that the fund to be distributed was strictly a Charitable Grant from the King's personal Bounty, was uniformly followed after the year 1804, when, on the settlement of the Civil List by a compact entered into between the King and the Parliament in reference to the hereditary revenues of the Crown, the Grant was directed to be made in future by an annual vote of The House of Commons.

In the year 1806, after the Royal Bounty had thus assumed the form of a Parliamentary Grant, the Board of Trustees consisted of eight Dissenting Ministers highly esteemed in their respective denominations, three of them being Presbyterians, three Independents, and two Baptists. But in 1810 another Baptist Minister was added to make the number equal from each of the denominations; and this proportion has been maintained to the present time.

The plan uniformly observed in the apportionment of the Parliamentary Grants has been as follows:—The money received by the Trustees from the Treasury has been divided among them in nine equal portions, to be distributed, according to the best of their judgment and discretion, among the most deserving objects in that class of necessitous persons contemplated by the Grant, namely, the Poor Protestant Dissenting Ministers of England and Wales.

The object of placing on the Board of Trustees an equal number of Presbyterians, Independents and Baptists, was to secure, as far as possible, an equitable distribution of the money among the Poor Ministers of those denominations; the best sources of information being, by this method, made available for obtaining the most full and accurate knowledge of the proper objects of the charity among the several religious persuasions, and every facility secured for transmitting to them a portion of the Royal and Parliamentary Bounty.

No Trustee, however, has made it a rule to confine his exhibitions to the Ministers of his particular denomination; the general practice of the whole Board has been, when acting collectively or individually, to administer relief on application to Poor Protestant Dissenting Ministers of good character, without reference to the religious class or party to which they belonged.

The impartiality with which they have acted will be seen by the following statement of the payments made by them during the three years immediately preceding the date of the Order of The House of Commons, viz., 166 exhibitions to Presbyterian Ministers, 443 exhibitions to Independent Ministers, and 461 exhibitions to Baptist Ministers.

The Board of Trustees, in carrying into effect the benevolent purpose of this Charitable Grant, have anxiously endeavoured to extend its benefits to as large a number of Poor Ministers in England and Wales as could be done with real advantage to the recipients. With this view they have made it a rule of the Trust, that no larger exhibition than Five Pounds should at one time be given to any minister. From this rule they have allowed themselves to depart only in a few extraordinary cases, in which some circumstances of necessity or affliction of unusual urgency have appeared to claim and justify a larger measure of pecuniary assistance. But such extraordinary Grants have always been submitted to the whole Board for their approval. In many instances they have limited the exhibitions to smaller amounts, having found from experience that such sums, though comparatively trifling, have been regarded by the poor recipients as a very welcome and not unimportant boon.

In this apportionment of the money, the Trustees do not grant an exhibition of any amount to the same individual twice in the same year, and in many cases the exhibitions are not repeated until after an interval of 15 or 18 months, or even two years. By acting upon this plan they have been able to administer aid to many hundreds of Protestant Dissenting Ministers of various persuasions in necessitous circumstances, of exemplary character and great usefulness.

For the more effectual execution of the plan of distribution just stated, and in order to regulate the payments so that no Ministers should in the same year receive exhibitions from more than one Trustee, the Board have held a meeting annually for the special purpose of comparing their several lists of applicants and recipients. At these meetings every Trustee produces for examination an account of his disbursements for the preceding year, with his receipts and vouchers for every payment. These accounts are regularly and carefully audited, and held ready to be delivered in to His Majesty's Treasury for inspection, whenever they may be called for.

The undersigned think it due to themselves to add, that the duties of their Trust are discharged gratuitously. The whole of the sums placed at their disposal, as the almoners of the Crown and Parliament, is every year scrupulously apportioned and distributed in the manner already described, without any deduction whatever beyond what is required to defray the trifling charges incidentally incurred in the management of the charity.

Secondly,

Secondly, as to " the Names of the Committee" (or Board of Trustees) " by whom the Parliamentary Grants to Poor Dissenting Ministers have been distributed."

There being no limitation of time in this Order, the undersigned judge that the intention of The House of Commons may be answered by an enumeration of the gentlemen who have acted as Trustees for the last 30 years, being nearly from the time when the Royal Bounty was, in name at least, converted into a Grant of Parliament.

Shortly after this change took place, the Board of Trustees consisted of the following Dissenting Ministers of London and the neighbourhood, viz. Dr. Abraham Rees, Mr. (afterwards Dr.) Thomas Morgan, Mr. Hugh Worthington, Mr. Joseph Barber, Mr. Nathaniel Jennings, Mr. Samuel Palmer, Mr. James Dore and Mr. Timothy Thomas, to whom was added in 1810, Mr. (afterwards Dr.) William Newman; three of these Ministers being of the Presbyterian, three of the Independent, and three of the Baptist denomination.

As vacancies occurred in the Trust subsequently to the above date, the following Ministers of the several denominations were successively chosen to fill them, viz. Dr. John Humphrys, Mr. Thomas Thomas, Mr. John Coates, Dr. J. P. Smith, Dr. Robert Winter, Dr. John Rippon, Dr. Thomas Rees, Dr. F. A. Cox, Mr. Robert Aspland, Mr. John Clayton, jun., Mr. George Pritchard, Mr. W. H. Murch and Mr. Thomas Madge.

The gentlemen chosen upon this Trust were generally recommended for the office by the consideration in which they were held in their respective denominations, and frequently by their connexion with some of the most important public institutions of the Protestant Dissenters.

The undersigned, constituting the present Board of Trustees, unanimously agree upon the above Return, which they humbly trust will be accepted as a satisfactory answer to the Order of The House of Commons.

EDUCATION (IRELAND).

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 4 April 1837 ;—for,

A RETURN of the Number of Schools to which Grants have been made by the Board of Education in Ireland; specifying the Sums allotted to each, and such as are of Protestant or Roman Catholic Foundation.

The Commissioners of Education have, in the Appendix to their Second Report, given a List of the Schools towards which they have granted aid, specifying the Sums allotted to each up to the 31st of March 1835.

They have also given, in the Appendix to their Third Report, a List of the Schools towards which they have granted aid, specifying the Sums allotted to each, from the 31st of March 1835 up to the 31st of March 1836. Both these Reports have been laid before Parliament.

They now annex a List of the Schools towards which they have granted aid, from the 31st of March 1836 up to the 31st of March 1837, specifying the Sums allotted to each.

The Commissioners do not recognize any Schools as of Protestant or Roman Catholic foundation, inasmuch as all Schools in connexion with them must be open to children of all religious communions; and the Ministers of all Christian congregations, approved of by the parents, must have a right to administer religious instruction therein.

(Mr. Arthur Trevor.)

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
12 July 1837.

A RETURN of the Number of Schools to which Grants have been made by the Board of Education in Ireland, specifying the Sums allotted to each, and such as are of Protestant or Roman Catholic Foundation.

EDUCATION (SCOTLAND).

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 16 March 1837;—for,

A RETURN of the APPLICATIONS made from Scotland for Participation in the GRANTS of £. 10,000 voted in the Estimates of the Years 1835 and 1836, in Aid of EDUCATION in that Country; specifying the Date of each Application, the Place from whence it came, the Parties by whom it was made, and the Date and Purport of the Answer.

Whitehall, Treasury Chambers, 8 May 1837.

F. BARING.

REGULATIONS laid down by the TREASURY with respect to GRANTS for SCHOOLS in Scotland.

Copy of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 3d April 1835.

MY LORDS read their Minute of 21st October last, on the subject of the Grant of Parliament 1834 in aid of Private Subscriptions for the Erection of School-houses for the Education of Children of the poorer Classes in certain great Towns in Scotland, wherein their Lordships expressed their opinion that the following Rules should guide them in considering the applications for assistance from that Grant.

1.—That no portion of this sum be applied to any purpose whatever except for the Erection of new School-houses; and that, in the definition of a School-house, the Residence for Masters or Attendants be not included.

2.—That no application be entertained, unless a sum be raised by Private Contribution equal at the least to One-half of the total Estimated Expenditure.

3.—That the amount of Private Subscription be received, expended and accounted for before any issue of Public Money for such School be directed.

4.—That the applicants whose cases are favourably entertained, be required to bind themselves to submit to any audit of their Accounts which this Board may direct, as well as to such periodical Reports respecting the state of their Schools, and the number of Scholars educated, as may be called for.

My LORDS also expressed their opinion that Answers should be required to the following Queries:—

Does the Parish form part of a large Town, and what is the entire Population of the Town of which the Parish forms a part?

Is there any provision at present existing therein for the Education of the Children of the poorer classes?

How many Scholars will the School-room, on behalf of which application is now made, receive; and will it be a Day-school?

How are the annual Expenses of the School to be defrayed, so that there may be a reasonable prospect of the permanence of the Institution?

What are the Dimensions of the School-room, and the Area allowed to each Child?

What Materials will the Building be composed of, and how is the Property secured?

What is the entire estimated Cost of the Undertaking, not including a Residence for the Schoolmaster or Attendants?

What are the Means raised by the Applicants to meet the first Cost, after every exertion has been made?

PLACES TO WHICH GRANTS HAVE ALREADY BEEN MADE.

SCHEDULE of the CORRESPONDENCE between the TREASURY and the GENERAL ASSEMBLY of the CHURCH of SCOTLAND and Mr. Rickman (late Secretary to the Commissioners for building Highland Churches), on the subject of the Parliamentary Grants for building Schools.

Dates of Applications to the Treasury.	PARTIES APPLYING.	Dates of Replies from the Treasury.	PURPORT OF THE TREASURY LETTERS.
28 Aug. 1833	- - Dr. Baird, Convener of the Committee of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland for increasing the means of Education and religious Instruction throughout Scotland, praying a portion of the late grant of 20,000 l. towards the establishment of additional schools in the Highlands and Islands of Scotland.	28 Sept. 1833	- - Letter to Dr. Baird, transmitting copy of the following Treasury Minute of the 30th August 1833, and informing him that by the principles of that Minute the first claims to be preferred are those of the population of thickly inhabited towns and districts, and that therefore the Lords of the Treasury apprehend they are not at liberty at present to entertain the application from the Highlands of Scotland. COPY of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 30th August 1833. " My Lords read the Act of the last Session, by which a sum of 20,000*l.* is granted to His Majesty to be issued in aid of private subscriptions for the erection of schools for the education of the children of the poorer classes in Great Britain. " The Chancellor of the Exchequer, feeling it absolutely necessary that certain fixed rules should be laid down by the Treasury for their guidance in this matter, so as to render this sum most generally useful for the purposes contemplated by the grant, submits the following arrangements for the consideration of the Board: " 1st. That no portion of this sum be applied to any purpose whatever except for the erection of new school-houses; and that, in the definition of a school-house, the residence for masters or attendants be not included. " 2d. That no application be entertained, unless a sum be raised by private contribution, equal at the least to one-half of the total estimated expenditure. " 3d. That the amount of private subscriptions be received, expended and accounted for before any issue of public money for such school be directed. " 4th. That no application be complied with, unless upon the consideration of such a report, either from the National School Society or the British and Foreign School Society as shall satisfy this Board that the case is one deserving of attention, and there is a reasonable expectation that the school may be permanently supported. " 5th. That the applicants whose cases are favourably entertained be required to bind themselves to submit to any audit of their accounts which this Board may direct, as well as to such periodical reports respecting the state of their schools, and the number of scholars educated, as may be called for. " 6th. That in considering all applications made to the Board, a preference be given to such applications as come from large cities and towns, in which the necessity of assisting in the erection of schools is most pressing, and that due inquiries should also be made before any such application be acceded to, whether there may not be charitable funds or public and private endowments that might render any further grants inexpedient or unnecessary. " In these suggestions my Lords concur."
		1 Nov. 1836	- - A letter was written to the Commissioners for building Highland churches, in conformity with the following Minute:— TREASURY MINUTE, dated 28th October 1836. " My Lords read the Appropriation Act of the last Session, by which a sum of 10,000 l. is directed to be applied for the purposes of education in Scotland. Lord Melbourne and the Chancellor of the Exchequer bring under the consideration of the Board, that 41 Highland parishes have been divided quoad sacra, and churches have been built therein. They suggest to My Lords, that the same inducements which rendered it expedient to divide these Highland parishes for the purposes of religious instruction, render it necessary in like manner that school instruction should be extended therein. They also state to the Board, that, in applying this principle, it does not become necessary to establish any new system of education, but to extend the principle of the Scotch parochial schools, which have already not only been the source of good in that part of the United Kingdom, but have laid down a mode of education worthy of imitation elsewhere. My Lords concur in their recommendation, and are disposed, in the first instance, to apply the funds at their disposal towards the establishment of parochial schools in the 41 parishes in question, applying, as far as is practicable, the same principles on which they have acted in reference to schools in South Britain. They will, however, be willing, in case it facilitates the useful objects they have in view, to permit the funds they appropriate for such purpose to be permanently invested, to form a fund for the payment of the master in cases where the school-house is built at the expense of persons locally interested, and an adequate house and garden provided for the master. " Transmit a copy of this Minute to the Commissioners for building Highland Churches, and request they will communicate with the local authorities within the 41 Highland parishes in question, with the view of ascertaining how far the views of My Lords may be carried into effect, and the extent of school accommodation which may be required."
15 Dec. 1836	- - Mr. Rickman, stating that the Commissioners for building Highland Churches have ceased to hold meetings, and stating that he had forwarded the Treasury Letter of 1st Nov. 1836 to Mr. Stewart Mackenzie, M.P., he being eminently zealous in furtherance of education in the Highlands of Scotland.	21 Jan. 1837	- - Letter to Mr. Rickman, requesting him to communicate the Treasury Minute of 28 October 1836 to the General Assembly of Scotland, with a view of obtaining the information required.
24 Dec. 1836	- - Mr. Rickman, enclosing Mr. Stewart Mackenzie's reply.
20 Mar. 1837	- - Dr. Baird, enclosing tables explanatory of the state of education in 13 of the Highland and Island districts, and of the existing distribution of the means of education in the other districts connected with the Government churches; and praying that a portion of the 10,000*l.* voted by Parliament may be applied in aid of schools in all these districts.	1 April 1837	- - Letter to Dr. Baird, informing him that the Treasury will set aside 6,000*l.* out of the grant voted for the promotion of education in Scotland, for the purpose of assisting in forming a permanent endowment for a school-master in each of the 41 Highland districts; and also requesting him to bring the subject before the Education Committee of the General Assembly, and to state to them the intention of the Treasury, and the wish of the Board to be furnished with such a plan as, in the opinion of the Committee, would be best calculated for giving effect to the proposed arrangement.

Whitehall, Treasury Chambers, 2 June 1837. } F. BARING.

EXTRACT of a Letter from the COMMISSIONERS of EXCISE INQUIRY to the Lords of the Treasury, dated 18 October 1836.

YOUR Lordships having been pleased, in an early stage of our duties, to issue your directions to the superintending authorities of the department of Excise, that our requisitions to that department for accounts, documents and other information necessary to the prosecution of our inquiries should be duly attended to, we are desirous of expressing our acknowledgment for the readiness with which your Lordships' directions to the superintending authorities of this department have been complied with, and for the disposition which has been evinced by the various classes of officers, both in the London and the country districts, to promote the objects of our inquiries by the information and assistance within their power; and we would beg especially to refer to the attention and assistance which we have upon all occasions received from Sir Francis Doyle, and the several other members of the Board with whom we have been in communication.

In extending this acknowledgment to the several classes of practical officers, we feel bound to advert more particularly to the assistance which we have received from Mr. Hetherington, the surveying general examiner, with whom our intercourse has been more frequent than with any other individual of the department.

Your Lordships are so well aware of the comprehensive and accurate acquaintance of this officer with the details of every branch of the business of the department, that you will fully appreciate the importance of the service which must be rendered to an inquiry like that in which we have been engaged, by the co-operation of an individual in the department to whose communications so much confidence may be given, as well on account of the extent and accuracy of the knowledge from which they are derived, as from the unreserved good faith and uniform integrity with which they are made.

EXTRACT of the TREASURY MINUTE of the 25th October 1836, on the foregoing Letter.

WRITE to the Commissioners of Excise, and transmit to them extract of the letter which relates to the co-operation received from them, and express to them the satisfaction and the thanks of my Lords for the ready co-operation which they have given to the Commission in their inquiries.

FEES ON RENEWAL OF OFFICES.

RETURN to an ORDER of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 13 July 1837;—for,

COPY of the TREASURY MINUTE of 24th September 1830, relative to the FEES to be paid on Renewals of Appointments to Offices under the Crown.

24 September 1830.

16328.—SUNDRIES.

READ the Act 1 Will 4, c. 43.

It is clear that under this Act my Lords have no authority to alter or interfere with the fees to which persons having an estate of freehold in their respective offices were legally entitled at the time of the passing of the said Act.

My Lords further consider it to have been the intention of the Act to exempt persons receiving renewed appointments from the payment of all sums heretofore received for the benefit of the public, whether the same be claimable as stamp duty or as fee, if the fee be not taken for the benefit of the individual officer.

My Lords, therefore, have only imposed upon them the limited duty of fixing the amount of remuneration to be paid to the several persons taking fees for their own benefit, not having a freehold interest in their offices, whose right and duty it may be, by virtue of their respective offices, to prepare, make out, settle and attend to the passing of the several commissions, letters patent, warrants and other instruments upon such re-appointments to offices or employments, and such regrants of pensions, rank or precedence as may be made by His present Majesty consequent upon his accession to the Throne.

My Lords read also the Returns received from the several officers of the fees charged in their respective offices in respect of preparing, making out, settling and attending to the passing of such instruments.

Considering the number and various nature of the instruments to be renewed, my Lords do not feel it to be in their power, nor do they consider it necessary to the fulfilment of the intentions of Parliament, to examine into the labour of preparing, making out, settling and passing each separate instrument, and fix in each case a distinct remuneration to the officers employed.

My Lords deem it more advisable that in all the cases which the Act has left to their determination, they should assign to each person employed a specific average rate of remuneration, calculated with reference to what the same persons would be entitled to claim under ordinary circumstances, and having regard to the diminished labour and expense of a simultaneous renewal of a great number of similar instruments as compared with the labour and expense of separately preparing new grants or appointments, &c.; and acting upon this principle, it appears to my Lords that parties receiving re-appointments or regrants of the nature, and under the circumstances specified in the Act 1 Will. 4, c. 43, should, in the cases referred to, pay a moiety only of such fees as under ordinary circumstances would be legally payable; that proportion being judged by my Lords to afford to the several persons employed a proper and adequate remuneration for the duties performed by them on the present occasion.

But my Lords have not determined to apply this arrangement to the renewal of commissions to officers of the Army, Navy and Ordnance. My Lords will hereafter have under consideration what proportion of fees are to be charged to these officers.

Write to the several officers following.

AN ACT to repeal the Third and Fourth Clauses of an Act of this Island, intituled, "An Act for settling an Impost on the Commodities of the Growth of this Island." (Passed 30th April 1834.)

WHEREAS by an Act of this Island, passed on the 12th day of September 1663, the Governor, Council and Assembly, well weighing the great charges that there must be of necessity in maintaining the honour and dignity of His Majesty's authority here, the public meeting of the sessions, the often attendance of the Council, the reparation of the forts, the building a sessions-house and a prison, and all other public charges incumbent on the Government, did, in consideration thereof, enact that upon all dead commodities of the growth or produce of this island that shall be shipped off the same, there shall be paid to our Sovereign Lord the King, his heirs and successors for ever, four-and-a-half in species for every five score: And whereas the impost or custom under the said in part recited Act has been duly raised upon the native commodities of this island, and the net proceeds thereof paid into His Majesty's Exchequer in Great Britain, little or no part thereof having been applied to the public uses of this island, in consequence of which the Assembly of this island have been compelled, at different times, to impose heavy taxes upon the inhabitants thereof for the defraying the public charges incumbent on the Government, particularly the public meeting of the sessions, the reparation of the forts, the building a sessions-house and a prison, and the maintaining the honour and dignity of His Majesty's authority here: And whereas further heavy expenses must be incurred for the supporting the establishments, which will be rendered necessary by an Act of the British Parliament, intituled, "An Act for the Abolition of Slavery throughout the British Colonies, for promoting the industry of the manumitted Slaves, and for compensating the Persons hitherto entitled to the services of such Slaves," whilst the means of the inhabitants of this island to support such further expenses, will, by the said above-named Act, be considerably diminished: We, therefore, Your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the members of the Legislative Council and the representatives Preamble.

After the 1st January 1835, the 3d and 4th clauses of the Act here mentioned to be and stand repealed.

Clause 2. The Treasurer is required some time in the month of December every year, commencing in December 1835, to pay to the persons entitled to the grant of this island, by King Charles the First, £. 1,000. sterling money of Great Britain.

— No. 2. —

To the Right Honourable E. G. Stanley, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies.

The respectful Address and Memorial of the Council and Assembly of the Island of Barbados.

The Legislature of Barbados having passed an Act to repeal certain clauses of an Act of this Island, intituled, "An Act for settling an Impost on the Commodities of the growth of this Island," consider it a duty which they owe to themselves to accompany that Act with an unvarnished statement of all the circumstances connected with the Act which they now seek to have repealed.

They respectfully address this Memorial to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, and through him to the rest of His Majesty's Ministers, in the full hope and confidence that Mr. Stanley, well weighing the justice of their claims, will be induced to recommend their case to the favourable consideration of their Sovereign.

They more readily indulge in such a hope at a time when the Colonial Department is entrusted to the charge of a gentleman who, in his appointments to such of the public offices in this island as have fallen vacant since his accession to office, has exhibited conduct no less liberal than just, for which the Legislature of this colony gladly seize the present opportunity of offering him their most grateful thanks.

The Legislature of Barbados respectfully submit, that it appears, from the above-mentioned Act, that the duty of 4½ per cent. upon all commodities shipped off this island, imposed thereby, was raised by the then Legislature upon the inhabitants for the sole purpose of defraying all the public expenses of the island. They submit, further, that this duty has been regularly collected in kind by the officers officers of His Majesty's Customs here, and has been by them remitted to England, where it has been sold, and nearly the whole of the net produce thereof applied to any purposes except those for which it was granted. That in consequence of this alienation, the inhabitants of this island have been obliged for a long series of years to submit to the imposition of additional taxes to a very considerable amount, in order to meet the public expenses which this duty was intended to defray.

Your Memorialists beg further to submit that, even if it could be contended that a perseverance during a century and half of the misapplication of this fund could justify a continuance in a course so illegal and unjust, that plea could not, in the present case, be for one moment maintained. Not only have the inhabitants of Barbados at various times protested against the misapplication of this fund, and accompanied the same with their respectful applications to their Sovereign, to direct the just appropriation of this tax to the purposes for which it was granted, but one of His Majesty's predecessors, in the early part of the last century, in answer to an Address from the British House of Commons, that Her Majesty would please that the duty or impost of 4½ per cent. may be applied for repairing and erecting fortifications, and other public uses for the safety of Barbados and the Leeward Islands, Her Majesty was pleased to say that she would give directions accordingly. For the due execution of this Act, established in and by itself, and confirmed by the subsequent declaration and royal pledge of Queen Anne, the Legislature of Barbados now appeal to the justice of the British Government. They appeal to them for its due execution at a time when, by the Act of the British Nation itself, the public establishments for protecting the peace and security of the colony, and for promoting industry, good order and discipline amongst the great mass of its inhabitants, must of necessity be enormously increased, and when the means of the inhabitants to meet these additional public charges will, in all human probability, be considerably diminished. With the hope of meeting, in some degree, this increased expenditure without materially increasing the burdens of their constituents, the Legislature of Barbados requests Mr. Secretary Stanley to recommend that His Majesty's gracious assent be given to the Act which this Memorial accompanies, by which certain clauses of the Act of the 12th of September 1663 are intended to be repealed, and the colony relieved from a tax, the net proceeds of which are but of little value, although the tax itself is oppressive and operose in its mode of collection; and the Legislature pledge themselves, in the event of such assent being granted, to make such arrangements for defraying the public expenditure of the colony as shall meet all the cases contemplated by the above-mentioned Act.

A RETURN of the Amount of the several FEES demanded from a Member on taking his Seat in this House, at a GENERAL ELECTION, and when returned upon a NEW WRIT upon a vacancy; by what Authority charged, and to what purposes applied.

THERE are not any Fees payable by a Member on taking his Seat after a General Election.

From every Burgess on such vacancy	–	5	–
For every Member sworn, upon the Clerk of the Crown's Return, upon any vacancy after the Session begun—Fee to the Doorkeepers	–	5	–

By a Burgess	2	11	8

These Fees are payable under the Table of Fees settled by the House on the 22d of February 1731, being the same as those entered in the Journals on the 26th February 1700. They are now vested by Act of Parliament in the Commissioners for regulating the Offices of the House of Commons, and form part of the Fund under their management.

A certificate from the Clerk of the Crown, certifying that the Return to the Writ has been received in his office, is necessary to enable a Member to take his seat upon a new Writ; but as great inconvenience and much delay were experienced by Members coming to be sworn unprovided with this Certificate, it was lately arranged that the Certificates should be forwarded from the Office of the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery-lane to the House of Commons, and that the charge for the postage of the Return (of course uncertain in amount, but always trifling), and the Fee to the Clerk of the Crown for the Certificate and Filing (4 s.), should be demanded at the House of Commons, and paid over to the Clerk of the Crown.

HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT PLANS.

REPORT of the COMMISSIONERS of HIS MAJESTY'S WOODS, FORESTS, LAND REVENUES, WORKS and BUILDINGS, on Mr. Barry's PLANS and ESTIMATES for BUILDING the proposed NEW HOUSES of PARLIAMENT;—pursuant to a Resolution of the Select Committee on Houses of Parliament Plans, dated 9 May 1836.

WE, the Commissioners of His Majesty's Woods, Forests, Land Revenues, Works and Buildings, appointed Messrs. Seward and Chawner, two of the Architects of our Department, to examine into and report their opinion upon the Drawings and detailed Estimates prepared by Mr. Barry for the Building of the proposed New Houses; and the Report of Messrs. Seward and Chawner on the subject of this reference is now submitted for the approbation of the Honourable The House of Commons.

REPORT of Messrs. Seward and Chawner, Architects appointed by the COMMISSIONERS of HIS MAJESTY'S WOODS, &c., to examine and report upon the ESTIMATE prepared by Mr. Barry for erecting the proposed NEW HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT.

IN obedience to the commands of the Commissioners of Woods, &c., of the 27th of January and of the 3d of February last, directing us to report upon the Estimate, prepared by Mr. Barry, of the expense of erecting the proposed New Houses of Parliament, amounting to the sum of £. 707,104, we immediately commenced upon the subject of this reference, and, after a most careful and minute examination of the numerous Drawings of the details prepared by Mr. Barry for this Building, comparing them with the several measurements of quantities, checking all the prices and calculations for the proposed works, we beg leave to report, That, in our opinion, the New Houses of Parliament can be satisfactorily erected, according to the said Drawings, for the sum stated by Mr. Barry (exclusive of the proposed embankment of part of the River Thames, which we shall hereafter notice), and at the present prices of materials and labour, supposing contracts are entered into for the same upon tenders from persons of acknowledged capital and experience in the building business, unless some very extraordinary circumstances should occur in the soil in excavating for the foundations, beyond those which have been or can now be reasonably anticipated from the abovementioned amount; the estimated value of the materials of the present building, £. 14,000, is to be deducted, leaving the sum to be provided for the new building as above specified, £. 693,104; but we beg leave, at the same time, to observe, that Mr. Barry's Estimate, as submitted to our consideration, does not include the purchases proposed to be made in Abingdon-street for part of the site of this building, nor the expense of the necessary alterations and additions to the foot and carriage ways, with street lamps round the buildings.

The amount, as per Abstract of Bills submitted to us by Mr. Barry - -	642,822
To cover his contingencies and professional charges, 10 per cent. upon the above amount - - - - -	64,282
	£. 707,104

	707,104
	£. 693,104

The probable amount of these several additions, beyond Mr. Barry's Estimate, we shall now briefly state; viz.

The embankment to the River, to the extent of that front of the building, which also forms the base of the extreme portions thereof, with the central landing place and steps - - - - - -	44,000
From the calculations made in part by Mr. Barry and in part by Mr. Walker, the Civil Engineer, which have been examined by us, are adopted,—
The public landing place and steps from the River, at each extremity of the building, and completing the embankment of the River northward to the steps of Westminster Bridge, about - - -	12,000
The purchase of Premises in Abingdon-street for part of the site, about - - - - - - - - - - - - - - -	70,000
The foot and carriage ways, with lamps round the buildings, about -	3,000
£.	129,000

Besides this additional expense, a further and considerable expense, that cannot at present be ascertained from satisfactory calculations, must, we consider, be necessarily incurred; viz.

For fitting up, with proper bookcases, presses and other fixtures, and furnishing the several Committee-rooms, Libraries, Offices and Clerks' Apartments.

For fitting up the King's Tower, proposed as the general Depository of the Public Records.

For fitting up and furnishing the Official Residences for the Speaker, the Serjeant-at-Arms, &c.

For the internal lighting, warming and ventilating the several parts of the building.

For providing the great Clock and appendages in the Bell Tower, &c. &c.

VENTILATION OF THE HOUSE

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 6 February 1837;—for,

Copy of a LETTER addressed by Dr. Reid to the Chief Commissioner of Woods and Forests, on the subject of the Alterations that have taken place in the Ventilation of The House.

London, February 4, 1837.

My Lord,

Before leaving town, I have taken the liberty of presenting your Lordship with a copy of a few brief "Outlines," illustrating the acoustic and ventilating arrangements lately made in the House of Commons.

It will be recollected by the Members of the Committee on Acoustics and Ventilation, that while I expressed the opinion that there would be no difficulty in applying the principles to which I referred in making the alterations proposed, I also particularly mentioned that the form of the house, the galleries, and the numerous local arrangements required for the distribution of the light, the equalization of the air in its progress through the house, &c. would not permit me to give my plans that unity of arrangement which could be so easily adopted in a new structure.

In the Acoustic Arrangements, the defect which I was called upon to obviate was a want of power of intonation. The complaint was that the sound of the voice of any one addressing the House fell feebly upon the ear, and that the exertion required in speaking was considerable. My object, therefore, was to give as great an increase to the power of the voice and of the ear, as could be done without inducing an echo, or prolonged reverberation. But sound can never be so equal and harmonious in a room with projecting galleries, as in others of a different construction. Galleries necessarily interfere with that free and uniform pulsation which would otherwise spread equally through the apartment. In the present house, considerable difficulty was experienced in balancing the conflicting claims of sound, light, and architectural appearance.

A difference in the intensity of the sound produced may be observed in different parts of the house, partly dependent on the above causes, and partly on the position both of those who may be listening, and of those who may address the house. This may be easily observed by comparing the sound heard near the walls with that produced in the centre of the house. In the open air, in mountainous countries more particularly, and in all ordinary apartments, similar effects may be remarked. (See page 25 of the "Outlines," and fig. 29.)

It is scarcely necessary to state that the same causes which now promote the communication of sound when any member addresses the House, equally augment any interruption produced by loud conversation. I may also be permitted to add, that conversation will probably be louder at present than afterwards, as every one at first will converse in the sustained tone he may have been previously accustomed to adopt in the house, till he shall have found that a less effort enables him to produce the same intensity of sound as formerly.

The porous and elastic floor-cloth influences much the communication of sound. Without it, or some similar texture, it would have been impossible to have given all the reflecting power I have introduced, without at the same time producing prolonged reverberation. In judging of the communication of sound, the difference between a powerful and immediate reflection and mere prolonged reverberation is not always so carefully attended to, as the nature of the investigation demands.

Should it be considered desirable to make any experiment so as to diminish the reflecting power where the conversation is greatest, the arrangement proposed by Mr. Hanbury Tracey would be the best, all the boarding between the bar and the door, both along the walls and below the galleries, being covered with green cloth thrown into numerous folds. This would diminish also the power of hearing in that part of the house, and the precise extent to which it might prove beneficial would be a difficult matter of calculation, from the great reflecting power of the roof.

As to the VENTILATING ARRANGEMENTS, the figures in the Outlines illustrating the progress of the currents, a very few remarks here will be sufficient.

1. The air is introduced by numerous apertures placed several feet above the ground.

2. It passes immediately as it enters through gauze, that soot and all other impurities mechanically suspended in it may be retained.

3.* It enters the lower chamber either by
1. The cold air passage, fig. 1,†
2. The hot air passage, fig. 2,†
3. Or, partly by both these passages, as in fig. 3.†

4. The air now enters the equalizing chamber, which is placed between the floor and the lower air-chamber. The deflectors cause it to be distributed equally before it escapes into the house.

5. From the equalizing chamber it escapes by upwards of three hundred thousand small apertures under the porous floor-cloth, from which it is introduced by millions of apertures into the house.

6. The air now ascends towards the ventilator which extends along the ceiling, escaping more or less by every pannel, and moving in such a manner that the vitiated air from one respiration is above the head, and re-placed by a pure atmosphere before another is required.

7. As the vitiated air moves along in the ventilator, its velocity is regulated by the damper, which is opened to a greater or less degree according to the number of members present. The damper is ten feet long and six feet deep.

8. Lastly, the air descends by the larger shaft which leads it into the chimney or ascending shaft, the fire expanding the air there and rendering it specifically lighter, so that from the inequality of pressure thus induced the equilibrium is destroyed, and air propelled through the house, in the manner described, by the pressure of the external atmosphere.

The ventilating arrangements are under the direction of Mr. Riches and Mr. Urquhart. Particular arrangements are adopted to carry off the air from the outer lobby during divisions. Every evening, as the House adjourns, the full power of the ventilator is put in action, the air that now rushes through the house leaving a purity and freshness of atmosphere which it is not easy to produce in any other way.

The very small space allowed for the double doors at the entrance of the house prevents their action from being so complete as is necessary for effectually excluding the influence of the external air.

The greatest difficulty experienced in all ventilating arrangements arises from the various effects produced by the very same temperature in different constitutions. The age, the temperament, the mode and habit of life, the previous vious exposure, and the different hours at which any refreshment may be taken, all influence so powerfully the sensations produced by the same atmosphere in different individuals, that no rule can be given so as to regulate the system of ventilation in such a manner as to be equally agreeable to all. An average temperature should be fixed, the ventilator maintaining it as equally as the fluctuating number of members present will permit.

I have the honour to remain, &c.

SURVEY OF IRELAND.

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 16 June 1837 ;—for,

A STATEMENT of the Progress which has been made in the Ordnance Survey and Townland Valuation of Ireland since their commencement; of the Total Number of Acres which have been Surveyed and Valued; of the Counties which have been brought under the full operation of the Act of the 7th Geo. 4, c. 62, and of subsequent Acts for the levy of Baronial Cess; and showing in particular the Progress which has been made during the year immediately preceding the date of this Return; with an Estimate of the Time that will be required to complete the Survey and Valuation.

Copy of a REPORT from Colonel Colby, Royal Engineers, dated 24 June 1837.

1. Statement of the progress which has been made in the Ordnance Survey of Ireland.

The survey of 16 counties is finished, viz.: 1. Londonderry, 2. Antrim, 3. Tyrone, 4. Down, 5. Fermanagh, 6. Monaghan, 7. Louth, 8. Donegal, 9. Cavan, 10. Armagh, 11. Meath, 12. Leitrim, 13. Longford, 14. Dublin, 15. Sligo, and 16. Roscommon, of which the first 12 are published, and the remaining four in progress of engraving. The survey of six counties is in progress, viz.: 17. Westmeath, 18. Kildare, 19. King's County, 20. Mayo, 21. Wicklow, and 22. Galway.

2. Statement "of the total number of acres surveyed."

On the 31st March 1837 the number of acres surveyed was 8,620,093 acres.

3. Showing in particular the progress which has been made in the year immediately preceding the date of this Return.

2,236,893 acres surveyed, and the maps of four counties published, during the Parliamentary year 1836-7, (the maps of the two counties, viz., Meath and Leitrim, have already been published in the present Parliamentary year).

4. An estimate of the time that will be required to complete the survey.

The amount of the time which will be required to complete the survey depends almost entirely on the amount of annual grants. In a statement which I forwarded in 1834 to the Honourable Board of Ordnance, and which is printed in the Sessional Paper, No. 623, for the year 1834, I made an estimate of the period within which the townland survey of Ireland might be completed, on the assumption of gradually increasing annual grants. I then named eight years, three of which have expired. The progress during each of those years respectively has been 1,571,110 acres in 1834-5; 1,864,838 acres in 1835-6, and 2,236,893 acres in 1836-7; manifesting a very large annual increase in the rate of progress. And as only about 11,000,000 acres of Ireland now remain to be surveyed, the above ratio of annual increase of progress would, if sufficient funds were granted to maintain it, complete the townland survey in between three and four years.

By order of the Master General and Board of Ordnance,

Office of Ordnance, 12 July 1837.

R. Byham, Secretary.

RETURN to an Address of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 23 May 1837 ;—for,

COPY of the MINUTE of the LORDS OF THE COMMITTEE OF PRIVY COUNCIL FOR TRADE, dated 4th November 1834, on granting LETTERS PATENT.

MINUTE.

At the Council Chamber, Whitehall, the 4th November 1834.

By the Right honourable the Lords of the Committee of Council appointed for the consideration of all matters relating to Trade and Foreign Plantations.

READ again Order (No. 2,526) of the Lords of the Council, dated 9th ultimo, referring a Petition of J. Wigham, junior, and others, Directors of the Scottish Porter and Ale Brewery Company, praying that His Majesty may be pleased to grant unto the said Company Letters Patent conferring certain privileges thereupon.

My Lords are of opinion, that although the Act referred to in the Memorial undoubtedly confers upon the Crown the power of granting limited privileges to public associations applying for them, and specifically points to that of suing and being sued by their Secretary, as one desirable, not only for the benefit of such associations, but of the public with whom they deal, it is necessary to take care that such powers are not conferred indiscriminately, and that so long at least as the present laws of Partnership remain unchanged, facilities should not be afforded to Joint Stock Partnerships which may interfere with private enterprise carried on under those laws, unless the circumstances and objects of such Joint Stock Companies are of a nature fully to justify such interference, upon the ground of general public advantage.

The principal circumstances which, in their Lordships' opinion, would constitute such justification, are as follows:—

1st. Where the object for which the Association is formed is one of a hazardous character, in which many individuals may be disposed to risk moderate sums, the aggregate of which may constitute a large sum sufficient for the undertaking, but in which a single capitalist, or two or three, under an ordinary partnership, would be unable or unwilling to engage. The working of Mines is an example of this species of adventure.

2d. Where the capital required is of so large an amount that no single partnership could be expected to support the expense, as in the case of Railways, Canals, Docks and works of that description.

3d. Where no great advance of capital, but extended responsibility, is desirable, as in the case of Assurance Companies, &c.

4th. Where the object sought can only be effected by a numerous association of individuals, such as the formation of Literary Societies, Charitable Institutions, and similar bodies.

The constitution and the object of the Scottish Porter Company does not appear to their Lordships to afford any one of these grounds, or any other of importance, as a justification for Letters Patent being conceded to them.

The capital embarked in the undertaking is, according to the showing of the Memorialists, of the most limited possible amount with reference to the business, nor does the amount to which it might be raised by this deed appear to be of an extent at all approaching to that which it is well known is constantly embarked by private individuals in similar business. There is nothing either in the nature of a brewery business which calls for its being conducted by a Joint Stock Company, neither the risk attending it, nor the capital required, nor the responsibility, are of a nature to render private capitalists, acting under the ordinary laws of partnership, less competent to conduct such a speculation than a Joint Stock Company.

In the absence, therefore, of any such justification, it is the opinion of their Lordships, that to grant the Memorialists the power which they pray for, would be unnecessarily to interfere with the course of private speculation and individual enterprise carried on under the ordinary partnership laws; and their Lordships, therefore, have no hesitation in submitting their opinion, that the prayer of the Memorialists should not be conceded.

Ordered, That a Report to the Lords of the Council, in conformity to this Minute, be transmitted to Mr. Bathurst.

DUTIES OF PRINCIPAL KEEPER.

A great variety of Writs pass under the Signet Seal of Scotland, and it is the duty of the Principal Keeper to appoint Deputies to examine those Writs, to enter the whole in a Record, and to exact the Fees payable upon each Writ; and those Deputies conduct the business of the Office under his superintendence.

The Commissions in favour of the Commissioners of the Signet and of the Members of the Society of Writers to the Signet, are granted by the Principal Keeper, and the whole business of the Society proceeds under his authority as Preses of these Meetings; or, as has been the case for a number of years past, under the authority of the Senior Deputy Keeper, as Preses of these Meetings.

The present Principal Keeper has not been in the habit of giving any personal attendance, either at the Signet Office or at Meetings of the Society.

The Principal Keeper of the Signet holds the situation of Lord Register and Keeper of the Register of Sasines; the Duties and Emoluments of which are stated in a separate Return.

It is their duty, in absence of the Principal Keeper, to attend to the whole business of the Society of Writers to the Signet; to consider all applications by persons desirous of becoming Apprentices, and if found duly qualified, to authorize them to enter into Indentures; to consider applications of Candidates for admission into the Society, and, if found duly qualified, to admit them to trial; to attend the public Examination of Candidates, and, if they pass their Examination, to swear them in as Members of the Society; to act along with the Commissioners in taking cognizance of the conduct of the Members of the Society; to preside at all Meetings of the Commissioners and of the Society, and to arrange the business for consideration; to attend Committees relative to all matters connected with the Society, and particularly relative to Bills introduced into Parliament, involving alterations in the Law of Scotland; to act for the Society in communications with the Court of Session, and to act as Members of a variety of important public trusts, to which they are appointed by Act of Parliament.

The Substitute Keeper appoints an Assistant. It is their duty to give personal attendance at the Office daily throughout the whole year, from ten to eleven forenoon, and from two to four afternoon, to attach the Signet Seal to all Writs passing under the King's Signet; they are liable to be called upon at all times to attach the Signet Seal to Writs requiring immediate despatch, on payment of a small Fee, which is paid to the Assistant, and stated in the Tabular Return, as "Letters signated Extra."

It is their duty to examine all Writs presented, so as to be satisfied that they are regularly prepared, in conformity to the Warrants; to enter in a Record the nature of the Writs and the names of the parties; to satisfy themselves that the regulations, as to parties by whom the Writs passing the Signet are prepared and written, are complied with; to record the names of the Clerks entitled to write Letters passing the Signet; to record the Warrants authorizing them to do so; to examine all Petitions that are presented to the Deputy Keepers for leave to enter into Indentures, and see that the Rules and Regulations relative to such applicants are strictly attended to; to examine all Petitions to have Indentures transferred, recorded or discharged, and write the deliverance of the Deputy Keeper thereon; to attend all Meetings of the Commissioners of the Signet for examination of Intrants, or other purposes; to keep Minutes of the proceedings of these Commissioners, and ingross them in a Sederunt-book; to prepare and write out the Commissions admitting Writers to the Signet; and to collect the Fees receivable at the Office, which are payable in very small sums, and to pay the whole over monthly to the Principal and Deputy Keepers.

Joseph Gordon, Clerk to the admission of Notaries.	- - Commission from His Majesty under the Great Seal of Scotland.	- - £. 100 per annum, from the regulated Fee of 11 l. paid by each Notary on admission, authorized by Commission to be applied to his own use; but out of which he has to pay for Record Books, and 7 s. 6 d. for entering in the Record Book the detail of the admission of each Notary.	- - The duties of the Clerk to the Admission of Notaries, performed by himself in person, are by his Commission declared to be, to inquire as to the "literature and good education" of every candidate for admission to the Office of Notary Public; to prepare and issue to those approved of as Candidates a presentation on which the King's cashet is impressed; to require Certificates that the Candidate "is a person of good fame, and hath had education sufficient to qualify him to exercise the Office of Notary Public;" to remit his application, with the Certificates, to the Lords of Session, to whom he must present a Petition to be put on trials and admitted if found qualified; to prepare the Commissions of admitted Candidates, and have the same ingrossed on a 20 l. stamp; to deliver to them, with their Commissions, Protocol Books, marked on every leaf in a prescribed form; to enter in a Record Book (of which there is in the custody of the present Clerk a connected series since the year 1736), and cause to be signed by the Notary and a Cautioner a detail of the proceedings on the admission of each Notary, containing in grœmio the Bond of Caution de fideli administratione; and for the habite and repute sufficiency of the Cautioners the Clerk is declared to be responsible: as also, that he shall use all due diligence for ascertaining if the Cautioners of Notaries, already admitted, be alive and solvent, and to require new caution from all those whose Cautioners have died or become insolvent.	- - None	- - Previous to the appointment of the late Mr. Ross to the office, the whole fee of 11 l., payable on admission, went to the Clerk. Mr. Ross was, by his commission, authorized to receive the established Fees, but to retain out of them only 100 l. to his own use, and to pay the residue into the Fee Fund of the Court of Session.	- - The average number of Notaries admitted during the 4 years Mr. Ross held the office, was 52¼; consequently the average amount of Fees received, was 354 l. 15 s. Mr. Ross retaining from that sum 100 l. to his own use, and 10 l. for Office Rent, left 244 l. 15 s. to be paid into the Fee Fund, saving to that amount the drafts on Exchequer, for the expense of the Establishment of the Court of Session.	- - The difference between the gross amount of Fees to be received on future admissions, and the Clerk's Salary of 100 l., with 10 l. he expects to be allowed to retain as Office Rent; that difference will probably average the same amount as in Mr. Ross's period, and is ordered to be paid over to the Receiver General for Scotland.

Edinburgh, 11 November 1836.

Edinburgh, General Register House, Jan. 14, 1837.

Sir,

Your Letter, dated Whitehall, Dec. 16, 1836, informed me, that "Lord John Russell has remarked, that in addition to the Keeper's fees for registration of Deeds of Entail, a fee of Two Shillings for each sheet of the Record, and Two Shillings and Sixpence for each search and inspection of the Record, is payable to the Deputy Keeper; but his Lordship is informed there is no Deputy Keeper, the duty being performed personally by the Keeper." You also "request me to state to his Lordship, whether the fees payable to the Deputy are demanded, and to what they amount."

In obedience to this requisition I accordingly state, that by Commission from his late Majesty, dated at "Windsor," on the "16th of February 1829," I was appointed to be "solum unicumque Clericum Registrorum appunctuatorum pro registratione et recordatione talliarum"—"et warrantorum earundem in modo per separata Acta Parliamenti eo circa lata et prescripta, cum omnibus feodis, emolumentis et privilegiis, iisdem spectantibus vel quæ ad eadem spectare possint, per illum utendis et fruendis."

Accordingly, since the date of my appointment I have myself performed all these duties, with the aid only of my Writing Clerk Robert Macandrew's services, in copying Deeds of Entail into the Record, of which I alone am Keeper, without any Depute, and which I attest by my subscription in that register and docquet written and subscribed by myself beneath each Deed, when returned.

Thus I have never had any Deputy in this office, or in discharging any part of its duties, and the fees received by me have been the same that were paid for the same duties in the times of my predecessors, the late James Ferrier, and the Keepers to whom he succeeded.

James Fergusson, Keeper of the Register of Entails.

In particular, a fee of Two Shillings has hitherto been received for each sheet of the Record; another of a Guinea, for a Docquet by the Keeper, when the Deed is returned; and a third of Two Shillings and Sixpence for each search of the Keeper's Record, while each book of that Record remains in his custody unfinished, and not returned to the Lord Clerk Register's department, as all are when full.

But when the Keeper, from any necessary cause, did not perform the duties of his office in person, it has been the practice, in the times of my predecessors, to appoint Deputes; and the first notice I have found in the General Record of Entails, is that on the 29th of June 1808, which bears, at the end of a registration of an Entail, the name subscribed of "Wm. Pringle, Depute."

It is only from practice or usage, during such deputations, that I can account for the fact, that the fees of Two Shillings for each sheet, and Two Shillings and Sixpence for each search or inspection of the Record, have come to be styled Depute's Fees, even when all the duties to which they relate are performed, as at present, by the Keeper himself, and in person.

James Fergusson.

P.S.—I have received no fees for searches within those three years to which this Return relates. J. F.

HORNINGS AND INHIBITIONS.

Days of the Year on Duty.	Hours of Attendance.	Nature and Extent of the Duties.	Whether they hold any other Offices.	Savings and Application thereof.
Every day of the year, except Sundays, and the usual holidays.	The Keeper attends personally during the hours when the Bill Chamber of the Court of Session is open, being 3 hours daily, except on Saturday, when the attendance is for 2 hours; and on Tuesdays and Fridays during Vacation, when the attendance is also for 2 hours. The Clerks attend daily from 10 A.M. to 3 P.M., and from 7 to 8 P.M., except on Saturday, when the attendance is from 10 to 12 only.	The Keeper's duties are regulated by a Treasury Warrant, dated 8 February 1830, and are in substance as follows: That he shall execute the duty in person, and attend every lawful day during the same hours at which the Bill Chamber is open, and receive and mark the Writs with his own hands, and compare the Record therewith; keep the Minute Books and receive the fees, and keep account thereof; and see that the Clerks employed in ingrossing give constant attendance, and enter all the fees, and for searches in a book, and lodge the accounts, quarterly, in Exchequer, taking credit for his salary, allowances to Clerks, and incidental expenses for stationery and articles for the Office, and to pay the balance on each account sworn to in Exchequer. The Duty of the Clerks is to engross into the Records, the Inhibitions and other Writs recorded on that Register, and abstracts or abridgments of the Hornings, according to immemorial usage in that Register.	They hold no other Offices.	Before the Act 9 Geo. 4. c. 26. the Keeper received the whole fees and paid the whole expenses; but by that Act the surplus was appointed to be paid into Exchequer, and by late regulations it is now remitted by the Keeper to the Treasury; the monies so paid and remitted since his appointment, down to 5 April 1836, are as follows: From 23 March 1829 to 5 April 1830 — £. 523 12 9½ „ 5 April 1830 to 5 April 1831 — 412 7 5½ „ 5 April 1831 to 5 April 1832 — 568 5 8½ „ 5 April 1832 to 5 April 1833 — 441 17 11½ „ 5 April 1833 to 5 April 1834 — 271 14 9 „ 5 April 1834 to 5 April 1835 — 306 4 5 „ 5 April 1835 to 5 April 1836 — 153 1 10½ Amount - - - £. 2,677 4 11½ It will depend on the number of Writs presented for recording, whether or not a saving will be permanent. Since the Act doing away with imprisonment for small debts, the fees have decreased considerably, and there were other legislative measures introduced into Parliament last Session, which, if passed into laws, will further diminish the receipts in the Office.

Edinburgh, 11 Nov. 1836.

Edinburgh General Register House, Jan. 14th, 1836.

By Commission from his late Majesty, dated at Windsor on the 16th of February 1829, I was appointed to be "solum unicumque Clericum Registrorum appunctuatorum pro registratione et recordatione Talliarum et Repertoriorum hæredum cum beneficio inservientium et warrantorum eorundem in modo per separata Acta Parliamenti eo circa lata et prescripta, cum omnibus feodis, emolumentis et privilegiis iisdem spectantibus vel quæ ad eadem spectare possint per illum utendis et fruendis."

Accordingly I have hitherto performed these duties myself, without any deputy, in the manner directed by the Act of the Parliament of Scotland passed in the year 1695, c. 24, which declares and ordains, "That hereafter any apparent heir shall have free liberty and access to enter to his predecessors cum beneficio Inventarii, or upon inventory as use is in executories and moveables, allowing still to the heir, year and day to deliberate, in which time he may make up the foresaid inventory, which he is to give up, upon oath, full and particular, as to all lands, houses, annual rents or other heritable rights whatsoever to which the said heir may claim or pretend to succeed," and which Statute declares "That the heir entering in manner foresaid, shall only be liable for his predecessor's debts and deeds, secundum vires inventarii."

Having thus no authority to delegate these duties, I have hitherto performed them myself, without any Deputy.

The following ANSWERS are given to the QUESTIONS with reference to the Return from the Office of the Lord Lyon lately made.

QUESTIONS.	ANSWERS.
1. A Table of the various Fees payable to the several officers said to be regulated in amount by usage, by statute or by royal grant?	1. A Table of Fees, payable to the several officers composing the Establishment of the Lord Lyon, regulated by usage, is given. (See below, No. I.)
2. Is there no Record kept in the office of the number of creations of Peers, Baronets and Knights, on which fees are said to be exigible? State the number of these creations?	2. There is no Record kept in the Lyon Office of the number of creations of Peers, Baronets and Knights. These fees are paid into the office of the Lord Chamberlain, where a Record of the creations is of course kept. A Table of these Fees, and the number of creations during the period required, is also appended. (See No. II., page 17.)
3. Furnish an abstract of the duties of the several officers which are said to be detailed in a Report of certain Commissioners on the Courts of Scotland, to which the Members of the House of Commons may not have access?	3. It is the duty of the Lord Lyon and of his Lordship's Deputes, under the authority of the Acts of the Scottish Parliaments, 1592, c. 127, and 1672, c. 21, to inquire into the relationship of the younger branches of families having right to coat armour, who desire to have the family arms assigned to them with differences, to assign suitable differences to them accordingly, and to matriculate them in the Register of the office, without which the arms cannot lawfully be borne by them; to grant Coats of Arms to "virtuous and well-deserving persons," which it is their province to adjust according to the discretion vested in them for that purpose; to enforce the prohibitions in those Acts against the unlawful assumption of Coat Armour; to investigate and decide upon claims to particular Coats of Arms or Armorial distinctions, and to determine any dispute which may occur between different persons with regard to the right to bear particular Coats of Arms or Armorial distinctions; to receive evidence with regard to the genealogies of persons claiming to be descended of noble or honourable lineage, and to record it in a proper register; to marshal all solemn public processions, and the like, and to decide all questions of precedency. It is also their duty to admit Messengers-at-Arms, to exact surety for discharge of their duty, and to compel them to renew their caution, where from the death, bankruptcy or withdrawing of their cautioners that has become necessary, and to suspend them till they do so; and also to exercise a general control over their conduct, and upon complaint of neglect or malversation, to suspend or deprive them of their office. It is their duty also to admit all Heralds and Pursuivants.
4. State distinctly whether the sum of fees said to be received by E. W. A. Drummond Hay and A. McDonald is the amount appropriated by each, or whether the amount mentioned in the Return be divisible, and in what proportions: also, whether a similar explanation of the Return as to the salaries and fees received by the Heralds and Pursuivants?	4. The amount of fees received by Mr. Drummond Hay and A. Macdonald, mentioned in the Return, is divisible in the proportion of one-half to each. The salary and fees mentioned in the Return are received by each of the Heralds and Pursuivants.
5. By whom is the Procurator Fiscal appointed?	5. By the Lyon Depute.
6. Opposite "Lyon's Deputes," it is said "one of these gentlemen is always resident in Edinburgh and in attendance:" state the name of the gentleman by whom the attendance is given, and where it is given?	6. Mr. Craigie is occasionally resident in Edinburgh, where he is at present residing. Mr. Tytler is always resident in Edinburgh throughout the year, with the exception of occasional short absences. The attendance of the Lyon Depute is given at the Lyon Office, and at his own Chambers.
7. Explain the nature of the attendance said to be given by the Lyon Clerk Depute, and where, as he is said to hold another office, the duties of which, as well as the attendance, are given in a previous Return to Parliament from the Court of Session?	7. The attendance of the Lyon Clerk Depute is given daily at the Lyon Office. He holds another office, but it is also under the roof of the General Register House.
8. Say whether the amount of fees said to be received and appropriated by the Lyon Clerk is exclusive of the salary paid to William Anderson, or whether that salary is payable by the Lyon Clerk out of the several sums of fees stated as received by him?	8. The salary of William Anderson is paid by the Lyon Clerk and Lyon Clerk Depute out of the fees received by them, but exclusive of the sums stated in the Return to the requisition.
9. State how often the Heralds and Pursuivants have been in attendance during the years 1833, 1834 and 1835?	9. The Heralds and Pursuivants have attended the whole duties required of them. Among other duties, in 1833, they gave attendance to the publishing of two Proclamations; in 1834 to the publishing of three Proclamations, and in 1835 to the publishing of three Proclamations, at the Market-cross of Edinburgh.

PAYMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE.

Copy of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 19th November 1836; containing Regulations for the Government of the Office of His Majesty's Paymaster General;—(pursuant to the Act 5 & 6 Will. IV. c. 35.

Whitehall, Treasury Chambers,
2 February 1837.

F. BARING.

Copy of TREASURY MINUTE of 19th November 1836.

My Lords advert to their Minute of 19th August last, in which they expressed their opinion, that the consolidation of the Army, Navy, Ordnance and Chelsea Pay Offices should take effect on 1st December next; and they now proceed to consider what further directions it is necessary for their Lordships to issue for carrying into full effect the arrangements for making that consolidation, and what establishment of Clerks and Messengers, and at what salaries, it will be proper to sanction for carrying on the duties of the Consolidated Office after that day.

As it is their Lordships' intention that the power of drawing checks upon the Bank of England to make such payments as may be ordered by this Board, the Lords of the Admiralty, the Secretary at War, the Master General and Board of Ordnance, and the Commissioners of Chelsea Hospital, shall be confined to the Paymasters of Effective and Non-effective Services, and the Cashier of Greenwich Out-Pensions, or to such persons as shall be specially appointed and deputed by the Paymaster General to assist those Paymasters, if occasion require, or to supply their places during temporary absence from illness or otherwise; it appears to My Lords, that for the security of the public, and in order to ensure simplicity and avoid confusion in carrying such checks to the proper accounts at the Bank, and to give effect to the principles laid down in that respect in the Minute of 19th August, there should be only three drawing Accounts at the Bank; one to be styled the Effective Service Account; the second, the Non-effective Service Account; and the third, the Greenwich Out-Pension Account. That such accounts should be supplied from time to time with the funds absolutely required to enable the Paymasters and Cashiers to make their payments by means of "Writes off," or transfers, first from the General Cash Account, until that is exhausted, and then from the Exchequer Credits, which will be placed by the Exchequer, upon the orders of this Board, from time to time, at the disposal of the Paymaster General for Army, Navy and Ordnance Services, at the Bank of England. It further appears to My Lords that such "Writes off" or transfers should only be issued upon the certificate of the Accountant of the office, that the money is required to enable the Paymasters and Cashiers to make their payments; that they should be signed by the Paymaster General himself, or the person appointed by him for that purpose, to provide for the case of his own absence; and that the Bank of England should be required not to pay any checks drawn or bills accepted out of any accounts whatever but the three drawing accounts.

The bills drawn upon this Board by Commissaries abroad, those drawn for Naval Services upon the Accountant General of the Navy, and those drawn upon the Master General and Board of Ordnance, all of which will be accepted, payable at the Bank, should be made payable out of the account raised for Effective Services. Those drawn upon the Paymaster General should be accepted by an officer specially appointed for that purpose, and to be responsible that all such acceptances have been duly authorized. As these bills will be drawn, some for Effective, and some for Non-effective Services, they should be accepted, payable upon the particular account to which they are properly chargeable.

My Lords are of opinion that no check whatever should be payable by the Bank of England unless countersigned by some person properly authorized by the Paymaster General, the names and signatures of such persons being previously communicated by the Paymaster General to the Bank; and that no bill whatever, by whomsoever accepted, should be paid by the Bank, unless there shall have been previously delivered at that establishment a list of the particulars of all such acceptances, signed by the Paymaster or Cashier drawing upon the account out of which such bills have been made payable. As the Paymasters and Cashiers will not themselves accept bills, they will satisfy themselves, before signing such lists, that they have been examined by the Accountant of the office, and that he has ascertained that the bills have been accepted under competent authority.

These lists will therefore afford to the public the same security with respect to the bills as the counter-signature with respect to the checks.

All bills accepted payable at the Bank prior to 1st December, and falling due after that day, and all such bills and checks outstanding on that day, whether originally made payable out of any of the Exchequer Credits for Army or Ordnance, or out of the Cash Accounts for Army or Ordnance, the existing Account for Naval Services, the Naval Prize Account, the general Account of the Treasurer of Chelsea Hospital, the Poundage Account, the Unclaimed Prize Account, or out of any other account at present raised in the books of the Bank for the public service of any of the offices about to be abolished, should, My Lords are of opinion, be paid on and after 1st December out of the accounts to be on that day raised in the Bank in the name of His Majesty's Paymaster General for Non-effective Services, for Effective Services, and for Greenwich Hospital Out-Pensions, as the case may be; such information as is necessary being furnished to the Bank for that purpose; and the several payments charged thereafter to the proper heads of service in the books of the Paymaster General.

With respect to the Pay Clerks at the Ports, it appears to My Lords that as all their payments for all Effective Services will continue to be made under the Lords of the Admiralty, either upon general regulation or specific direction, the accounts rendered by them for such payments, accompanied by the several vouchers in support thereof, should be rendered as at present to the Accountant General of the Navy, by whom an abstract of such payments, duly certified by one of the Lords of the Admiralty, should be transmitted to the Paymaster General immediately after the termination of each month, showing the several heads of service for which the payments have been made, and the amount paid; and that such abstract, when so certified, should, as in the case of the allotment tickets, upon which payments will take place at the office in London, be the vouchers upon which such payments should be admitted by the Commissioners of Audit to the credit of the Paymaster General. The vouchers taken by the Pay Clerks for payments made for Non-effective Services, will be transmitted direct to the Paymaster General, and will, for those payments, be his vouchers with the Auditors.

It appears that arrangements cannot at present be made for paying at Woolwich and Deptford Dock-yards, by means of the Storekeepers at those yards, the pensions and other non-effective charges now paid there by Clerks despatched for that purpose from the Navy Pay Office. My Lords are therefore of opinion, that Clerks must be despatched from the Paymaster General's Office at the periods at which the payments become due at Woolwich and Deptford, furnished with the necessary funds for paying to the several individuals the sum due to each respectively, in the same manner as Clerks will be despatched for payment of ships' wages. My Lords are however very desirous that the Lords of the Admiralty should consider whether a more simple and more economical arrangement might not be made for the payment of all the non-effective charges and allotment tickets at Woolwich and Deptford, by means of some person under their authority resident at each yard. It appears to My Lords that such an arrangement would be more advantageous to the individuals, as well as to the public, because in the one case a resident officer would have better means of checking attempts of personation and other modes of fraud, than a Clerk merely proceeding thither at intervals; and in the other, because it may happen that from illness, absence or other cause, parties may be unable to attend on the usual day of payment, in which case they will either be obliged to wait, probably at considerable personal inconvenience, until the next period of payment, or be forced to attend in the interval at the office in London.

The payments of the non-effective charges at all other stations at home and abroad, where there are Naval Agents, will be made by those agents, and the amount so paid by them set off to the proper account, upon the necessary vouchers being transmitted by the Accountant General to the Paymaster General.

In order to avoid the difficulties which might otherwise take place with respect to the payment of the several non-effective Naval charges incurred, and due up to the termination of the last quarter, ended 30th September, My Lords are of opinion that all such payments should be made by the Paymaster General, upon specific orders, to be issued in each case by the Lords of the Admiralty, under the regulations in force with respect to such payments at present, and that the regulations which are to commence and take effect on and after 1st December should apply, so far as they relate to non-effective Naval charges, to such charges only as will arise upon account of the quarter commencing on 1st October 1836, and coming in course of payment after 1st January 1837.

It will be necessary, therefore, that all remittance bills issued by the Lords of the Admiralty for the payment of half-pay due previously to 1st October, should, when paid, be returned as heretofore by the Revenue Boards and Pay Clerks at the Ports to the Accountant General of the Navy for examination, in order that a direction may issue through that office for re-paying the amount to the Revenue Department, or for charging the amount to the proper head of service in the books of the Paymaster General. With respect to any bills of exchange for half-pay due previously to 1st October, and which may be outstanding unaccepted on 1st December, such bills, when accepted by the Accountant General of the Navy, will be payable at the Bank of England upon the Paymaster General's Account for Non-effective Services; a list in duplicate of such acceptances being furnished by the Accountant General to the Paymaster General; the original being retained by the latter to accompany his accounts to the Auditors; the duplicate being transmitted to the Bank with an authority for the payment of the bills.

It appears to My Lords that this mode of communicating to the Bank an authority for paying bills on the account of the Paymaster-General, viz. by lists of such bills, signed by one of his own officers, is preferable to that proposed by the Minute of 19th August. My Lords have already adverted to the nature of the additional security which they think will thereby be afforded to the public, and they are desirous that such duplicate lists should be therefore transmitted to the Pay Office by the Accountant General, and also from the Ordnance, with respect to a class of bills which will still be accepted by that department, and to which My Lords will advert hereafter.

In the case of claims for Naval half-pay or Pensions due to deceased parties, My Lords desire that no payment may be made by the Paymaster General until such claims shall have been referred to and examined by the Accountant General of the Navy.

It appears upon communication with the Master General and Board of Ordnance, that although there will be no objection to payment of all small disbursements, which ought to be immediately discharged at the Tower by means of an imprest to be made to some person upon their establishment, yet that the weekly payments of wages, &c. cannot be so made at present, there being no person in the department at the Tower who could properly be made a pecuniary accountant for that purpose. My Lords will therefore instruct the Paymaster General, until a better arrangement can be made for the purpose, to despatch a Clerk once a week to the Tower, on the usual day for making such payments (Friday), charged with funds for that purpose, and will request the Master General and Board to give orders that the Paymaster General may be furnished on the previous day, or on the morning of Friday, with a list of the payments to be made to the several parties.

The only bills which, under the new arrangement, will be drawn on the Master General and Board, will be by officers on the march in Great Britain, for bread, meat and forage for the troops. The accounts for the amounts to be so drawn will be rendered to the Surveyor General, and the Paymaster General will have no means, without reference to the Ordnance, which would occasion delay and inconvenience, of knowing whether the bills should be accepted or not. My Lords think that these bills, like those drawn upon the Accountant General of the Navy, should be accepted, payable out of the Effective Service Account of the Paymaster General at the Bank of England, and that, as in the case of the Navy, duplicate lists of such acceptances, and the orders of the Board of Ordnance, authorizing the acceptances, should be transmitted to the Paymaster General; the order of the Board, and the original list to accompany his accounts to the Auditors; the duplicate to be forwarded to the Bank to sanction the payment of the bills.

There is one class of services conducted by the Board of Ordnance for which it appears to be doubtful that sufficient provision has been made in the Minute of 19th August last; that Board is frequently employed, because the service is performed more economically and in a manner advantageous to the public service, in procuring supplies of various kinds for other departments of the Government, and for service in the Colonies. Payments for such supplies are made in the first instance out of monies at the disposal of the Ordnance, and when re-payment is subsequently made, the amount is carried to the credit of the proper account. As it is necessary for the advantage of the public service that this system should continue in force, and the Ordnance be employed for this purpose, My Lords desire that the Paymaster General will continue to act upon the existing regulations in that respect, taking care, as at present, to charge the payments and re-payments to the proper accounts in his books.

Adverting to the arrangement under which the Bank of England will depute Clerks to attend at the Pay Office for the purpose of receiving all monies payable to the Paymaster General, and of paying in cash certain classes of service in which such payments could not be advantageously made by means of checks payable at the Bank, and to the recommendation of the Lords of the Admiralty that such payments should not be strictly confined to the classes named in the Minute of 19th August last, but that a discretion should be granted in that respect to the Paymaster General in the same manner as such discretion has heretofore been exercised by the Treasurer of the Navy, My Lords, desirous of affording to all parties attending at the Pay Office to receive monies due to them by the public, whether for effective or non-effective services, every facility to receive such monies which may be consistent with the proper discharge of the duties of that office, and particularly in cases in which from age or infirmity it would be inconvenient for the parties to proceed to the Bank to be paid, are pleased, in accordance with the recommendation of the Lords of the Admiralty in that respect, to authorize the Paymaster General to extend the payments by the Bank Clerks at his office beyond the several classes and services to which such payments were confined by the Minute of 19th August, to such other cases as in his judgment it may be proper to extend such facility, due care being at the same time taken that no undue or unnecessary extension of that mode of payment be permitted. The payments should be made upon orders issued to the Bank Clerks in each case, such orders being exchanged at the close of the hours of business each day, for checks to be drawn for the amount so paid during the course of the day by the Paymasters of Non-effective and of Effective Services, each to the extent of the sum paid on their respective accounts.

With respect to the payments which the Bank Clerks will receive for the Paymaster General, it will be necessary that an account of the amount of all such sums so paid to them, and for which the Bank will be responsible, should be transmitted from the Pay

Office to the Governor and Company of the Bank immediately after the close of business every day.

The books of the office must be closed as soon as the payments of the day are over, and the accounts of payments and receipts carefully examined and balanced by the respective Paymasters and the Accountant General, as the business of the day is not to be considered as terminated until the whole of the accounts of receipts and payments are carefully and accurately balanced and settled.

The books of the drawing accounts should be procured from the Bank as early as possible every morning, and the account of receipts and payments entered therein, should be forthwith compared and examined with the transactions of the previous day, as exhibited in the books of the office.

As the Royal Orders which have been issued for the grant of credits for Army, Navy and Ordnance Services, to the Paymaster of the Forces, Treasurer of the Navy, and Treasurer of the Ordnance, will not have been exhausted by the grant of credits to the full amount thereof, My Lords are of opinion that the Comptroller General of the Exchequer should, upon orders from time to time from this Board, continue to grant credits upon such Royal Orders, until they are exhausted, such credits being granted in the name of His Majesty's Paymaster General, and that the Bank should place at the disposal of His Majesty's Paymaster General the balance of all credits already granted upon such Royal Orders, in the same manner as if they had been originally granted to him.

In order to enable the Paymaster General to communicate with his officers at the Ports and at Dublin, and with the several individuals throughout the Empire entitled to receive payments and allowances from his office, it will be necessary that, in addition to his own privilege of sending and receiving letters free of postage, he should be empowered to name Three Persons upon his establishment to frank all such letters as it shall be necessary to despatch by the post upon the official business of his department; such correspondence to be confined exclusively to such official business. My Lords therefore desire that the necessary directions may be issued to the Postmaster General, authorizing and instructing him, under the powers, privileges and authority vested in the Paymaster General, and in this Board, by the Act 5 & 6 Will. IV. c. 35, to permit all letters to pass free of postage which shall be addressed to His Majesty's Paymaster General, or to the individual holding that office; and in like manner to permit all letters to pass free of postage which shall be franked in the usual manner by the person holding the office, and also all letters franked on the official business of the office by the signature of any of the Three Persons upon the Pay Office establishment, who will be named to him by the Paymaster General for that purpose; provided that in the case of these last-mentioned letters the outer covers have written upon them the words "Office of His Majesty's Paymaster General," and "On His Majesty's Service."

Write to the Lords of the Admiralty, the Master General and Board of Ordnance, the Comptroller General of the Exchequer, and the Governor and Deputy Governor of the Bank of England, respectively, communicating to each the several directions and regulations of this Minute, so far as such directions and regulations severally apply to them.

My Lords, in considering what establishment will be necessary for carrying on the various duties to be performed in this department at Whitehall, in the Greenwich Hospital Out-Pension Office, at the Ports of Sheerness, Chatham, Portsmouth and Devonport, and at Dublin, have before them the existing Establishment now engaged in the discharge of those duties.

The Establishment of the Navy Pay Office, including that for the Ports, and for the Greenwich Out-Pension Office, consists of—47 Officers and Clerks, and 21 inferior persons, as Housekeeper, Messengers, &c.

The actual annual charge for this Establishment is £.16,552. The charge at its minimum would be £.13,980, and at its maximum £.22,910.

In the Army Pay Office there are employed—

44 Officers and Clerks, and 6 inferior persons.

The actual charge being £.15,803; the minimum £.13,613, and the maximum £.16,663.

In the Ordnance Pay Office, including therein the Establishment at Dublin, there are—

11 Officers and Clerks, and 2 Messengers.

The actual charge is £. 4,123; the minimum £.3,255, and the maximum £.4,385.

The Establishment of the Office of Treasurer of Chelsea Hospital consists of—9 Officers and Clerks, and 1 Messenger.

The charge for this office is £.2,274 per annum; but by an arrangement already made for transferring, under the directions of the Minute of 19 August, the examination of all questions relating to Army Prize from the Office of Treasurer of Chelsea Hospital to that of the Secretary; and by the consequent increase of that office, which has been made by transfer from the Office of Treasurer, the numbers after this transfer are reduced to six, and the annual charge to £.1,886.

In

In addition to these numbers, a diminution of four Clerks will take place in the establishment of the Accountant General of the Navy, in consequence of the transfer from that Office to the Office of Paymaster General, of certain duties now performed in the former relating to the Half-pay and Pensions.

The actual annual charge for these four persons is £.912; the minimum charge is £.772, and the maximum, £.1,382.

The total number of persons who are now engaged, therefore, in the discharge of the duties which will hereafter be performed under the superintendence of the Paymaster General is—

112 Officers and Clerks, and 30 inferior persons.

The actual annual charge of these Establishments is £.44,476, including therein the salaries of the Paymaster of the Forces, the Treasurer of the Navy, and the Treasurer of the Ordnance. The charge, at its minimum, would be £.38,706, and at its maximum £.52,426.

After the fullest and most mature consideration which My Lords have been able to give to the subject, they are of opinion that the whole of those duties may, for the future, be correctly and properly discharged by an Establishment consisting of—93 Officers and Clerks, and 19 Messengers, &c.

Such Establishment to be distributed as follows:—

At Whitehall:

62 Officers and Clerks, 1 Housekeeper, and 7 Messengers.

At the Ports of Sheerness, Chatham, Portsmouth and Devonport:—

12 Clerks and 1 Assistant Clerk, and 7 Messengers.

At Dublin:

3 Clerks, and 1 Messenger.

In the Greenwich Out-Pension Office, which My Lords propose on the ground stated in the Minute of 19 August, as a separate branch of the office,—

15 Officers and Clerks, and 3 Messengers.

The total number to be employed being therefore—

93 Officers and Clerks, and 19 inferior persons.

The reduction, as compared with the existing establishments, will be—

19 Officers and Clerks, and 11 inferior persons.

My Lords are of opinion, that this Establishment, exclusive of the Greenwich Out-Pension Office, should be divided, for the discharge of the duties, into the following classes; viz.

1 Assistant Paymaster General.
1 Accountant General.
1 Assistant Accountant.
1 Paymaster of Non-effective Services.
1 Paymaster of Effective Services.
8 Principal Clerks.
17 Senior Clerks, the Chief Clerks making payments at the Ports being selected from this class.
22 Assistant Clerks.
25 Junior Clerks.

And that such classes should be again distributed into branches, for the discharge of the duties, in such manner as shall from time to time appear to the Paymaster General the best calculated to ensure the prompt and correct execution of those duties.

In considering what rates of salaries should be assigned to the different individuals to be employed upon this Establishment, My Lords have reference, not to the existing establishments, in which, in addition to other officers having salaries from £.600 to £.1,200 per annum, there are eight Cashiers or Paymasters having salaries from £.600 to £.1,000 per annum, but solely to what in their judgment is really necessary to secure for the public the services of persons properly qualified to discharge the duties and incur the pecuniary responsibilities of such an office, affording to them, on the one hand, a fair remuneration for their labour and for the trusts they undertake, and on the other, taking care that no charge is imposed upon the public unnecessarily.

Upon a full view of all these circumstances, My Lords think that the following salaries should be fixed for this office:—

Assistant Paymaster General, £.1,000 per annum, to be increased to £.1,100 after five years' service as such.

Accountant General, £.800 per annum, to be increased £.10 per annum to £.950.

Assistant Accountant, £.750 per annum, to be increased £.10 per annum to £.850.

Paymaster of Non-effective Services, £.750 per annum, to be increased £.10 per annum to £.850.

Paymaster of Effective Services, £.600 per annum, to be increased £.10 per annum to £.700.

Principal Clerks, £.450 per annum, to be increased £.10 per annum to £.550.

Senior Clerks, £.350 per annum, to be increased £.10 per annum to £.450.

Assistant Clerks, £.200 per annum, to be increased £.10 per annum to £.350.

Junior Clerks, £.80 per annum, to be increased £.10 per annum to £.180.

The Assistant Clerk at Sheerness, the same salary as at present, £.150 per annum.

The Housekeeper, £.100 per annum, with an allowance of £.26 per annum to be paid to two Housemaids, and also board wages at the rate of 12*s.* per week, for the two Housemaids and for five Charwomen; such allowances not to be a source of profit to the Housekeeper, but to be paid to the persons employed.

To the Head Messenger and Office-keeper, £.100 per annum.

3	Messengers, each at	£.90 per annum.
1	ditto	£.80.
1	ditto	£.50.

With respect to the Greenwich Hospital Out-Pension Office, My Lords are of opinion, that the following should be the scale of salaries:—

Cashier, £.500, increasing £.10 a year to £.650.

7 Assistant Clerks, £.200 per annum, increasing £.10 per annum to £.350.

7 Junior Clerks, £.80 per annum, increasing £.10 per annum to £.180.

1 Messenger, at £.90 per annum.

2 Messengers, at £.80 per annum.

The charge upon the public for this establishment, including therein the salary of the Paymaster General of £.2,400 per annum, and the allowance to the Bank of England to defray the expense which will be incurred by that establishment in the employment of two Cashiers at the office in Whitehall, viz. £.700 per annum, will be at its minimum £.27,409, and at its maximum £.38,159.

The minimum of the establishment now existing, being as already stated £.38,706, and the maximum, £.52,426, the eventual reduction of expense arising from the arrangements for consolidating these offices, will be £.11,297 in the one case, and £.14,267 in the other.

The charge as it actually exists at present, as already stated, is £.44,476; that on 1st December next will be £.33,539; the immediate reduction, subject to the grant of superannuation allowances, is £.10,937.

My Lords desire it however to be understood, that in fixing the establishment of this office at the numbers and salaries here stated, it is their intention that the whole should be subject to revision after the expiration of 12 months, being of opinion that in the mean time experience will have been gained in the discharge of the duties of the office, so far as to enable them to decide whether any further reductions can be effected without detriment to the public service.

My Lords further desire it to be understood, that no appointment to be hereafter made by their Lordships to the Junior Class of this office shall be confirmed until after a period of probation of 12 months, and a report to their Lordships by the Paymaster General, that the person appointed on probation deserves to be confirmed in the situation.

It is likewise their Lordships' intention that promotion shall not be made by succession from one class to another, except upon testimonials of good conduct and diligence from the heads of the several branches in which the individual next in succession shall have served in the office.

To the offices of Paymaster of Effective Services, of Paymaster of Non-effective Services, of Assistant Accountant, of Accountant General, and of Assistant Paymaster General, My Lords reserve to themselves the right of appointing by selection, and with respect to the three last-named officers by selection in or out of the office, as they shall think most for the advantage of the public service.

My Lords desire that the hours of business shall be from 10 o'clock in the forenoon until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, unless a longer attendance shall be at any time required for the public service, in which case the Paymaster General will of course take care that such additional attendance is given; and in order to ensure a due and regular attendance on the part of

of every individual employed, and to afford to this Board hereafter an additional test of the regularity and diligence with which the several individuals have attended to the discharge of their official duties during the course of their employment, when their cases shall be brought forward for superannuation, My Lords desire that an attendance book shall be kept, in which each gentleman shall inscribe his name as he arrives at the office, and the time of his arrival: such book to be closed and delivered to the Assistant Paymaster General at 12 o'clock each day.

Let the necessary Warrants be prepared and submitted for His Majesty's Royal Signature, directing the abolition of these existing offices, and the constitution of the office of His Majesty's Paymaster General from and after 30th November instant, and for appointing the Right Honourable Sir Henry Parnell, bart. to be His Majesty's Paymaster General.

Transmit copy of this Minute to the Paymaster General for his information and guidance, and let him be directed to furnish the accounts required for the Admiralty and Ordnance, in the manner pointed out by those Boards.

Transmit also copy of this Minute to the Commissioners of Audit for their information and guidance, so far as the directions thereof relate to their department.

F. BARING

OBSERVATIONS upon the REPORT from the Select Committee of the House of Commons, appointed "to inquire into the Management and Affairs of the Record Commission, and the present State of the Records of the United Kingdom," transmitted to the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury by His Majesty's Commissioners on the PUBLIC RECORDS.

IN complying with your Lordships' invitation to lay before you the observations that occur to them on the Report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons, and in replying to what appear to them the unmerited animadversions which it contains on their alleged neglect of the duties confided to them by His Majesty, the Commissioners on Public Records are anxious to express their unfeigned respect for the House of Commons; but they are bound, not less in duty to themselves, than in regard to the interests of the public, to protest against the conclusions of its Committee, which seem to them to have been influenced by preconceived opinions, and to have been founded on partial and imperfect representations.

Before entering upon the main questions arising out of the Report of the Committee, it seems convenient to direct the attention of your Lordships to some peculiarities, which, more or less, pervade the whole of it, and the proper understanding of which will go a great way towards clearing up the difficulties thrown around the subject by the mode in which it has been treated by the Committee.

The following are the peculiarities referred to:

1. The Committee, although appointed "to inquire into the Management and Affairs of the Record Commission," did not confine its inquiries to the Record Commission at present in existence, and which bears date on the 12th March 1831, but directed its attention to whatever seems to have been neglected by any of the successive Commissions (Report, p. xxxvii), the first of which was issued on the 19th July 1800.

The Commissioners on the Public Records make no complaint of the course thus adopted by the Committee. They are merely desirous of stating the fact and exhibiting its results; which have been, first, that the successive Commissions appointed since 1800, the last of which was superseded five years ago by the present Commission, have been charged with inattention, mismanagement and neglect of duty on ex parte, and occasionally on vague, hearsay evidence, with no one before the Committee to defend them, both their secretaries, who could best have justified or explained their proceedings, being deceased; and, secondly, that various charges, founded upon such evidence, and, if affecting any one at all, certainly chargeable only against the former Commissions, have, by some confusion, been introduced into the Report as applicable to the present Commission.

In this manner, practices not merely condemned, but eradicated by the Commissioners; practices which they were the first persons to expose, and which, to the extent of their power, they have removed, are raised up as charges against them. In some instances the charge is even extracted out of their own publications condemnatory of the practices complained of.

2. The second peculiarity observable in the Report is, that in treating of the objects of the several Commissions on the Public Records, the Committee seems to have lost sight altogether of that Report which forms the basis of all the Record Commissions, and a constant reference to which is necessary towards the formation of a proper judgment upon the course adopted by the Commissioners.

The principal passages in the recent Report upon this subject occur at page v. They are too long for insertion here, but it may be seen, upon referring to them, that they represent the several Commissions to have been issued for the general purpose "of providing for the better arrangement and preservation of the Records;" and in page viii it is again stated, that "the superintendence of all the Public Records, both ancient and modern, without distinction, is entrusted to the Commissioners."

On this representation of their duties, and of the services expected from them, the Commissioners have to observe, that no general superintendence and control over the Public Records have been given to them, but merely a limited authority for the execution, to the utmost of their power, of the specific and definite matters confided to them.

All the Commissions have been founded upon the Report of the Committee of the House of Commons in the year 1800; and in all of them it is recited, that His Majesty, being desirous of "providing for the better arrangement and preservation of the Records," issued these Commissions, in order that the Commissioners might cause such matters to be executed "as they should judge fit and proper to be done for the more effectual execution of the several measures recommended by His Majesty's faithful Commons in the said Report of their proceedings relative thereto." "The measures recommended in the Report of 1800" were therefore the real objects of the Commission; and in that light they have always been regarded by the Commissioners.

In the Report of the recent Committee, it is remarkable, that when treating of the objects of the several Record Commissions (p. v), not even the most distant allusion is made to the Report of 1800. It would not appear from the statements upon this subject contained in the recent Report that any such previous Report was in existence.

Out of this omission have arisen many errors, and, as the Commissioners think, some injustice.

A judgment, which might be applicable to the case of a public body having a general object, sufficient authority and ample funds, has, in the present instance, been applied to one which has definite objects, insufficient authority and limited resources.

The Committee have not reported as to whether the Commissioners have executed the objects set before them in their Commission, so far as the extent of their powers and the amount of their funds have enabled them to do: they have reported as to what in their judgment remains still to be performed before the Public Records can be said to be in a proper state of condition and arrangement, and have set down every thing that falls within that description as a proof of, what they term, the neglect of the Commissioners.

3. A third peculiarity, which pervades the Report, is,

That, although it is the Report of a Committee appointed to inquire generally into "the management and affairs of the Record Commission," it is confined in its facts almost exclusively to what the Committee have thought to be instances of the the mismanagement of the Commission. This peculiarity has resulted from the circumstance that, notwithstanding the terms of their appointment, the Committee, "considering it their duty rather to examine into existing defects for the purpose of suggesting remedies, than to pass in review the many and important services rendered by the successive Commissions, has directed its attention more to what seems to have been neglected than what has been efficiently and satisfactorily performed by those bodies." (Report, p. xxxvii). In this manner the Commissioners find themselves represented in the Report as an incompetent and incapable body, not on account of what they have done, which is generally the subject of praise throughout the Report, but of what they have "neglected," or in other words, what they have not done with reference to an arbitrary standard of the authority and duty of the Commissioners set up in the minds of the Committee, and existing no where else.

4. A fourth peculiarity in the Evidence, and in the Report, is,

That they contain charges against the keepers of the Record Offices, and other persons who were not present before the Committee; and who were neither called upon, nor had any opportunity afforded them, for explanation or defence.

The Committee seem, in various instances where there appeared a primâ facie contradiction between the testimony of two persons, or between oral testimony and a document, to have deemed it unnecessary to make any inquiry as to the possibility of reconciling seeming discrepancies, or arriving at the truth amidst actual contradictions.

The Commissioners observe, that all these cases of seeming or actual contradictions are presented in the Report in such manner as may lead to inferences adverse to the Commissioners, or to witnesses who have given testimony favourable to them.

Having made these observations, which seemed to them called for by the general character and bearing of the Report, the Commissioners proceed to a particular examination of some of the many erroneous statements and conclusions with which, in their opinion, it abounds.

The first division of the Report is,

I. Buildings.

Under which head is included the consideration "not only of the buildings in which the Records are deposited, but also the mode in which provision has been made for their arrangement and preservation." Report, p. vii.

This section is opened with the following admission:

"It does not appear to Your Committee that the Commission has ever at any time possessed the actual control and regulation of the buildings in which the Public Records are kept. Occasional representations of the insufficiency of certain buildings, and the perils of damp and fire to which the Records contained in them are exposed, have been made by the Commissioners; yet no thorough reform of these evils has resulted from such representations."

A very little enlargement would make this statement entirely accurate. The Commission has never possessed any control over the buildings; whatever the Commissioners have effected has been by means of representations, and they have frequently seen, with regret, that their representations have not been effectual. A short general statement of what has been done by the Commissioners under this head will be found in the Appendix to the Report, p. 858.

The opinion of the Commissioners has long been, that the present buildings ought to give place to a General Repository for Records, and their proceedings towards effectuating that object will be found briefly stated in the Appendix to the Report, p. 863. In the meantime, until it can be accomplished, the Commissioners have thought that their duty was confined to the representation, and, so far as their power has extended, to the alleviation of pressing inconveniences. The paper before referred to will prove that the Commissioners have not neglected this portion of their duty, nor indeed is any such neglect specifically charged against them.

In the next sentence, however, it is stated, "Evidence has been given before Your Committee, of the removal of large masses of the Public Records during the existence of the Record Commission, at a great expense, to very improper situations and unsuitable buildings; that the Records have been so removed without any superintendence or direction on the part of the Commission, and that great confusion and loss have resulted therefrom." The records here referred to are those of the King's Remembrancer; and these facts are given upon the authority of "Mr. Cole's Evidence, 4437—4453." Upon reference to that authority it will be found that the transaction alluded to took place in the year 1822, and that the witness spoke of it, not of his own knowledge, but partly from loose conversational inquiries, and principally from statements relating to certain "rumours" upon the subject laid before the present Board by their Secretary, and published in their Proceedings in the year 1833. At that time the present Board did all that, after the lapse of eleven years, could be done with reference to this transaction. They held it up to view, and commented upon it as a proceeding which, if true, was very much to be regretted. These comments of the present Board have furnished the facts which have now been converted into something very like a charge against themselves.

In a subsequent part of the same section of the Report (p. xii) these Records are again referred to. The history of the removal in 1822, which had been before stated in brief, is detailed fully, as if it were an entirely new matter; quotations are given from the statements upon the subject contained in the Proceedings of the Board; and at p. xiii the narrative respecting these Records is concluded with an extract from "Mr. Vincent's Statement," which carries down their history apparently to 1833, two years subsequent to the date of the present Commission, leaving them at that period, as it would seem to a careless reader, "in a flimsy erection of deal boards in Westminster Hall, destitute of space or power of arrangement, dark, damp, and almost pestilential."

The document called "Mr. Vincent's Statement," is a return made by that gentleman to questions sent to him by the present Board in the month of January 1833, and the portion here extracted, and which was published by the Board in their Proceedings (pp. 70, 71) refers entirely to the condition of these Records at the time of his appointment to his office in "1823," and not "1833," as it unfortunately stands printed in the Report of the Committee, p. xiii. The Committee having thus, as they seem erroneously to have thought, brought down the history of these Records to the year 1833, proceed at once to the "Stone Tower," a new subject, and leave the House to infer that the Records to which "Mr. Vincent's Statement" alludes still remain in their "dark, damp, and almost pestilential" repository. Various operations in the way of cleaning, sorting and arranging these Records were commenced by the present Board in the spring of 1832, and have been continued up to the present time. (Vide Appendix to Report, p. 865.)

The removal of these same Records is again presented to the attention of the House in a subsequent part of the Report (p. xxvii), where the same facts which were previously (at p. vii) stated to have been given in "Evidence before the Committee," are more accurately described as a mere rumour.

In this instance it will be seen, that a statement which is described in the Evidence (No. 4435) as merely a "rumour," is made the foundation of a grave accusation against the Commission in existence in the year 1822; and that the same incident, in consequence of its collocation, and the unfortunate misprint of "1833," conveys, incidentally, a charge against the present Board.

The Tower.—With respect to this repository the Report presents to notice a seeming contradiction between the Secretary to the Commission and several other witnesses, and two charges of inattention. The question raised by the contradiction is, Have the Board three persons sorting, arranging and calendaring the Miscellaneous Records? And those arising out of the charges of inattention are, Did the Board inform Mr. Petrie of its operations? and, why has it not employed its workmen in repairing the Inquisitiones Post Mortem?

It appears (Report, p. ix) that by an order of the Board, dated the 2d March 1833, Sir Francis Palgrave was directed and empowered "to examine, sort and arrange" the Miscellaneous Records in the Tower, and "make calendars thereof;" and (Appendix to Report, p. 878) that on the 22d of the same month a copy of that order was transmitted to Mr. Petrie by the Secretary to the Commission. After considerable progress had been made by Sir Francis Palgrave and his clerks, he and they were transferred from the Tower to the Chapter House, in consequence of his appointment as Keeper of the Records in that repository. The Secretary, Secretary, on the 5th June 1834, communicated with Mr. Petrie (Appendix to Report, p. 878) as to the continuance of this operation, and in the month of August 1834 Mr. Stevenson was sent to the Tower with that view; Mr. Petrie having been first apprised of his appointment on the 7th of that month. Mr. Stevenson made his first quarterly report of his operations to the Board on the 25th December 1834. This document is printed in the Appendix to the Report, p. 878. It describes his progress minutely, both in calendaring and making such an arrangement of the Records as "that reference from the description of any individual document to the original thereof might hereafter be easy and certain." (Ibid). His subsequent reports up to the end of the year 1835 are printed in the Appendix (p. 878 to 883), and exhibit clearly his own sense of the importance of his labour, the progress made in it, and his mode of arranging the miscellaneous correspondence. In his report of the 21st September 1835 he described that correspondence as "kept in a large box, without the least arrangement, either chronologically, numerically, or according to subjects, consequently when any letter is wanted, the whole mass must be examined." It further appears that Mr. Stevenson has had two clerks engaged under him in these operations. (Appendix Report, p. 879). And that in the month of February 1835 he was visited by a committee of the Commissioners, whose report is printed (Appendix to Report, p. 873), and in which he is described as then occupied in "arranging the Miscellaneous Records," which he informed the Committee were about 60,000 in number.

The facts as to the repairing of the Inquisitiones stand thus: Mr. Roberts, who is a clerk in the Tower Record Office, (Ev. 6942), is employed by the Commissioners to form a "Calendarium Hæredum" from the Inquisitiones (Ev. 6954). This work has been in progress since 1833 (Ev. 6956), but not continually, Mr. Roberts having edited for the Commissioners some Excerpta from the Fine Rolls in the meantime (Ev. 6964). He stated to the Committee that the "Calendarium" is making very slow progress, in consequence of the Records themselves being in a bad state of preservation and arrangement (Ev. 6966): that the Keeper of the Records is aware of this, but that he has never mentioned any thing of the sort to the Commissioners. (Ev. 6976). It further appears, from the return made by Mr. Petrie to the Commissioners on the 17th April 1835, and printed in the Appendix to the Report, p. 877, that a "reparation and improved arrangement of the Inquisitiones" are proceeding under his direction.

The Rolls Chapel.—The principal observations of the Committee relate to the unsuitableness of the Rolls Chapel as a place of deposit, which the Commissioners have long acknowledged, and have endeavoured to remedy by their scheme of a General Record Office.

The Committee (Rep. p. x) do not think that sufficient progress is made in repairing and cleaning certain documents in this repository. The secretary to the Commission stated that two persons were employed, and that there is no room for more than two (Ev. 267, 280, 281, Rep. p. x); and Mr. Palmer, the chief clerk in the office, stated that "looking at the space in that repository, more workmen could not be conveniently employed and placed on the work." (Ev. 6208).

The Committee do not coincide in opinion with the secretary and Mr. Palmer as to the value of certain miscellaneous documents. (Report, p. x, Evidence 288, 289, 6233). The vast majority of these documents, which constitute but a very small portion of the contents of the office, are entered of record upon the Patent Rolls. When they have been once entered their principal use is gone, the Record stands in their place as evidence, and for almost all possible purposes, and the documents themselves are consequently put away in bundles, which, in such a place of deposit as the Rolls Chapel, soon become very dirty. There is rarely any occasion to refer to them again. (Ev. 6233, 1027). Mr. Grimaldi, who is an experienced record agent, seems to have once had a desire to see one of them; and Mr. Hardy, who is also a record agent, has once recently made a search amongst the bundles, which he states that he found "in a most filthy and disgraceful state." An arrangement and cleansing of these documents was commenced under the direction of the Commissioners. (Report, p. x; Ev. 1027), but has recently been interrupted by necessary attention to Records of greater general use, and by the difficulty of efficiently carrying on operations of this description in a repository so over-crowded as the Rolls Chapel.

The Committee find fault (Rep. p. xi) with a mode of binding practised at the Rolls. It is, however, described by Mr. Palmer, who is practically acquainted with the subject, as unattended with injury (Ev. 6252).

Somerset House Exchequer Records.—The complaints with respect to the buildings in which these Records are deposited, are mere echoes of those made by the Commissioners. The Committee have indeed availed themselves of the information upon the subject obtained by the Commissioners, but without alluding to the salutary measures adopted by the Commissioners in consequence, a brief statement of which will be found in the Evidence, 1144—1146, and in the Appendix, p. 861, 862.

The evidence relating to the suspension of the proceedings carried on by the Commissioners in the Pipe Office, in the year 1832, is, at p. xii of the Report, made the occasion of presenting another seeming contradiction to the testimony of the secretary to the Commission. The subject matter is not peculiarly important, but the mode in which the contradiction is effected, affords another example of the spirit in which the inquiry was conducted.

In February 1832, Mr. Charles Panton, one of the clerks in the late Office of the Pipe (Ev. 7041), was employed under the direction of the Commissioners in the repair and better arrangement of the series of the Great Rolls of the Pipe, with an especial view to the recovery of 13 of these highly important documents, which had long been missing. (App. p. 865). The whole of these Records were at that time lodged in the vaults under Somerset House, and the search was prosecuted amongst the Miscellaneous Records in that repository, and in the office of the Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer. Eleven of the missing Rolls were recovered; the whole series was arranged, and the more ancient and valuable removed, upon the interference of the Commissioners, to a safer and more commodious place of deposit. (Ev. 1641). The progress of this search necessarily occasioned some little sorting of the Miscellaneous Records in the vaults, and the Commissioners improved the ventilation of that dark, damp place of deposit, by opening new windows. (Ev. 1146). They were also desirous of prosecuting the sorting of the Miscellaneous Records which had been begun in the manner described, but soon after the repairs and arrangement of the Great Rolls had been effected, the Pipe Office was abolished; the Records were transferred to the King's Remembrancer, and the further prosecution of the labour of the Commissioners was suspended by a misunderstanding with that officer respecting fees to be paid for transcription. (Ev. 1153).

The secretary was examined respecting these transactions on the first day of the sitting of the Committee. Throughout his testimony upon this subject, he stated his want of recollection of the precise facts, and desired to refresh his memory by a reference to "the Proceedings of the Board" (Ev. 161, 167); and "the Minute-book." (Ev. 172). Amongst other things, he stated (Ev. 163), that "the Miscellaneous Rolls of the Pipe may possibly be in a confused state, but the Great Rolls of the Pipe are not." (Ev. 165) "I should doubt very much whether there are any Records of any importance in the office, except the Great Roll of the Pipe." (Ev. 167). "I said, the Miscellaneous Records might be [in a state of confusion]; but I cannot tell without reference to the Proceedings of the Board." The question quoted in the Report (p. xii) was then put to him (Ev. 168), "Why was the arrangement of the Records at the Pipe Office suspended?" He answered, "I believe because the work is completed as far as it can be, with regard to all valuable Records." A few minutes afterwards he added, in reply to another question (Ev. 172), "I am now inclined to think he (Mr. Panton) was originally employed in arranging, but if the Committee would permit me to consult the minute-book, my doubt upon this point would be cleared up. After the arrangement of the Great Rolls, I think he sorted the Miscellaneous Records; and it was not until he had gone through the different sacks and bags where the Miscellaneous Records had been deposited, that he began to transcribe. The impression on my mind is, that the work of arranging and sorting was completed as far as was requisite, or as it could be, regard being had to the repository." He afterwards added, that there was a dispute respecting the rate for transcription (Ev. 173), and concluded thus (Ev. 174) "I think the operation of arranging was complete, but I am by no means sure."

On a subsequent day the subject was resumed, and then the secretary gave evidence to the following effect: That the Great Roll was arranged, that the other Records in the office were of no value, but that a sorting of them had been begun under Mr. Panton's superintendence. (Ev. 1147—1149).

Then

Then follow these questions and answers:—

"1150. The arrangement is not complete?—No; much progress in sorting had not been made: I have inquired into this matter since my former examination.

"1151. Why was it stopped?—In consequence of a change in the custody of the Records, and a misunderstanding with the new keeper, Mr. Vincent.

"1152. I thought you said on a former day that it was owing also to too large a demand being made for transcripts?—That was an ingredient in the misunderstanding."

The Committee, upon the foundation of this evidence, report (p. xii), "When his (Mr. Panton's) labours were suspended, the impression on the mind of the secretary was, that the work of arranging and sorting was completed, as far as was requisite." To support this statement they omit all notice of the evidence given on the subsequent day, and quote a part of one of the answers given in the manner before mentioned on the first day of the secretary's examination. In this way they create a seeming contradiction between his testimony and that of other witnesses, who state that the Miscellaneous Records in that office are not in a good state of arrangement.

The passages relating to the Records of the King's Remembrancer's Office (Report, pp. xii, xiii) have been before noticed.

Stone Tower.—The charge implied here (Report, p. xiii) seems to be, that the Commissioners, having been apprised by one of their own body of the bad condition of these Records, have permitted them to continue in the same state, with the exception of what the witness, who is relied upon, describes as a superficial examination.

Upon what ground the witness makes this assertion does not appear. The fact, which, if opportunity had been afforded, might have been given in evidence, is, that after Mr. Protheroe's representation, these Records were examined by Mr. Robert Thomson and his assistants. He went carefully through the whole mass, and after selecting "some extremely valuable household books," (Ev. 4461), he reported to the Commissioners that the remainder consisted principally of Port Books of no earthly value.

Mr. Thomson is one of the officers of the Court of Exchequer, having the custody of Records. He attended the Committee several times, and expressed to the chairman an anxious desire to be examined.

Carlton Riding School.—The Report here resumes the history of the mass of the Records of the King's Remembrancer, but after an interruption highly calculated to mislead.

The only points which seem to deserve notice from the Commissioners are, 1. The alleged removal by the secretary of a part of these Records, without the sanction of "the Keeper," Mr. Vincent; the removal being to the house occupied by the Commissioners in Boswell-court, during the winter months, and for the purpose of arrangement (Report, pp. xiv, xv); and, 2, the operations now carrying on under Mr. Gay.

1. It is obvious that a removal of bags and bundles of records could not be for the purpose of "arrangement," which can only be properly effected in a place of permanent deposit. This removal was for the purpose of carrying on, during "the winter months," the operations of cleaning and repairing, which must otherwise have been suspended in consequence of the impossibility of working during that period of the year in the then temporary repository of these Records.

These are the same Records respecting which it is remarked, at p. xxv of the Report, that "the utmost degree of confusion as to custody" prevails. "The custody is partaken," Mr. Vincent states, (Ev. 1720), "by all the clerks in court"—"so that his custody is to a certain degree nominal." Amongst the persons who thus "partake" of the custody of these Records is "Robert Thomson, Esq., one of the side clerks of the King's Remembrancer's Office" (Report, p. xiv), the same gentleman who conducted the inquiry at the Stone Tower, and was anxious to be examined before the Committee. He and Mr. Trickey, the bag-bearer, who is described by Mr. Vincent (Ev. 1721), as keeping the key of these Records, and as the servant of himself and all the other gentlemen who share in the right of custody, conducted the removal to Boswell-court, and Mr. Thomson gave his gratuitous attention to the very laudable labour there carried on.

As the Report stands, it conveys an imputation against Mr. Thomson, which it is not unreasonable to imagine might have been explained away by his evidence. Such a state of custody is very improper; but it does not appear from the evidence that any one of the joint custodes is under the necessity of obtaining the consent of the others, before a step so necessary for the safety of the Records could be taken.

It is stated in the Report, that, whilst the Records remained in Boswell-court, they were in the custody of Mr. Thomson. (Report, p. xiv).

2. It might have been expected that the Committee, before it pronounced upon the incompetency of Mr. Gay, would have called him before them, and ascertained from himself the nature of his present employment. As the Report stands, they assume, contrary to the fact and to the evidence of the secretary (Ev. 210, 220—1189, 1194), that he is entrusted with "the whole management of the arrangement" of these Records, and then pronounce him incompetent to arrange. The secretary has stated (Ev. 1193, 1194) that no new arrangement is at present going on, but merely "repairing and binding," duties of which Mr. Gay is "as capable as any man living." (Ev. 220).

Chapter House.—The statements in the Report (p. xv) prove the attention of the Commissioners, and of your Lordships, to this repository. Nothing is added to the facts previously published in the proceedings of the Commissioners, and those contained in the letter addressed to Mr. Spearman by Sir Francis Palgrave, on the 9th March 1836.

The arrangements made by the Commission have secured the regular attendance of the keeper ever since his appointment in 1834, as well as the formation of proper calendars.

Augmentation Office.—The circumstances stated consist principally of a charge against Mr. Caley, the late keeper, who is deceased, and an admission of great recent improvements. The charge against Mr. Caley is, in many respects, expressed in such terms as may lead to very erroneous conclusions. For instance, "Members of Your Committee also inspected the Conventual Leases, from which Mr. Caley had cut the seals." (Report, p. xvii). Whether this was done with a view to their preservation, from misjudgment, or feloniously, does not appear in the Report, nor is it stated whether all, or how many, of "the Conventual Leases" were thus mutilated. In the secretary's evidence (Ev. 1027) the following explanation appears:—"Upon this I have interrogated Mr. Charles Gay. In answer to a question, whether he was aware of Mr. Caley having cut off any seals?—he said, 'Yes, he cut off, I believe, about 50 from the Conventual Leases.' Then I asked him, why Mr. Caley cut them off?—He replied, 'Because some of them were scarce monastic seals, and some of them very fine ones. Those Records, the Conventual Leases, were being made into a volume for binding, and the seals were cut off by Mr. Caley, in order to prevent their being damaged or lost.' I further inquired, what had become of the seals so cut off? and he informed me they are now in the office in boxes, with the numbers in Mr. Caley's handwriting from where he took them. A few others, Mr. Gay added, were loose, and are now also in the boxes. I further interrogated him as to whether the whole of the seals, so cut off, or which had been found loose, were now in the office? He stated that they are. Lastly, I asked him, if Mr. Caley had cut off the seals from any other species of Records? when he said, that he never knew that he did." Mr. Gay, it is in evidence, entered the employ of Mr. Caley 28 years ago. During all that period he has been engaged upon Records, and for 17 years has been employed in making searches, sorting, arranging by dates and counties, and superintending repairs. (Ev. 238). He could have explained many other circumstances connected with Mr. Caley and the Augmentation Office, besides that of the seals, but the Committee did not call for his evidence.

Mr. Gay is employed by the Commissioners in the operations now prosecuting at the Augmentation Office.

Duchy of Lancaster Office.—The inference sought to be raised here (Report, page xvii) is, that the Commissioners have improperly suspended the operations at one time proceeding in this office. The reason of the suspension appears in the evidence of the keeper, Mr. Danvers (7184), "a gentleman, who was formerly merly in the Tower, has been employed of late years by the Duchy, to arrange and look into the Records and Muniments of the Duchy."

Pell Office.—Mr. F. Devon, the gentleman here brought forward, was not called before the Committee. He has publicly declared, in writing, that he could explain the circumstances here stated.

King's Bench.—The Report gives (p. xviii) an extract from a statement and letter of Lord Kenyon, both published in the Proceedings of the Board, and in which his Lordship declared his opinion to be, that these Records were well lodged at Westminster. " It therefore appears to your Committee," the Report proceeds, " that these Records have been removed with the knowledge, and at the suggestion of the Commission, to an unsuitable repository." The circumstances of this removal, which took place under the sanction of your Lordships, are shortly stated in the Appendix to the Report, pp. 861–2. Upon what evidence the Committee has arrived at the conclusion, that the Rolls House is " in fact " almost incapable of supporting the weight of the Records (Report, p. xviii), does not appear. It was inspected by the surveyor-general, upon the application of the Commissioners, before the removal took place (App. p. 861), and no inquiry was made by the Committee of that public officer. Nor was the keeper called upon by the Committee to explain the circumstance of " unsorted papers " having been seen in two rooms by a Committee of the Commissioners, in the year 1833.

Under the head of these Records, there is an endeavour made, by means of a seeming contradiction between the evidence of the secretary and that of Lord Lyndhurst, to raise an inference, that the Board has been inattentive to the condition of the new depository, and that, notwithstanding the assertion of the secretary to the contrary, the Records are, in the language of Lord Lyndhurst, " in a state of considerable confusion."

The evidence of the secretary refers, as is evident, to the present condition of these Records (vid. Ev. 1773) ; whilst that of Lord Lyndhurst is clearly stated by his Lordship to have reference to their condition " about twelve or fourteen years ago " (vid. Ev. 8198), before their removal to the Rolls House, of which Lord Lyndhurst does not seem to have been aware at the time of his examination.

First Fruits.—The particular description of insecurity complained of in 1819 is not here stated (Report, p. xviii) ; nor does it appear to have occurred to the Members of the Committee who visited this office (Ibid) ; nor was Mr. Gunthorpe, the keeper, who gave evidence before the Committee, examined respecting it. (Ev. 7220—7263).

The office is situated in private chambers, in Inner Temple Lane, and its insecurity arises from a consequent hazard of fire. The " most important document " (Ev. 7236) there has been placed by the Commissioners beyond the peril of destruction, by means of the press.

The carriage of Records to this office, by mistake, which is mentioned p. xviii, and over again, with a little variation, at p. xix, originated in a confusion at the removal of the Records from the wooden building in Westminster Hall to the Mews at Charing Cross ; which removal is stated (Report p. xiv) to have been conducted " with great care " by Mr. Vincent. The Committee seem to have thought that that gentleman was entitled to all the credit of the care, and the Commissioners to all the discredit of this probably unavoidable accident.

The remainder of this branch of the Report (p. xix), is principally confined to the results of the removals to and from the shed in Westminster Hall, for none of which can the Commissioners be responsible. It affords some striking examples of the injustice that may be done by straining evidence beyond its proper meaning without positive fabrication ; but enough has already been stated to render this sufficiently apparent.

It is not intended to pursue this minute examination throughout the Report. Sufficient has been done to prove what degree of dependence may be placed upon its general accuracy, and to what an extent the peculiarities before mentioned abound in it. The Commissioners have thought that this could be placed in a clearer light by following out one entire section of the Report, than by selections from different parts of it. Without trespassing further on your time, they venture to assure your Lordships, that the analysis they have made of the first section gives no unfair specimen of those that follow.

The Second Head of the Report is, (p. xix),

II. Calendars and Indexes.

In the summary at the conclusion of this section, it is stated (p. xxiii) that " the Commission has done hardly anything in the way of supplying those calendars and indexes, which are absolutely requisite to render the contents of our Public Record Offices available to the public."

This general censure, however, is subsequently modified. At p. xxxvii it is stated, " Nor is your Committee inclined to deny that the business of methodizing the Records, and rendering them generally available, is in progress; and that the Commission has carried on useful and well-conducted operations of this nature in some of the Record Offices. In some, calendars have been, or are in preparation under its direction."

It appears to the Commissioners that the usefulness and importance of calendars have been misunderstood and exaggerated by the Committee, partly from their having confined themselves to a very narrow view of the subject, and partly from their having been, as it seems to the Commissioners, misled by several gentlemen of limited knowledge, but considerable name in these matters, and whose opinions it may be, in some degree, excusable to have followed. This point is of importance, both with reference to its bearing upon the past proceedings and expenditure of the Commissioners, and upon the principles by which this branch of His Majesty's Service is to be guided in future. It is necessary, therefore, that the Commissioners should make some observations upon it.

Although admitting " that great service had already been done by the publication of some of the Records of acknowledged value and general usefulness, and that there remain several of a like kind which it would be equally proper to publish " (Report, p. vi), the Committee state, that they " cannot doubt the propriety of keeping this object subordinate to that of rendering the whole mass [of the public Records] available to all " (Report, p. vii). The Committee state further, that this desirable object is to be accomplished, not by printing, but by securing the preservation of all in any way worth preserving; by making the contents of our Record Offices generally known, by means of full and complete calendars and catalogues; and by securing an easy access to them on the part of every inquirer," by certain means which are pointed out in the Report (Report, p. vii). In illustration of this opinion of the Committee, reference is made to the " valuable evidence of Mr. Tytler and Sir Harris Nicolas " (Report, p. vi), who contend for the formation of " full calendars or catalogues " of all the Public Records. (Ev. No. 3969). " Catalogues containing an analysis of the contents of the documents which they embrace " (Ev. No. 4251).

Upon this subject the Committee have extracted from the Report of the Committee of 1800 (at p. xx) three sentences, which, although drawn from different places, are all strung together as if they were one continuous extract, and are referred to " p. 12," where no one of them can be found. These extracts, which are highly commendatory of the formation of calendars and indexes, under certain regulations, conclude, in the Report of the recent Committee, thus: " And that the most essential of all measures recommended by them for the purpose of laying open to the public a full knowledge of the contents of our various and extensive record repositories, would be unquestionably to print some of the principal calendars and indexes."

In the Report of the Committee of 1800 the sentence stands thus: " The most essential of all these measures (i. e. the measures recommended by them) for the purpose of laying open to the public a full knowledge of the contents of these various and extensive record repositories, would be, unquestionably, to print some of the principal calendars and indexes, and also such of the original Records, hitherto unpublished, as are the most important in their nature, and the most perfect in their kind." (Reports of Committee of 1800, p. 13).

This sentence, not as it is printed in the recent Report, but as it stands in the Report of the Committee of 1800, has been constantly borne in mind by the Commissioners, and accurately describes the course which they have endeavoured to pursue. They have never contemplated or intended, as would seem to be insinuated in the Report (p. vi), to print the whole mass of our Records. They quite agree with the Report, that any such notion would be visionary in the extreme; but they are also of opinion that the formation of such calendars or catalogues catalogues as are indicated in the Report, and in the evidence of Mr. Tytler and Sir H. Nicolas, is a scheme equally visionary, and, if carried beyond a certain point, positively mischievous, and detrimental to the public service.

Upon this point, and indeed upon all subjects connected with the public Records, it is important to bear in mind that they are composed of four great classes: 1. Independent Records, relating to many subjects, persons and places, but altogether comprising only one great whole. Of this kind are Domesday Book, the Taxatio of Pope Nicholas, and the Valor Ecclesiasticus of Henry VIII. 2. Series of Enrolments, comprising upon one Roll, consisting of many membranes united the one to the other, so as to form a continuous Roll, great varieties of separate and distinct entries, classed together either according to their formal character, as the Close, the Patent, and the Charter Rolls; or according to their subject matter, as the Liberate, the Oblata, the Norman, or the Gascon Rolls. 3. Records containing entries of judicial proceedings, in which each subject matter has a distinct Roll, and the several Rolls of a particular term or other period are all bound together at the top, the ends hanging loose; and, 4, Separate documents, such as letters, inquisitions, commissions, privy seals, and all the other various descriptions of formal instruments.

The mode of treating these various descriptions of Records, both with reference to calendaring and printing, has properly been, and ought to continue to be, as different as their several natures. The first class may be printed, but the notion of calendaring or cataloguing them can arise, in the opinion of the Commissioners, from nothing but want of reflection on the nature of their contents. Who would expect any useful purpose, in the way of communicating accurate information, to be answered by calendaring or cataloguing a general history, or a general survey? The only way of making such works practically useful is by printing them entire. That is the course which the Commissioners have adopted, when they seemed of sufficient interest and importance to deserve publication.

Records of the second class are in the nature of miscellaneous collections of documents, arranged chronologically, and having one general character. That general character, added to the chronological arrangement, stands in some respects in the place of an index. Whoever is acquainted with it may, generally, with the assistance of the existing office indexes, discover any document he desires. It is especially to Records of this description that the evidence of Mr. Tytler (Ev. No. 8185), and the calculation of Mr. Hardy (App. p. 904) apply. The latter gentleman, who is the chief clerk in the Tower Record Office, has looked at this subject only with reference to that portion of it upon which his own talents could be usefully employed, and has concluded that, after a lapse of 20 years, and at the expense of 25,000 l., the portion of these Records which is at the Tower, and which forms but a part of the Records there, and a comparatively small part of the whole body of our Records, might be calendared. Mr. Tytler, who is engaged in writing a history of Scotland, has, in like manner, regarded the subject solely as it might be useful to persons of his class, and has set forth the advantages which they would derive from the printing and cheap circulation (Ev. No. 4253) of such calendars, or, as he terms them, "Catalogues Raisonnées."

The Commissioners, after having regarded this question with a view to the advantage of the community at large, and to the amount of funds which it is reasonable to expect that the liberality of Parliament will devote to subjects of this description, are of opinion that the whole scheme is a mere chimera.

Catalogues, which would cost 25,000 l. to make, would cost four or five times that sum to print, and would extend to a number of volumes, so preposterous that they would indeed deserve the appellation of an "unfathomable sea of print," bestowed by Mr. Tytler upon a scheme which seems, though erroneously, to have been attributed to the Commissioners. The notion that such bulky calendars could ever be "printed and circulated at a cheap rate" (Ev. 4253), proves how little the gentleman who puts forth this scheme has considered it.

The abridgement of anything except a mere form must be unsatisfactory, since it never can be anticipated for what purposes a particular document may be wanted by all inquirers. The Commissioners think it desirable that their publications should be suited to the possible wants of all classes of the community, and they see no certain way of effecting that object, except by the publication of the unmutilated Record in all cases in which publication is desirable, with the omission only of matters utterly and manifestly useless.

Upon these several grounds of the enormous expense, the preposterous bulk, and the limited usefulness of the contemplated catalogues, the Commissioners cannot approve of their formation. The course which the Commissioners, filling up the outline sketched out in the Report of 1800, have adopted, has been to use their influence towards the formation of useful office indexes by the diligence of the ordinary clerks in the offices, where that was sufficient, and by additional assistance when it was not so, and to publish such of these series of Records, as, from their nature, their antiquity, or the paucity of other documents for the period to which they refer, possess a peculiar value, either legal or historical, or both. The Close Rolls and Patent Rolls, which are the works of this class published by the Commissioners, are mentioned in the Report (p. xxx) with very high commendation. The Commissioners intended to carry on these two series to the end of the reign of Henry 3, down to which time it appears, by the statement of Mr. Hardy, the Rolls themselves "can be copied in a shorter time, and at less cost, than it would take to have them calendared." (App. p. 904).

The Judicial Records, which compose the third class before mentioned, are entirely left out of consideration by the gentlemen upon whose testimony the Committee have relied. The bulk of some classes of these Records would add enormously to the proposed expenditure, whilst their value during certain periods would certainly not afford any adequate return. There is, however, one great description of Records which may be arranged under this class, and which is at once the most valuable and the most incapable of being calendared. Allusion is made to the Pipe Rolls, a great series of public accounts existing in one vast and continuous collection, from the second year of the reign of Henry 2 down to the present time. This series of public documents, which is universally admitted to be of incalculable value, sets all abridgement or cataloguing at defiance, The notion of publishing all the Records, if it had ever existed, could not have surpassed in extravagance a scheme for forming "Catalogues Raisonnées" of the contents of the Pipe Rolls; and yet it is evident that they are comprehended in the plan of Mr. Tytler, for he seems to contemplate the publication of some of them entire, after such catalogues shall have been completed and published. (Ev. 4567—4569).

The Commissioners have acted upon the same plan with respect to the Judicial Records, as they have adopted in reference to the Close and Patent Rolls; they have published such of them "as are the most important in their nature and the most perfect in their kind." The Rotuli Curiæ Regis, and the Pipe Rolls, publications of the Commissioners which fall under this head, are commended by the Committee; the one by name, and the other as comprehended amongst "the other series of Records," the publication of portions of which has been undertaken by the Commissioners. (Report, p. xxx).

The fourth great division of the Public Records comprises some which exist in series, and are generally tied together in chronological order in bundles, and others which pass under the accurately descriptive title of "The Miscellaneous Records." Such documents, which exist more or less in all the larger Record Offices, and in some of them form masses composed of very many thousands of single documents, are, in the estimation of the Commissioners, proper subjects for calendars. Belonging to various periods, comprising documents of various forms, and of almost every variety of subject, the inquirer has no clue whatever to their contents without the assistance of a calendar.

The calendaring of documents of this description has formed one of the constant labours in progress under the Commission.

Those in all the great repositories have been in the course of arrangement and calendaring for several years past; such attention being given to them as the amount of funds in the hands of the Commissioners, the many other objects which necessarily demand a share of their expenditure, and the conveniences afforded in the Record Offices for the carrying on of works of this character, would allow. These are indeed Records which so peculiarly stand in need of calendars and catalogues, that if the evidence of the gentlemen before alluded to had been confined to them, the Commissioners would scarcely have felt inclined to dispute it; but when these zealous advocates for the formation and publication of catalogues, would apply their scheme to all the Records

Records indiscriminately, the Commissioners cannot avoid the expression of their clearest dissent from any such expenditure of the public money.

Under the head of,

III. Transfers.

It is correctly stated in the Report that "no power seems to have been given to the Commission of making transfers from one Record Office to another." (Report, p. xxiii).

IV. Establishment of Offices.

"To make full and diligent inquiry into the duties of the several officers, clerks and other ministers having the care, custody or management of the Public Records in all their several departments, and into the salaries, fees and other emoluments and perquisites received by such officers, clerks, ministers and other persons; and also into the rules, usages and regulations of the several Record Offices and other repositories of Public Records, and the general course of business therein, and all matters connected therewith; and also to inquire whether any and what reforms, alterations, amendments and improvements may be beneficially introduced therein, and how such reforms, alterations, amendments and improvements may be best carried into effect," as the Select Committee justly remark, was "the one new object (in addition to those which had been assigned to former Commissions) for the furtherance of which the present Commission was instituted:" And when they subjoin, that "no effective power of interfering with the present regulations of the offices, or of diminishing the fees has been given to the Board;" and that "to recommend reforms and to obtain sufficient power for executing them was all the Commission could do," they are equally correct. But, when they add, "this it has certainly failed to effect" (Report, p. xxv), they assert what is partly true and what is partly false. It is true that little alteration or amendment has been effected by the Commissioners, because the measures they recommended have been frustrated by causes over which they had no control. It is not true that, having made inquiries into the abuses and defects of the present Record Offices, they have failed to recommend those measures of reform which, in their opinion, were necessary for the correction of the evils thus made known to them. As the basis of all substantial improvement, they recommended a great and comprehensive measure of reform, the principle of which they must consider to be unexceptionable, since the Select Committee have adopted it, without acknowledgment, as their own.

Soon after the appointment of the present Commissioners they issued circular questions to the different keepers of Records, on the state of their offices and of the Records in their custody, on the rules, usages and regulations of their several offices, and on the fees and emoluments of themselves and their clerks; and to these questions answers were returned from all the more important, and from many of the inferior offices. The Select Committee complain, that "for the result of the information thus obtained" they have been "referred to the appearance of a General Report, which is hereafter to be laid before His Majesty." (Report, p. xxv). If they received no further information, it was, as in many other instances where the result would have been favourable to the Record Commissioners, because they did not call for it.

Having satisfied themselves of the faults and imperfections inherent in the present Record Offices, and in the system there established, the Commissioners proceeded to inquire into the appropriate remedies for these defects, and soon became convinced that the first step towards improvement was the erection of a General Record Office, which should contain the whole, or the greater part of the Records dispersed in the different Record Offices of the metropolis. After communicating with your Lordships, and consulting with an eminent architect, they prepared a Bill for the erection of a General Record Office, and in that Bill they embodied the provisions which seemed to them necessary in order to give them that authority and control over the Record keepers, and over the management, regulations and fees of the different Record Offices, which His Majesty's Commission did not and could not confer upon them, but which were essential towards enabling them to carry into effect the contemplated reforms in this department of the public service. Leave was given on the 14th of July 1834 to introduce this Bill into Parliament. Your Lordships are aware why it was postponed to the ensuing Session, before which the unforeseen death of the Master of the Rolls, the late Sir John Leach, raised obstacles to the further prosecution of the plan, which were not removed till the spring of the year 1836, when the appointment of the Select Committee had occasioned a temporary suspension of all the operations of the Record Commission.

As the erection of a General Record Office was the foundation on which rested all the plans of the Commissioners for the "reforms, alterations, amendments and improvements" of the Record Offices, it was thought unnecessary to solicit for them the additional authority and control over the Record keepers, which had been contained in the proposed Bill, till the prospect should again be opened to them of being able to accomplish that great object, without which the additional powers conferred upon them would have been of little or no avail.

From this statement of what they have done, and of what they have recommended, the Commissioners trust it will be apparent to your Lordships, that "if the Record Offices are still in an unsatisfactory state," it is from no fault of theirs; and that "if little has been done for the preservation and accessibility of the Records," it has arisen from no negligence of theirs or inattention to the duties entrusted to them.

If the Select Committee had not unfortunately considered it their duty to bestow censure whenever they possibly could, and to withhold praise from the Record Commissioners, however merited, it could not have escaped them that the defects they have exhibited in the Record Offices, have, in most cases, been pointed out to them in the reports and publications of the Record Commission, or by witnesses who derived their information from these sources; and that while the merit of instituting the inquiries that led to these disclosures belongs to the Commissioners, so the credit is due to them of having suggested and proposed the erection of a General Record Office, which the Committee themselves admit to be "the first and, perhaps, the most essential step for the improvement of the present system" (Report, p. xxxix). Dismissing the doubt implied in the word "perhaps," this is one of the few conclusions in which the Record Commissioners can express their entire accordance with the Select Committee of the House of Commons.

The Commissioners will not follow the Select Committee in their enumeration of the defects and abuses of the present system. Though exaggerated in the Report, and represented as more extensively injurious to the public than they really are, the Commissioners are sensible of their magnitude and desirous to remove them. But they have no power to redress the existing evils, and if they had power they could not exercise it with much effect till a General Record Office was erected, and the Records collected in one repository. When that object is accomplished, and not till then, they would recommend that the Records should be vested, as in Scotland, in the legal custody of some high judicial authority, and that the immediate management and control over them (with certain limitations) should be placed in the hands of a single person, with a sufficient establishment of clerks and inferior officers under his superintendence. Till such a building is erected and provision made in it for the reception of the Records, they can suggest no better arrangement than the appointment of an active and intelligent inspector of Record Offices, who should visit them from time to time, and report to a Board like the present Record Commissioners the state and management of the different offices, and suggest to them such practicable improvements as could, in the meanwhile, be carried into effect.

The Commissioners think it right, however, before they quit this branch of the subject, to point out a passage in p. xxviii of the Report of the Select Committee as a strong proof of the caution with which its statements, although apparently founded on evidence, ought to be received. The Report says, "One witness (Sir Thomas Philipps, Ev. 7551) thinks, that since the foundation of a Record Commission, in 1800, more Records have been destroyed or lost than in the four preceding centuries." On turning to the Evidence it will be found, that this opinion is expressed verbatim in the form of a question by the Chairman: "Is it not your opinion that more of the Records of England have been destroyed," &c., to which the answer is, "I think there have." And when the witness is further asked, by Sir Robert Inglis, for the grounds of his opinion, he admits that it relates to the loss and injury sustained by the fire at the House of Lords, and the removal of the Exchequer Records to the wooden building in Westminster Hall, which took place in 1822.

There does not appear to be any section in the Report marked V.; that which follows number IV. is entitled

VI. Selection of Original Records,

And is subdivided into 1. Transcripts; and 2. Printing.

Under the first of these heads it is presented to the notice of the House, that the secretary has changed his opinion as to the extent to which transcription would answer the purpose of printing. The reasons for this change appear in the Evidence (2837—2841).

It is also stated that Sir Harris Nicolas and Mr. Stevenson disapprove of the transcripts made from Rymer's Collectanea, under the circumstances explained in the Appendix (p. 743). The opinion of the former of these gentlemen seems to have undergone a change similar to that of the secretary upon the subject of transcripts, for in the "Proceedings of the Privy Council," a work edited by Sir Harris Nicolas, and published by the Commissioners, a very considerable number of these manuscripts, which he is here stated to describe as "too inaccurate to print," have been printed by him. He has also remarked in his work entitled "Observations on the State of Historical Literature" (p. 95), that "these manuscripts require nothing more to fit them for the press than that the various instruments should, where practicable, be collated with the originals."

"The transcripts of the Privy Council books appear to have been twice made at the public expense." Report, p. xxix.

This refers to a part only of the published work. One copy had been made by Sir Francis Palgrave before the existence of the present Commission. It was bound up in volumes, with other documents, and was in constant use by Sir Francis Palgrave, with reference to works of the Commission carrying on by him. Before this copy could have been made available for the press, the volumes must have been taken to pieces, Sir Francis Palgrave must have been deprived of the present use of the transcripts, and his labours consequently suspended or impeded. Under these circumstances, after several communications between the secretary, Sir Harris Nicolas, and Sir Francis Palgrave, it was thought better to have them copied again. Transcripts of some part of them indeed, it now appears (Ev. 4184), had been made by Sir Harris Nicolas before his engagement with the Commissioners. These last transcripts were used by Sir Harris Nicolas, and his clerk was paid for them by the Commissioners, upon a certificate of Sir Harris Nicolas.

"The same thing is admitted to have happened with respect to some portion of the volume intituled 'Rotuli Selecti.'" Report, p. xxix.

The circumstances were here precisely the same as on the former occasion. £. 3. 6 s. 8 d. was the amount paid for the second transcripts. (Ev. p. 2587).

Under the head of "Printing," the notice of the labours of the Commissioners is principally laudatory. The exceptions are really not worthy of comment. The "original works of modern authors," which the Commissioners are blamed for having published, are, 1. A Report by Sir Francis Palgrave on the ancient Parliamentary Jurisdiction of the Council. 2. The republication, with additions, of an introduction to Domesday Book, accompanied by some new and highly useful Indexes, framed by Sir Henry Ellis. The publication of a Glossary to Domesday was recommended by the Report of the Committee of 1800. The original portion of this publication is partly of that nature.

In this section of the Report there is reference to certain works printed by a private printer; "some for the private use of the Commissioners, and some intended for distribution and sale." "None of these publications," it is added, "are of the nature of those which the Board is authorized to print by the terms of the Commission."

The authority given in the Commission is, to cause all such matters to be executed as the Commissioners think advisable for the more effectual execution of the measures recommended in the Report of the Committee of 1800, and, with that view, the Commissioners are, amongst other things, empowered to appoint sub-commissioners "to superintend the printing of such calendars and indexes, and original Records and papers, as the Commissioners should cause to be printed." These words give the Commissioners considerable latitude as to printing, but it is quite unnecessary to take advantage of it. Nothing has been printed that was not either conducive to the efficient carrying on of the business of the Board, or indispensable for the proper execution of the measures recommended by the Committee of 1800. The volume called the "Agenda" comes under the former description; the Appendixes A. B. C. D. and E. under the latter.

The "Agenda" comprises heads of business to be transacted at the meetings of the Board, notices of motions, transcripts of important communications intended to be taken into consideration, and various similar matters connected with the current proceedings under the Commission.

In the month of June 1832, the Commissioners directed that these notices of Agenda, &c. should be printed and sent round to all the members of the Board before the meetings (Ev. 16.) The "Selections from the Ancient Records," mentioned in the Report as contained in this volume, have reference to business in contemplation, or about to be transacted.

The "Appendixes" relate to Rymer's Fœdera; a work with regard to which the Commissioners stand in a peculiar position. The Committee of 1800 recommended that the Fœdera, which is universally known to be a national publication of very great value, should be completed by a supplement composed of documents omitted by the original compilers, and should also be continued down to some subsequent period. (Report of Committee of 1800, p. 17). The Record Commission in existence in 1808 determined to publish a new edition of the whole work, incorporating the supplementary matter with a reprint of the old Fœdera, in 20 volumes, folio. The present Commissioners, disapproving of the scheme of reprinting documents which already exist in print in three different editions; considering also, that the new, or supplementary documents were too frequently of an unimportant character, and that the work was not proceeding with sufficient care, thought proper to suspend it, not however with any idea of its entire abandonment, but with the view of executing the scheme of a supplement and continuation in such manner as should accord with the character and importance of the original work. It has been the opinion of learned men in this country, for more than a century past, that many documents, which are most essential with a view to the completion of the Fœdera, but which are not to be found in our own archives, might and ought to be supplied from the counterparts or duplicates of them existing in foreign nations. (Ev. 2174.) The Commissioners considered that the present time, when the Continent is everywhere open to us, was peculiarly favourable to the execution of this design; and the secretary, with their concurrence, took upon himself the gratuitous labour of conducting and superintending the necessary researches. For that purpose, he opened a correspondence with learned men in various parts of Europe, and, by their means, has procured a mass of documents, which appear from the lists of their contents, to be of singular importance, and strictly within the character of the Fœdera. (Vid. App. to Report, p. 883.) The secretary has also taken advantage of his correspondence upon this subject to obtain notices of other manuscripts and unpublished documents existing in foreign libraries relating to the history or literature of the United Kingdom. Some documents of this last description which have been thus brought to light, are calculated to illustrate transactions of great interest, hitherto either not at all or very imperfectly known, and, in the opinion of several learned persons who have been permitted to inspect them, are highly worthy of publication. The most important of these documents are contained in the Appendixes referred to in the Report; but all those works, or rather parts of works, are at present unpublished and incomplete. The Report which is to be prefixed to them, and which will contain the history of the Fœdera, the results of these foreign searches, and the principles upon which the supplement and continuation of this great work ought to be conducted, whenever the Commissioners shall find themselves in a condition to proceed with it, is in preparation, but is not completed. The Committee did not think this circumstance sufficient to withdraw the Appendixes out of the pale of their criticism: but the Commissioners feel that until these works are complete, and the Report is presented to them, they ought not to enter into the details. They are satisfied that the inquiries were of a character calculated to add greatly to the value of that supplement to the Fœdera which was contemplated by the House of Commons, and they are not aware of any reasons for being dissatisfied with the results; but until the whole subject is before them, the Commissioners desire to abstain from the expression of any further opinion. One thing only seems necessary to be pointed out, which is, that the extension of the inquiry to matters not strictly connected with the Fœdera entailed no additional expense, beyond the sums paid for copies. The searches, which constitute the great expense, were necessary with reference to the Fœdera.

The Fœdera is a work which has done more for English history, and for the credit of the English name, than any other publication ever undertaken by our Government. Emanating from the enlarged and liberal policy of Lord Somers and Lord Halifax, in the reign of William and Mary, it was the first Record publication at the expense of the nation; the corner-stone of that foundation for historical truth which it is one object of the Commission on the Public Records to lay. The completion and continuation of such a work is a wise, an honourable, and a national undertaking, well worthy of the recommendation of the House of Commons, and of the Committee of 1800. The Commissioners, to whose superintendence this praiseworthy object has been committed, are anxious that it should not be defeated by any want of diligence in previous inquiry, or any imperfection in design, and are confident that their endeavours after completeness will neither be misconstrued nor undervalued, by those who properly estimate the importance of the original work.

The next division of the Report is numbered and entitled,

VII. General Administration of the Affairs of the Commission,

And is subdivided according to the subjects of—1. Finances; 2. Preparation of Works and Engagements of Sub-Commissioners, Editors, &c.; and, 3. Distribution [of the Publications of the Board]. It is the object of the Report in all these divisions to lead to the conclusion that the secretary has possessed "the entire control over the funds and disbursements of the Commission; of the preparation of its works; of the engagements, salaries and duties, of all persons in the employ of the Commission; and of the distribution of all its publications" (Report, p. xxxii); in other words, that the secretary has been everything, the Board nothing.

These results are arrived at in the following manner:—1. By keeping out of sight what are the proper duties of Commissioners; and what those of a secretary, in a Board constituted like the present; and, 2. By considerable inaccuracy in the statement of the degree of authority which has been exercised by the secretary.

Upon these several points the Commissioners observe, that the descriptions of persons to be employed in this service, together with their respective duties, are clearly indicated in the Commission. There are, 1. The Commissioners, who are to inquire into the state of the Record Offices, and to cause such of the matters recommended by the Report of 1800 to be done as they should judge fitting and proper. 2. The secretary, "for the purpose of aiding you (the Commissioners) in the execution of these premises;" and, 3. "Persons of ability, care and diligence," to be sub-commissioners, to methodize and make copies of Records; to cause them to be bound; to make calendars; and to superintend printing.

The Commissioners, it is obvious, are the directory and superintending power; the secretary and the sub-commissioners, the executive. The duties of the sub-commissioners are defined; those of the secretary are entirely undefined, and evidently comprise general assistance to the Commissioners, and the execution of all such matters as are necessary, or are directed to be done, and are not committed to sub-commissioners.

If a constitution of this description be unwise and improper, it will be well to rectify it. The Commissioners remark, that such is the constitution under which they have been acting, and that they have acted in accordance with it.

It is evident that when the Committee report, respecting a Commission constituted like the Record Commission, that the secretary has done various acts of authority; as, for instance, that he has written letters, engaged editors, settled remunerations, and such like; they do not go far enough, if they wish to infer blame or censure, either against him or against the Commissioners. They ought to have satisfied themselves that these acts were done without the sanction, in opposition to the directions, or independently of the authority, of the Board; that the secretary, in fact, acted per se, and not as the assistant to the Commissioners, or in obedience to directions, general or specific, received from them.

On this point, there are inconsistencies in the Report, and as it goes on, the Commissioners are sorry to observe in it no unequivocal tendency to exaggeration in the minds of the Committee. At one time the administration of the affairs of the Commission is represented to have vested "in great measure" in the hands of the secretary (Report, p. xxxii. line 10). A few lines afterwards his authority is declared to be "undefined, and almost unlimited" (ibid. line 18). At the next step it is enlarged into an "entire control" over all the business of the Commission (ibid. line 21); but is shortly afterwards reduced again to a mere assertion that certain duties are "too much left" (p. xxxv) to the secretary.

The Commissioners feel that anything of importance which is left entirely to the secretary, without a superintendence or direction, either general or special, on the part of the Board, would indeed be "too much left" to him. But, although it has escaped the notice of the Committee, in the preparation of their Report, it appears very clearly that such has not been the case.

An examination of some of the statements in the Report will elucidate this subject.

"The business of the Commission was nominally conducted at meetings or boards." (Report, p .xxxi).

The Commissioners decline noticing the insinuation contained in this passage, and merely deal with the fact, which should have been thus stated, "that portion of the business of the Commission which has rested upon the Commissioners has been conducted at meetings of Boards and committees." (App. p. 844).

"It appears," the Report proceeds, "from a return laid before your Committee, that in a period of nearly five years, 38 Boards were held, and only seven of the 25 Commissioners attended at more than half of these." (Report, p.xxxi).

It appears also, from the return alluded to, that, during the period referred to, that is, from March 1831 to December 1835, there have been 91 meetings of the Commission for the transaction of business; that is, 38 Boards and 53 Committees, and that no one of these meetings was ever unable to proceed in consequence of the non-attendance of members. (App. p. 844). Very much of the most important business of the Commission has been transacted at the numerous meetings of the committees of the Commissioners, but the Committee of the House of Commons seems to have regarded them as scarcely worthy of notice.

"These Boards," the Report goes on, "were called by the secretary, at his direction." (Report, p. xxxi).

Probably "direction" is here a misprint for "discretion." The evidence of the secretary upon this point is, that he never called Boards without the authority of the Commissioners. (Ev. 14).

After remarking, that the Boards seldom sat more than "two or three hours," and were occasionally interrupted by the official business of the quorum Commissioners, the Report proceeds:—

"The business to be done at these Boards was arranged by the secretary. The correspondence of the Commission was carried on by the secretary." (Rep. p. xxxii.)

These passages do not seem to require any remark, although they are stated as two of the "facts" from which it is inferred that the uncontrolled administration was left in the hands of the secretary.

"Letters of great importance were not laid before the Board," (p. xxxii).

The instances referred to in proof of this statement are:—1. A correspondence between the secretary and Mr. Vincent, the King's Remembrancer; and 2, a correspondence stated to have taken place between the secretary and Mr. Spearman, anterior to a visit paid by Mr. Protheroe to the Treasury, in some year which that gentleman, at the time of giving his evidence, did not recollect. (Ev. 1531).

The only portion of the first correspondence which could be considered of any importance was laid before the Board; but, by the advice of Lord Canterbury, who was acquainted with its contents, was permitted to pass without notice. A dispute about fees, to which it partly referred, was not thought deserving of any attention on the part of the Board at that time.

The existence of the second correspondence, which is described by Mr. Protheroe as having been of an angry character, between Mr. Spearman and the secretary, secretary, is denied altogether. (Ev. 7942, 8141, 8142). Your Lordships can easily satisfy yourselves whether any such correspondence took place.

The correspondence of the Record Board has been very voluminous, but principally upon subjects of such mere routine, that to have laid the whole of it before the Board could have answered no useful purpose. All letters sent out are of course copied (Ev. 127); those received are preserved; and both are at all times accessible.

"Notices and communications of the Commissioners themselves appear in the same way to have been liable to be suppressed, or only partially communicated to the Board," (page xxxii).

The particular instance upon which the Committee have founded this statement of what they conceive to have been the general rule was as follows:—

In June 1833, Mr. Protheroe, one of the Commissioners, transmitted to the secretary a document, which he termed a statement or synopsis, of the work of the Commission. A portion of that document being considered by the secretary to be of a character wholly foreign to the Agenda, he did not think he should do right in having it printed without the authority of the Board. That portion was therefore omitted by the secretary; and the fact of its omission, and the reasons for it, formed the subject of a correspondence between the secretary and Mr. Protheroe, anterior to the preparation of the Agenda. At the next meeting of the Board, on the 22d June 1833, the whole transaction was submitted to them, and the omitted portion was laid before them in manuscript. The following entry upon the subject is upon the minutes:—

"Synopsis of the business of the present Commission:—Produced a paper drawn up by Mr. Protheroe, part only of which is printed in the notes of business. Produced a note from Mr. Protheroe on the secretary's omission of part of his synopsis. The Speaker and Mr. Wynn produced letters from Mr. Protheroe. The omitted part of the said synopsis was laid before the Board."

The Board thought that the secretary had exercised a proper discretion in omitting the passage in question (Evid. 1985), and made no order upon the subject.

The recollection of Mr. Protheroe as to this "suppression," appears to have been anything but clear. In his evidence of the 7th of March, it is represented that a particular passage only was omitted (Evid. 1325), which was the fact; but, in his subsequent evidence of the 16th of March, he stated, that the document was omitted altogether; in fact, suppressed (Evid. 1978—1980). He is equally incorrect in his assertion (Evid. 1325), that the passage was expunged, and the only notice he received of the omission was the seeing his letter so mutilated in the Agenda. The Agenda was sent to Mr. Protheroe on the 18th or 19th of June; and there are letters in existence from him to the secretary, dated on the 15th and 17th of June, both referring to the omission as having then been determined upon, and the earlier of these letters evidently following some previous communication, probably verbal, upon the same subject. These letters would have been given in evidence before the Committee, but for some circumstances relating to the manner in which the inquiry was terminated, which will be mentioned hereafter.

Having from these circumstances come to the conclusion, that, "in fact the administration of the affairs of the Commission appears, in great measure, to have vested in the hands of the secretary, consulting, occasionally, two or three of the Commissioners" (Report, p. xxxii), the Committee proceed to exemplify the secretary's "entire control," first over the "finances of the Commission."

The subjects here dwelt upon are—

1. The manner in which the Accounts of the Commission have been kept.
2. The Expenditure upon the purchase of Books.
3. The Institution of a School for Transcribers.
4. The Debt owing by the Commission.

And 5. The improbability of the adoption of the improved System of keeping the Accounts of the Commission, recommended by the Report of the Committee of Finance, drawn up by the Right Honourable the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

1. The Accounts of the Commission.—"Some accounts have been kept by the present secretary, but even these are loose and unsatisfactory." (Report, p. xxxii).

The Committee do not refer to any evidence in support of this statement, which, from its general character, is capable of great latitude of construction, and may be interpreted in such manner as to do very great injustice to the secretary. If it be meant to be insinuated that there is any pecuniary deficiency in the accounts; that there has been personal or private appropriation of the funds entrusted to the Commission; in one word, that there has been any peculation, the fact is indignantly denied.

The "some accounts which have been kept by the present secretary," are thus described in the Report of the Committee of Finance. (Appendix to Report, p. 830.) "The present accounts are entered in two books, into which all entries of disbursements are made chronologically; the one a general account, the other a petty cash account; the distinction between these two accounts is merely regulated by the fact, whether the payments are made by the secretary, or by his clerk; in the latter case, the sums issued are placed to the account of petty cash: all disbursements are made either by the secretary or his clerk. The accounts are submitted to auditors, named by the Commissioners from their own body; and when considered, are signed by them, after an inspection of the vouchers. The authority for the payment is attested by a quorum Commissioner; and the whole are biennially rendered to the Treasury auditors, who report thereon."

The Committee of Finance very properly reported, that this "entire system of disbursement and of account" was "capable of considerable improvement" (Ibid. p. 830); and they laid before the Board a scheme for their future management, similar in kind to that by which the pecuniary affairs of the British Museum are regulated.

It is evident that the fault found with the accounts by the committee of finance relates to the manner in which they had been kept. That that was imperfect is admitted on all hands, and by no one more openly than by the secretary. (Vid. Appendix to Report, p. 828). If the words "loose and unsatisfactory" refer merely to this imperfect system of account-keeping, the Commissioners and the Committee are agreed; if they mean anything more, the Commissioners would refer to the fact, that the accounts have passed through three ordeals: the audit by the Commissioners, the Treasury audit, and the investigation by the Committee; and that no deficiency or malversation has been brought to light by any of them.

It is but justice to the secretary to point out, that this imperfect mode of keeping the accounts originated in the difficulties with which the Commission has been at all times encumbered, by its inheritance of a large debt from the former Board; and, that the same difficulties which occasioned the confusion in the first instance have prevented the earlier adoption of a better system, to which the secretary has long been favourable. (Ev. 7941. 8110. App. p, 828. 830).

2. The Purchase of Books.—"It appears that, without any authority from the Commission, a large library of what the secretary calls Palæographical books has been purchased at a cost of 1,576 l. 13*s.* 3*d.* Some books, purchased at former times, have been sold or exchanged; the existing library is kept at the secretary's chambers, in New Boswell-court. Whether the books were necessary or not, and whether they have been well or ill selected, it appears to Your Committee that an expense of this magnitude should not have been incurred without the knowledge of the Commission." (Report, p. xxxiii).

There is here a considerable deal of fallacy. That which has been a gradual expenditure, spreading over several years, is represented in the total as if it were one item; and inferences are then drawn as to the impropriety of so large an expenditure without a special authority: for that may be presumed to be the substantial meaning of the passage. If the same course were to be adopted with respect to the aggregate sum which has been paid for all the reams of paper purchased, or all the skins of parchment used, the result would be precisely the same, and yet it would scarcely be contended that a special authority would be necessary in those instances. Why then in the instance of books? They are equally necessary for the business of the Commission. It is admitted, in the passage quoted above, that books were purchased "at former times," that is, under the old commission; they were found necessary then; they continue to be be necessary now. But it is stated that "it does not appear that these books were generally made useful for the purposes of the Commission." The sentence is somewhat ambiguous; but whatever its meaning be, it is a proof of the incomplete view taken of the business of the Commission by the Committee. The majority of the books, it appears by the evidence, were purchased with a view to special and most important objects. (Ev. 1281. 3141.) They were used, and continue to be useful, for those objects; and the persons engaged upon them have made, and make use of them. That they are not useful for persons engaged upon other objects, and would, therefore, not be used by them, is evident. Gentlemen who are editing the Close Rolls, or calendaring the Miscellaneous Records at the Tower, or arranging the Augmentation Office, would not, of course, find any use in books which might, nevertheless, be altogether indispensable with a view to other purposes. This is clearly illustrated by an instance under the old Commission, which appears in the Appendix to the Report, p. 807. It is there evident that the old Commission got together a collection of the several editions of the Statutes. Without perpetual reference to those works, they could never have properly published that noble edition of the Statutes which has conferred so much credit upon them and upon the nation. Would it have been reasonable to have found fault with this collection, because the editors of the Valor, or the Taxatio, or the Testa de Neville, or the Rotuli Scotiæ, had never had occasion to refer to them, and therefore they could not be said to be "generally" useful for the purposes of the Commission?

But it is said in the Report, that "Mr. Hardy, Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Cole state, that they have been put to expense in the purchase of books needed by them in the execution of the duties assigned them by the Commission; copies of which books appear to have been all the while existing in the library of the Commission." (Report, p. xxxiii.)

There is no such statement in the evidence of Mr. Hardy. (Evidence, 3683.) It merely appears that he had the use of some books belonging to the Commission, and that he bought others which he does not state to have been in the possession of the Commission.

Mr. Stevenson's evidence goes this length: That he had been several times in the library, had looked along the shelves, and had "frequently borrowed" volumes from it, "chiefly for the pursuit of his own private investigations," but that he had laid out his own money in furnishing himself with necessary books to execute a certain work for the Commission in a creditable manner. (Evidence, 3858 to 3864.) He then gave an enumeration of various bulky works purchased for that purpose (Evidence, 3865); and, being asked if he did not know that "copies of those books" were existing in the library of the Commission? He replied, that he was not aware of the fact. This is indeed true to the very letter. Aware he could not be; for, of the eight different works enumerated by him, only two, the Fœdera and L'Art de vérifier les Dates, exist in the Commission Library, and those are works of such bulk, and of such constant reference for a variety of purposes, that it is quite impossible for any one to have them away from the library in such manner as Mr. Stevenson must have had, to have enabled him to carry on a work upon which he has been engaged from the middle of 1834 up to the present time. It was no doubt upon this ground, that when Mr. Stevenson represented to the secretary that he was under the necessity of procuring L'Art de vérifier les Dates, the secretary consented to its being placed to the account of the Commission. (Evidence, 3866.)

Mr. Cole admits that the secretary "purchased about 10 l. worth of books for the express use of the Augmentation Office" (Ev. 4782); and when he adds, that "it was impossible to get any knowledge of what books were in the Commission's library," his evidence is at variance with that of Mr. Stevenson.

It is upon this evidence that the Committee have reported that the books are not generally made useful for the purposes of the Commission; and that copies of the works purchased by the witnesses referred to, "appear to have been all the while existing in the library of the Commission."

But the most important point with respect to the library is, the charge that it was purchased "without any authority," and that the expense was, in fact, incurred "without the knowledge of the Commission."

That there was a direct authority for every purchase is not contended, any more than that there was a direct authority for the purchase of pens, paper or parchment. They are all necessaries, the purchase of which must be a matter of discretion with some one, and that discretion has been in the Record Commission, and is in every other similar body, left in the hands of the secretary, subject to the control of the Commissioners upon the auditing of his accounts. Those audits occurred in the years 1833, 1834 and 1835 (Evidence, 7927), and at every one of those periods the auditors were made acquainted with the sums expended upon books up to the time of the audit; how then is it possible that the expense could have been incurred "without the knowledge of the Commission?" After the 6th July 1833, the date of the first audit, there is evidently not the slightest foundation for the charge.

The Report indeed states, that "Mr. Protheroe informed your Committee that he for the first time became acquainted with the large outlay which was being made for the Library and the Foreign collections, while auditing the accounts; and it seems it was in this way also that Mr. Hallam got any information on these points" (Report, p. xxxii); but this is clearly to be understood with reference to the amount only, and not to the fact of the outlay.

3. The School of Transcribers.—There is a statement in the Appendix (p. 743), which satisfactorily explains everything connected with this subject. It appears, from the Minute of the proceedings of the Committee, on the 3d August 1836 (p. xliv), that the Appendix was not printed until after the Report had been prepared. This circumstance may probably account for the fact that this, and many other subjects, which might have been elucidated by the papers contained in the Appendix, have been erroneously treated in the Report.

4. The Debt owing by the Commission.—The Commission "inherited from its predecessors," as is remarked in the Report (p. xxxiii), a debt of between 15,000 l. and 16,000 l. It also inherited certain incomplete works, which had been begun upon a very expensive scale, and which it was necessary to carry on to a partial or actual completion. This latter portion of the inheritance of the Commission has been described in the Returns to Parliament, and in the Evidence, under the title of "Liabilities." The total amount of the debts and liabilities, conjoined, was 25,019 l. 8 s. 2 d. (Appendix to Report, p. 775), independent of a debt owing by the Board in respect of their operations in Scotland (Ev. 2400). Of this sum 20,364 l. 14 s. 8 d. has been paid off, leaving a balance of 4,654 l. 13 s. 4 d., and the Scotch debt due upon account of the old Commission. The payment of the 20,364 l. 14 s. 8 d., on account of the old Commission, occasioned the incurring of a new debt by the present Board.

It is obvious that this debt stood in the place of the debt and liabilities of the old Commission; and, but for them, would never have existed. The present Commission, in fact, merely transferred the old existing debt and liabilities from the persons to whom they were originally payable to others.

Parliament having been in ignorance of the debt contracted by the old Commission, and having consequently made grants to the present Commissioners with a view to the continued prosecution of the objects for which the Commission was issued, it may be doubted how far the Commissioners would have been justified in a total suspension of their proceedings for a number of years sufficient to have enabled them to have paid off all the prior incumbrances upon the Commission. It is indeed represented in the Report that that was the course adopted by the Commissioners, but the representation is inaccurate. The Commissioners, during the first two years of their existence, did suspend all the works formerly in progress, for the purpose of inquiry into their nature and propriety, and, during the period of that suspension, a portion of the debt pressing upon the Commission was discharged; but it will be seen by the Return to Parliament, printed in the Appendix (p. 755, 760), that within the same two years the Commission had made progress towards the publication of the Close Rolls, in the foreign searches for the Fœdera, and in various other works which had originated with them. It is clear, therefore, that the progress made in payment of the old debt, during those two years, must have been partly effected by contracting a new debt in its stead; or rather, as before stated, by the transfer of the existing debt from one set of persons to another.

The statements in the Report upon this subject seem to have been founded upon a partial and imperfect apprehension of the Evidence given by the Secretary. Thus it is asserted, "in fact, inasmuch as it is stated, that the greater part part of the old debt had been paid off in the year 1832, it may be said that the greater part of the existing debt of near 24,000 l. has been incurred within the last four years." (Report, p. xxxiii.) No authority is quoted for this statement, but it is clearly founded upon the Evidence, 2534, and 2535; in the former of which the Secretary, after referring to the payment of the old debt, adds, "by so doing we necessarily incurred another debt for carrying on our own operations." This is overlooked in all that portion of the Report which refers to this subject.

5. The Improbability of the Adoption by the Commissioners of the Improved System of Account-keeping recommended by the Report of the Committee of Finance.

"The Committee," it is stated in the Report (p. xxxiv), "feels itself bound in justice to remark, that an improved system was suggested in January last, by the present Chancellor of the Exchequer, and its adoption determined on by the Board, but it has not yet been adopted; and there is too much reason to fear that the establishment and maintenance of the improved system, first proposed to be adopted in the sixth year of the duration of the new Commission, depends on nothing but the continued application of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who directed his attention to a subject which had escaped the notice of his predecessors."

The facts furnish the best reply to this singular passage.

It is stated in the Report of the Committee of Finance, which contains the improved system suggested by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, that "some difficulties will be found to exist, and to impede the immediate execution of these necessary changes, in consequence of the heavy debt." (Appendix, Report, p. 830.)

That Report was made in January 1836, when the Board was without funds, and was carrying on its operations solely by means of advances from the bankers. That state of things continued up to the month of November last. During all that time, therefore, the difficulties which the Committee thought would impede the immediate execution of their plan continued in full operation.

On the 6th July 1836, the secretary was interrogated upon this subject before the Committee, and gave the following answers:

"7937. Is that plan now in operation?—All those parts of the plan that can be adopted have been adopted; but the most important parts are impracticable, by reason of the existence of the debt.

"7938. Those parts which are practicable, how long have they been in operation?—Ever since the Report was made, which was in January last."

As soon as any portion of the last Parliamentary grant came to the hands of the Commissioners, the new plan was adopted to the very letter; and before the Report of the Committee was published, 5,000 l. had been paid away in the mode prescribed by the Committee of Finance, and the expenditure of that sum made the subject of a regular analytical account, arranged exactly in the manner recommended by the Committee.

Nor is this all that has been done. The secretary has introduced a further improvement, by inserting in the Agenda a notice of every cheque proposed to be drawn, with its amount, and the name of the person to whom it is to be made payable. In this manner all the members of the Commission, whether they attend the Board or not, are made acquainted with the particulars of every intended payment.

These are the several circumstances from which the Committee has inferred that the secretary possesses an "entire control over the funds and disbursements of the Commission."

The next section relates to the "entire control" possessed by the secretary over the "preparation of works and engagements of sub-commissioners, editors, &c." (Report, p. xxxiv.)

It opens thus: "The choice of works for publication, the selection of editors and the regulation of the cost at which the works were to be produced, appears to have been left in great measure to the secretary. He himself states, that it was left to himself, with Lord Brougham and Mr. Bellenden Ker." (Report, ibid., with a marginal reference to Evidence, 1896.)

This sentence, with the reference annexed to it, implies that the secretary had stated in his evidence, that

The choice of works for publication,
The selection of editors, and
The regulation of the cost of works, have been left to him and to two of the Commissioners.

The passage in the secretary's evidence referred to is too long to quote (Ev. 1896), but the following is its substance:

He was asked, "Are estimates of the works generally submitted to the Board before they are undertaken?" His reply was, that difficulty had been experienced in procuring exact estimates. That, with respect to the expensive works left unfinished by the former Commissioners, estimates had been found indispensable; but that the present Board, having adopted as a general rule that they would not undertake any publication which could not be terminated in a reasonable time and at a moderate expense, "no very formal estimate" was necessary as to such publications, especially "as Lord Brougham, and Mr. Bellenden Ker and the secretary were, fortunately or unfortunately, tolerably conversant with the subject," that is, with the expense of paper and print.

This subject was again resumed, and a subsequent examination of the secretary not merely leaves this assertion in the Report without a colourable foundation, but places it in direct opposition to the clearest evidence. On the 5th July, the secretary was appealed to for further explanation of the passage above, quoted from No. 1896, and it appears clearly in his replies to the questions of Sir Robert Inglis and of the Chairman, that such estimates of the expenses of publications as were sufficient, considering that certain members of the Board are familiar with the subject, have been always prepared, and have invariably turned out to be correct. (Ev. 7746, 7, 8, 9) There is also a statement in the Appendix (p. 748), in which it appears that "no 'work,' or 'book,' has been directed to be undertaken or printed, without the Board being apprised, within a few pounds, what would be the expense thereof."

All this has entirely escaped the notice of the Committee when preparing their Report.

"The editors appear to have been engaged, and the works commenced, without its (the Board's) sanction." (Report, p. xxxiv.)

Here are two points:

1. As to the Engagement of Editors without the Sanction of the Board.

No reference to any authority upon this subject is given in the Report; but in the evidence of the secretary may be found the following passages:

"47. These editors are not engaged by the Board, are they?—They are all engaged with the sanction of the Board.

"48. Are they engaged directly by the Board or by yourself?—By myself generally. I commonly make the arrangement with them, subject to the sanction of the Board.

"49. Do you make a formal communication to them of the arrangement as sanctioned by the Board?—In some instances, whenever it has been required, the order of the Board has been transmitted to them; sometimes the communication has been by word of mouth, and sometimes by a common note or letter."

It seems unnecessary to add anything to these extracts.

2. As to the Commencement of Works without the Sanction of the Board.

This point is illustrated by some passages in the Report, which, although of considerable length, it is absolutely necessary to quote: "Orders of the Board for the different publications were produced before your Committee, and it is said by the secretary, that nothing but specimens had been printed before these were obtained. It appears, however, from the slightest comparison of the Return from the King's printer, given in the Appendix, with the orders of the Board relating to printing and publishing, also given there, that the secretary was mistaken in this point, and that some volumes or parts of volumes were worked off long before any order for their commencement had been obtained. Thus the order for the publication of Sir Henry Ellis's Introduction to Domesday Book bears date on 9th March 1833, but the first sheets for this work appear to have been printed off in the preceding May. The order for the the engaging Sir Harris Nicolas to proceed with the printing of the Privy Council Books bears date 1st June 1833; the King's printer's Return shows that part of the work had been printed off on the 13th January 1833." (Report, p. xxxiv.)

Perhaps there is no passage in the Report more calculated to mislead than this. Its pretence of correcting the "mistake" of the secretary, its appeals to documents, its reference to dates, and its appearance of extreme accuracy, are imposing circumstances; it is, nevertheless, a misconception or error from beginning to end.

1. The Introduction to Domesday Book.

The Return of the King's printer, mentioned in the extract just quoted from the Report, is intituled "A Return showing the Titles of all Works, &c. printed since March 1831, whether completed or in progress, including Specimens of Works, the number of copies of each Book or Specimen of Work printed, the exact date when such Work or volume of Work was first put into type, &c. &c." (App. to Report, p. 816.)

It seems likely from the context, that the word "volume" upon the last occasion of its occurrence is a mistake for "specimen," but it is not a matter of much importance.

In the Return itself there is a column of dates, which it is evident, from the words just quoted from the heading of the Return, contains the several dates when the work or volume, or specimen of work was first put into type; and when, whatever was first put into type, whether a settled portion of the work, or merely a specimen, was worked off; that is, when it had been corrected, revised, finally settled and printed. Now, with respect to the Introduction to Domesday, the dates are { "21 April 1832, 5 May ——." } that is, whatever was first put into type, whether the work or a specimen, was begun on the former of those days and finished on the latter. It is evident this cannot refer to the work itself, which is in two volumes 8vo., and contains a great deal of difficult typographical matter. Fourteen days is a period within which very little progress could be made in such a work. These dates must and can only refer to the first or specimen sheet.

The order of the Board of the 9th March 1833 is in the following words:— "New edition of the General Introduction to Domesday Book, &c., by Sir Henry Ellis, 2 vols. 8vo. Publication of this work ordered." (App. to Report, p. 885.) Here the work is evidently complete. This is not, as is left to be inferred in the Report, an order for the commencement of the work, but for the last, the final act of publication. That it is so, is proved by the volumes themselves, which bear date in 1833, and contain a proof that they were published before the 10th July in that year, in the List of the Commissioners, in which the name of Lord Dover occurs undistinguished by that peculiar type which is used to indicate the members of the Commission who are deceased.

But the extracts from the minute book, given in the Appendix (p. 855), contain ample proof that the work was begun and progressing, with the sanction of the Board, before the 23d June 1832. On that day it appears that the secretary produced to the Board "a letter from Mr. Ellis, relative to the reprint of the Introduction to Domesday Book." The Board "ordered, that the secretary do desire Mr. Ellis also to prepare a list of all the possessors of lands named in Domesday who were also possessors in the time of Edward the Confessor." (App. p. 855.) This list is contained in the work as published in 1833.

The whole circumstances connected with the publication of this work are stated in the evidence of the secretary (1876—1882); and it appears there very evidently, that an order of the Board was made for its commencement as well as for its publication, which has been indeed the usual course.

If any additional proof were wanting, that the Introduction and Indexes to Domesday were prepared and printed with the knowledge and approbation of the Board, it might be added, that there is still extant a correspondence on the execution of the work between Mr. Ellis and one of the Commissioners, who was directed to superintend its progress. This correspondence began in July 1832, and continued to March 1833. Many communications took place, and 15 letters from Mr. Ellis are still preserved.

2. The Privy Council Books.

The Report represents that part of this work was printed off on the 13th January 1833, the order of the Board not having been obtained until the following 1st June.

To refute the fallacy of this representation, it is only necessary to state the real facts of the case.

It appears, in the King's printer's Return, that something connected with this work, either a part of the work itself or a specimen, was first put in type on the 13th November 1832, and printed off on the following 13th January.

Amongst the extracts from the minutes at p. 856, there is one of a Board held on the 1st June 1833, in which, after referring to the specimen put into type by the King's printer, it is stated that it was "ordered" that Sir Harris Nicolas be authorized to proceed with the printing of the work under the direction of the Board.

In the evidence of the secretary (1474, and p. 111), the history of the whole transaction is fully detailed; and it appears from an explanatory letter written by Mr. Macdonald of the King's printing office, and which is there quoted, that the matter put in type in November 1832 was a mere specimen, which was afterwards abandoned. That another specimen was sent to Sir Harris Nicolas on the 24th March 1833, which was ultimately adopted; and that the secretary subsequently told Mr. Macdonald that the work was not then to be urged on, because the order of the Board had not been obtained.

The Report does not contain one word of reference to this explanation of Mr. Macdonald.

The next point raised in the Report relates to the propriety of appointing editors instead of sub-commissioners. The former are appointed to perform a specific work, and have no engagement beyond the discharge of that work; the latter are considered to be permanently retained by the Commissioners. When a particular work is to be published, it seems a point of little importance whether the person who superintends the publication is called sub-commissioner or editor. In neither case can he be dismissed from the service of the Board by its secretary. The utmost authority the secretary can exercise, is to suspend the operations going on, and to report his reasons for so doing to the Board at its first meeting.

The nature of the engagements made with editors is the next subject alluded to, and is stated to have generally been "most informal and loose." (Report, p. xxxiv.) Sir Harris Nicolas obtained, with "the utmost difficulty," a written agreement, or rather memorandum of the roughest kind; "the other editors were engaged, their payments, and the task they were to perform for it, specified by the secretary, either by word of mouth or in a note, unaccompanied with any order of the Board." (Report, ibid.)

The "difficulty" to which Sir Harris Nicolas alluded is altogether denied by the secretary.

The terms of Sir Harris Nicolas's engagement were the subject of a written correspondence between him and the secretary. They were ultimately settled at a meeting between them, after the order of the Board had been obtained for proceeding with the work which Sir Harris was to edit. At that meeting Sir Harris Nicolas put upon paper, in pencil, a note of the sum he was to receive, to which the secretary, at his request, and upon the instant, put his initials. There had been some little discussion between them, but not of an unfriendly character, before the terms were settled. There was no difficulty in obtaining the signature to the memorandum after the settlement had taken place.

Engagements with literary labourers are, and must necessarily be, of a peculiar character; and, although the works published under the Commission do not share in all the uncertainties connected with those which are more entirely dependent upon the exertion of original powers of mind, they are, on the other hand, attended with difficulties of a kind peculiar to themselves. Much of the labour of a Record editor is of a very uninviting and unstimulating character; it is performed in his own study, where he is entirely independent of control; it is unrewarded by any immediate fame; and, as far as the public are concerned, is, according to the expression of Sir F. Palgrave, performed "in the dark." Time is expended; considerable literary powers, and accurate knowledge of a peculiar kind, are exerted; and, after all, the world world can probably perceive little more than the settlement of a date, the correction of an erroneous reading, or the determination of a doubtful contraction.

Shortly after the issuing of the Commission, the Commissioners applied themselves to this subject with the view of laying down some principles for their future guidance. They endeavoured to determine what sum per annum constitutes, in ordinary cases, an adequate remuneration for labours of this description, and in what manner the payment of that remuneration could be contrived, so as to be at once a stimulus to exertion, and a check upon hasty and inconsiderate publication, a security both against idleness and carelessness.

After considering what was the fair average return which the possessor of the scholar-like acquirements indispensable in a Record editor could command, if his talents were exerted independently of the Commission, the Commissioners determined that 450*l.* per annum was the maximum of remuneration which, in ordinary cases, they would pay; and that three octavo volumes was a reasonable quantity of literary work to be executed within the same period. (Appendix to Report, p. 746.)

Upon this foundation the subsequent arrangements with editors and sub-commissioners have been almost invariably framed. An octavo volume has been considered as tantamount to four months in time, and to 150*l.* in money. The secretary, who has been the ordinary medium of communication between the Commissioners and the intended editors, has acted upon these well-known rules, and, in most cases, they have been found to be sufficient guides. "Wherever, however, the principles and rules previously adopted and prescribed by the Commissioners did not precisely apply to the new engagement which it was in contemplation to make, the matter has not only invariably been brought before the Board, and its direction been obtained, but a very full entry of what passed has been made upon the minutes of the proceedings." (App. to Report, p. 746.) The passage just quoted is followed by several illustrative instances.

Three facts clearly result from this mode of conducting the proceedings of the Commission, all of them totally at variance with the statements in the Report.

1. That in all ordinary cases the Commissioners must have been perfectly cognizant of the remuneration of the editors, inasmuch as it was settled upon the principles above mentioned.

2. In extraordinary cases they must have been equally cognizant of it, for it was then specially brought before them.

3. Neither in the one description of cases, nor in the other, does it appear that the matter was under the "entire control" of the secretary.

But, it may be asked, if these things were so clearly settled, how comes it that there have been so many disputes "between Mr. Cooper and most of the editors?" How has it arisen that the claims of no less than four of these gentlemen are recommended by the Committee to the consideration of the Treasury?

The passages in the Report relating to this subject are very indeterminate, but probably, when taken in connexion with the marginal reference to the evidence of Messrs. Illingworth, Holbrooke, Cole and Hardy, the meaning is, that the cases of all those gentlemen are alluded to. (Report, p. xxxiv.)

Mr. Illingworth is an elderly gentleman who has had much experience in Records. Upon the request of one of the Commissioners, he favoured the Commission, in the year 1831, with some observations upon abuses then supposed by him to be existing in the record offices, for which observations the Commissioners were certainly much obliged to him. He was never paid anything for this service, which was esteemed a voluntary labour. He never claimed anything from the Commissioners for it, nor does it appear that he preferred any such claim before the Committee. There was at one time a desire of retaining him in the employment of the present Board, but it was defeated by his own unreasonable expectations upon the subject of income, and by the difficulty of obtaining a satisfactory return of service from a gentleman whose advanced age and past services render him rather a subject for a pension than a salary. It is clear that his case does not turn upon the "entire control" of the secretary over the editors; nor can he be said to be comprehended under "most of the editors," although his name serves to swell the list.

Mr. Holbrooke has never been employed by the present Board, nor has he ever made any claim upon them. Living at Richmond, he received latterly under the old Board 300*l.* per annum for correcting the proof sheets of the Fœdera. That work being suspended, the service came to an end.

Mr. Cole was never directly employed by the Board as an editor, although, with the knowledge of the Board, he performed, under the direction of the secretary, certain editorial services. The dispute with him turned upon a claim of reward for extraordinary services, principally performed in the arrangement of the Records of the Augmentation Office, after the fire at the House of Lords, upon which occasion they were removed to St. Margaret's Church. It is obvious that services dependent upon such an unforeseen calamity could never be made the subject of previous bargain. Mr. Cole's case, therefore, even if he is entitled to range amongst the "editors," is not one which affects the question of "entire control." If it has any reference to that question, it proves the reverse of what is asserted, for Mr. Cole's claim was not settled by the secretary, but by a committee of Commissioners specially appointed for that purpose, and before whom Mr. Chadwick attended, as the friend and adviser of Mr. Cole.

Mr. Hardy is the only editor directly employed by the Board with whom there has occurred any dispute. This gentleman had committed to him the publication of a very extensive series of works, the expensive character of which rendered it absolutely necessary, with a view to the state of the funds of the Commission, that they should be carried on cautiously, and in such manner that they might not seriously increase the existing debt. With that view the Board, at the same time that they directed the publication of the first of these works, added to the order that it was to proceed under the direction of the secretary. In a subsequent order, relating to other works comprised in the same series, the matter is more clearly stated, thus: "The advance of the printing to be regulated by the amount of the funds that may be placed at the disposal of the Board, and the expense of the other necessary operations now carrying on." Some of Mr. Hardy's publications were in folio, a size not adopted with respect to any others of the works of the present Board, The principles of remuneration before mentioned applied only to octavo volumes; with respect to the folios, it therefore became necessary to make a new arrangement, which was settled at 2*l.* 2*s.* per sheet, a mode of calculation peculiarly suited to the case of Mr. Hardy, whose works, it will have been observed, were liable to be stopped at any time when the funds of the Commission were thought to be insufficient to support their expense. By the substitution of a payment per sheet, instead of per volume, Mr. Hardy, in case of the suspension of his works, was ensured a recompense for as much as he had done. In the instance of octavo volumes, no extra payment is made for prefaces, although in some instances they extend to a very considerable length. Mr. Hardy having contributed a preface to one of his folio works, claimed sixty guineas as a payment for it. The secretary demurred, alleging the general rule, and also that Mr. Hardy had not claimed payment for a preface to a folio work previously edited by him. Mr. Hardy, admitting the rule as to octavos, insisted that he had not been apprised by the secretary that it was to extend to all folios. Upon this question there was an appeal to the Board, who confirmed the rule for the future, but determined that Mr. Hardy, if he insisted upon it, should be paid for the preface in question.

This is the only real case of disagreement between the secretary and the editors, and certainly furnishes a singular instance of the "entire control" which is complained of. The Commissioners determined in favour of Mr. Hardy's claim, in opposition to the secretary.

With respect to all these personal cases, which the Committee report that it is advisable the Treasury should investigate, the Commissioners remark, that if your Lordships coincide in that opinion of the Committee, they will transmit to your Lordships further detailed observations upon all of them; together with a statement of the proceedings of the committee of the Commissioners appointed to investigate the claims of Mr. Cole and Mr. Hardy. The object of the present observations upon those claims is, to show that there is nothing in them to warrant the statements in the Report as to the "entire control" of the secretary; the general irregularity in the agreements with the editors; and the consequent disputes between the secretary and "most" of those gentlemen.

There

There is the most decided inaccuracy in the subsequent portion of this section: especially as to the Board having determined that certain gentlemen "were clerks liable to receive their dismissal at the pleasure of Mr. Cooper." (Report, p. xxxv.) Nothing can be more unlike the fact. All the editors are at least co-equal with the secretary. They are appointed by the Commissioners; they can be displaced only by the Commissioners. Even as to clerks and workmen, although the secretary has possessed the power of dismissal, it was a power which could only be exercised subject to an immediate appeal to the Board. The Report, in this portion of it, mixes up the cases of Mr. Hardy and Mr. Cole, as if they were identically the same. No two instances can be more clearly distinguishable. Mr. Hardy was an editor; his works have been suspended in consequence of the funds of the Commission being insufficient to remunerate his vigorous exertions in transcribing and printing; but Mr. Hardy has not been dismissed. If the Board were to order that the suspended works should be resumed without giving any new directions as to the editorship, they would proceed as of course, in the same manner and under the same control as before. Mr. Hardy, therefore, it is repeated, is not dismissed. Mr. Cole was in a different position. He had been for several years a clerk to Sir Francis Palgrave, at a gradually increasing salary, which ultimately amounted to 125 l. per annum. He entered into the service of the Commission as a similar clerk under the secretary, at 150 l. per annum, with liberty to earn additional emolument by devoting his evenings to transcription. The extravagance of his demand of 268 l. 16 s. for his extra labour in the arrangement of the Augmentation Office, after the fire, led to disputes which terminated in his dismissal. He appealed to the Board, who awarded him 84 l.; and confirmed his discharge. It is obvious that this case is essentially different from Mr. Hardy's; and yet, in the Report, they are put upon the same footing, and are, unitedly, made the foundation for a high-flown passage respecting the impropriety of placing "a number of individuals of education and sensitive feelings in a situation of unseemly dependence upon an individual," who is stated to be "a person irresponsible to the public;" an assertion which will be noticed hereafter.

It must have appeared, from the facts which have been already stated, that the representation with which this section concludes, namely, "that publications are liable to be undertaken and suspended, appointments made and revoked, and salaries given and taken away, at his (the secretary's) discretion, and without sufficient cognizance on the part of the Board," is not supported by the fact.

The numerous inaccuracies of the Report might be still further exposed by following it minutely passage by passage; but the length to which these observations have already extended, and the many assertions in the Report which still remain to be noticed, make it absolutely necessary to desist from such a course.

The Commissioners are of opinion that they have already stated enough to convince your Lordships that the Report, in its main charges, is totally unsupported by the facts as they appear in the Evidence and in the Appendix; which latter, it has been before remarked, was not printed, and consequently was not seen by the Members of the Committee generally, until after the Report had been agreed to. (Report, p. xliv.)

With this impression the Commissioners will abstain from this running commentary upon the Report, and confine their remaining observations to some few of its leading assertions. It must, however, be understood, that it is solely the inconvenient length of the details which induces the adoption of this course. There is no single charge in the Report that the Commissioners are not confident can be most satisfactorily answered; and if anything should occur to your Lordships as deserving more attention than the Commissioners have bestowed upon it, they desire to make it the subject of a further communication to your Lordships.

The last subject alluded to in this branch of the Report, is "the distribution of the works of the Commission;" and the charge here, as in the other cases, is that the distribution was under the "entire control" of the secretary.

It appears, however, in the Report (page xxxv), that there was "a committee of the Commission appointed to superintend" this portion of the business of the Commission. The minute books produced to the Committee contained full minutes of the proceedings of this committee of the Commissioners, under whose authority the distribution has been enlarged from 161 to 511. On the 22d March 1834, 10 applications were granted; on the 7th April 1834, 24; on the 16th July 1834, 128; and so on at various other meetings of the committee up to the present time. All these grants were made under the guidance of certain principles of distribution which the committee had agreed upon.

Occasionally, when applications have been of a doubtful character, the secretary has been directed by the Board to make further inquiry respecting them, and to grant or refuse them, as the repositories should turn out to be within the principles of distribution laid down by the committee or not; reporting to the next Board what he had done. It was under an order of this description, and upon the recommendation of one of the Secretaries of State, that the works were sent to the Commissioners of the Bedford Level.

Under this head of the Report there is presented to the attention of the House what is termed "a singular proof" "of the uncontrolled power vested in Mr. Cooper over the distribution of the publications." (p. xxxvi.)

The substance of the statement is, that copies of the works of the Board were, during the sitting of the Committee, sent as presents to various gentlemen, who were called or intended to be called on behalf of the Commission, as witnesses before the Committee; and that this was done on the sole authority of the secretary, without any order of the Board.

It appears in the Evidence (6842—6857), that at the first meeting of the Board of Commissioners after the appointment of the Committee, their attention was drawn to that circumstance, and general directions were given to the secretary that he was to adopt such measures, with reference to the inquiry, as in his judgment should appear advisable, communicating with the Commissioners individually as he should think fit; it being the opinion of the Speaker, by whom these directions were conveyed to the secretary, that there was no necessity from time to time to summon a Board, and take its instructions upon these matters. Acting under these general directions, the secretary communicated, during the inquiry, with such of the Commissioners as were the easiest of access, the most intimately acquainted with the affairs of the Commission, or the most competent to give directions with reference to the particular subjects which were pending before the Committee.

After the inquiry had proceeded for some days, it became evident that several active members of the Committee were unfavourable to the publication of Records, or historical documents, at the expense of the nation. This opinion was in some degree strengthened by Mr. Protheroe (1490—1493), from the questions put to whom the opinion of the Chairman of the Committee is very obvious; but the evidence of Mr. Hodgson (Ev. 3386), Mr. Cole (Ev. 4917—4922), and Mr. Tytler (Ev. 4261—4263, 4575, &c.), the last of whom was very much relied upon by the Committee, seemed decisive.

The point was vital; it affected not merely the conduct of the Commissioners, and the course they had adopted, but if established, as upon the evidence of Mr. Tytler it was apparently thought to be, it went to overturn the system which has been universally approved, and more or less acted upon by successive Parliaments, Committees and Commissioners, from the year 1693 to the present time. If it be true that private individuals, booksellers, or literary clubs, would, if left to themselves, publish such works as the Record Commission has sent forth, then the whole system under which the Commissioners have acted is based upon an error, and the money of the nation has been thrown away in the publication of the original Fœdera, the Journals, the Rolls of Parliament, Domesday-book, and all the Record publications.

The secretary thought, and, as it seems to the Commissioners, wisely, that a point of such moment ought not to be left in any kind of uncertainty; that the evidence of the gentlemen before alluded to ought not merely to be answered, but that, with a view to the settlement of the question, the satisfaction of the public mind, and the justification of Parliament in making future grants for such a purpose, the point should, either the one way or the other, be established by testimony entirely overwhelming and unimpeachable.

With that intention it was determined that testimony should be obtained from such persons as, by their numbers, their weight, and standing in society, their acquaintance with legal, historical, and antiquarian literature, or their capability of correctly appreciating the value of such literature, should be sufficient to determine the matter for ever.

Such persons were found amongst the acting and retired Judges, the King's Counsel, the Serjeants, and amongst the Members of both Houses of Parliament.

Influential

Influential persons of this description, to the number of 45, were selected; and, inasmuch as the recent publications of the Board have not yet become sufficiently well or generally known, for the purpose in view, copies of them were transmitted to the gentlemen in question, with an invitation to them to come before the Committee, and give their testimony, as to whether such publications were fit objects for national munificence, or whether they ought to be left to be published by private enterprise, or individual love of literature. The necessity for sending these gentlemen the works themselves principally turned upon this circumstance. The books of the Record Commission are works of reference merely. A knowledge of such works spreads slowly, and many persons, such as the Judges and practising barristers of 20 years' standing, to whom some of the earlier publications are sufficiently well known, are not acquainted with the very important works which have been published within the last two or three years.

It is, nevertheless, quite clear that such persons are the best calculated to judge calmly and dispassionately of the value of Record publications in general, and when any such works are specifically brought before them, are the most capable of giving the very testimony that was wanted, not merely on behalf of the Commission, but for the guidance of Government and Parliament, and the satisfaction of the nation. How then were the works to be brought before them? Should they have been asked to purchase them? or to go to the British Museum to look at them? Their station in society entitled them to the volumes; an application to the Board from any one of the persons selected would probably have been instantly granted; and under these circumstances, it was thought to be the better, and in fact the only proper course, to send the works to them.

The result of their testimony was, that they were unanimous in opposition to the new-fangled notion; and, before half of them had been heard, the Committee interfered, and closed the inquiry. The Report is altogether silent as to this scheme of Mr. Tytler, and only briefly alludes to "the many and valuable testimonies" to the utility of the works published by the Commission.

This is the simple history of the "singular proof" of the "entire control" of the secretary over the distribution of the publications, which occurred during the sitting of the Committee.

The works, mentioned as having been sold for waste paper (Report, p. xxxvi), were really what they were sold for. The old Commissioners had printed a very large number of first volumes, which were distributed to the Members of both Houses of Parliament; and smaller numbers of second volumes, the practice of distributing the works to the Members of Parliament having then ceased. The surplus of the first volumes, if not altogether valueless in themselves, were certainly valueless to sell, since there are, at all times, a sufficient number of copies of the complete works in the market, to supply all demands at a very reasonable rate. The Commissioners were paying warehouse-room for these volumes (Ev. 3691), together with other charges, without the most distant probability of their ever producing any return whatever. Under these circumstances, after much consideration, it was determined to authorize the booksellers of the Board to dispose of some of the surplus copies, in such manner as they thought best, retaining a sufficient number to answer all probable demands. The same principle applied to some of the works in single volumes, of which, as in the instance of the Testa de Neville, 1,500 copies, and of the Quo Warranto Rolls, 1,000 copies, had been printed, and of which a very large number remained on hand.

If these observations have not entirely failed in their object, they have established,

1. With respect to existing "Buildings," that, although the Commissioners have been entirely without power to remedy their defects, they have not failed to urge upon His Majesty's Government the propriety of rectifying what is amiss in them, by the establishment of a General Record Office.

2. As to "Calendars and Indexes," that the Committee have been misled by the gentlemen upon whose evidence they relied, and that the Commissioners have adopted the only course that, under existing circumstances, was likely to be beneficial to the public.

3. As to "Transfers," the Commissioners, as the Committee themselves admit, have no authority.

 4. Under

4. Under the head of "Establishment of Offices," that the Commissioners have instituted the inquiries and collected the information enjoined by their Commission, and have subsequently recommended the measures which, in their opinion, are necessary for correcting the evils of the present system. If their recommendations have not yet been carried into effect, it has arisen from no fault or negligence of theirs.

5. This head, as before observed, is entirely omitted in the Report of the Committee.

6. The Committee have, in general, bestowed their commendation upon the "Selection of Original Records" published by the Commissioners.

7. Under the head of "General Administration of the Affairs of the Commission," it has been shown that the Committee are not warranted by the evidence in concluding that the Secretary has had the "entire control over the funds and disbursements of the Commission, of the preparation of its works, of the engagements, salaries and duties of all persons in the employ of the Commission, and in the distribution of all its publications."

The Commissioners are also of opinion, that it sufficiently appears from the preceding "Observations," that the Report has been framed in a spirit extremely unfriendly—if it may not rather be called unjust—towards the Commissioners; that the effect of the evidence has not been stated fully or fairly; that conclusions against them are drawn from testimony which, in many instances, has been contradicted or explained away; and that much error has crept into the Report, partly from this circumstance, and partly also from the fact which appears in the minutes of the proceedings of the Committee (p. xliv), that the Report was prepared before the various explanatory statements printed in the Appendix had been seen by the Members of the Committee generally.

There is, moreover, another circumstance materially affecting this Report, to which the Commissioners beg to direct the serious attention of your Lordships, and which, as the Commissioners conceive, amounts to an exclusion of evidence.

At the commencement of the inquiry an order was made by the Committee that a copy of the evidence should, from time to time, as it was printed, be forwarded to the secretary of the Commission; and it was also stated to the secretary, by the Chairman of the Committee, that in his capacity as secretary he would be permitted to remark and reply upon the evidence of the witnesses, whenever it might appear to him to be proper to do so.

In reliance upon this statement, the secretary, as he received the evidence of witnesses who had spoken unfavourably of the Board, prepared a reply; in some instances in the form of remarks upon their testimony, and in others, in the form of a series of questions, embodying the statements of the witnesses, with such answers and explanations subjoined as it was in the power of the secretary to give. These remarks, and questions and answers, were prepared in full reliance upon the statement of the Chairman of the Committee, and with the intention of being used before the Committee, when a suitable opportunity presented itself. With that view, a portion of the questions and answers which related to the evidence of Mr. Protheroe, was placed in the hands of Mr. Williams Wynn and Sir Robert Inglis, Members of the Committee, and the other portions were intended to have been added when those relating to Mr. Protheroe's evidence should be disposed of.

In consequence of a determination of the Committee, Sir Robert Inglis and Mr. Wynn were unable to ask the secretary more than a few of these questions, and the inquiry closed without the bulk of them being put, and without the secretary having any opportunity afforded him of remarking or replying upon the evidence of the witnesses who had been examined adversely to the Commission.

These circumstances induced the secretary to address to the Committee the following observations, which appear in the evidence of the 8th July (Ev. 8156). "The Committee having determined, as I understand, that, as regards the taking of evidence, its labours should be closed to-day, I have three remarks to make: The first is, that I had prepared, in a somewhat elaborate manner, answers to all those points brought forward in the examination of Mr. Protheroe, that seemed to require refutation or explanation, either on the part of the Commission or the secretary. These answers, together with the questions intended to elicit them, which are framed in conformity with the suggestion of my Lord Brougham, fill 30 brief sheets of paper. I had also prepared similar similar answers in regard to certain matters arising in the evidence of Mr. Vincent; but with respect to the matters appearing in the evidence of Mr. Hewlett, Mr. Illingworth and Mr. Holbrooke, I had simply drawn up some observations. As these answers and observations cannot, I presume, now be used, all that I can do is to mention their existence, and to claim the right of availing myself of them in time and place. The next remark is, that with regard to the remainder of the evidence, although I have not read any of the fasciculi of it, subsequent to No. 13, yet that I have been informed, that the contents concern myself rather than the Board, and for that reason, in the urgency of the moment, I have postponed to look into them, conceiving it to be my duty not to neglect the grave matters which may appear to touch the Commissioners, from an over eagerness to get rid of the imputations that concern myself alone. I shall, therefore, take another occasion to repel such statements as those I am alluding to; statements, for instance, that I have entreated one person to dedicate a book to me, and that I have pirated the notes of another person." The third remark is irrelevant to the present purpose.

The Report of the Committee is, in many places, founded upon evidence to which the remarks, and questions and answers, prepared by the secretary, had reference; and it is thought by the Commissioners that these remarks, and questions and answers, if delivered before the Committee, would very materially have altered the impression produced by the evidence to which they alluded, and, in some instances, very beneficially for the Commissioners.

The Report is also in some places founded upon testimony comprised in fasciculi of evidence which were not received by the secretary until after the close of the inquiry.

These circumstances, which, when properly explained, must be fatal to the credit and authority of the Report, have been highly disadvantageous to the Commissioners. If the evidence, which was thus excluded, had been received with the same attention which appears to have been given to every witness who came before the Committee with the intention of impugning the conduct of the Commissioners, they are of opinion that the Report would not have contained many passages which now appear in it, and which are strikingly calculated to depreciate and injure them in the opinion of His Majesty, from whom they derive their authority; of Parliament, which has entrusted them with grants of public money; and of the nation at large, for whose benefit it is imperative upon Government to preserve and regulate the Records.

Even, however, in its present shape, little more is needed for the refutation of the statements in the Report than to contrast them with the Evidence and with the papers in their own Appendix; a duty which ought to have been performed by the Committee, but which is now left to the public. It is to that contrast that the Commissioners have had recourse almost exclusively in the preceding observations, and it has led them, and they believe will lead any other persons who may take similar pains, to conclusions totally at variance with the Report. It has satisfied them that the facts stated in the Report are not to be relied upon, and that it is strikingly deficient in that candour and fair dealing which ought to characterize a document which professes to indicate to the Government and the Legislature what is the proper course for them to adopt.

THE "REMEDIAL MEASURES" suggested by the Committee are two:

1. The erection of a General Record Office; and, without waiting till that measure is carried into effect, 2. the passing of an Act of Parliament, "with as little delay as possible," to vest the custody of all the Records of the Kingdom in a new Record Commission, composed of three salaried Commissioners, to whom shall be entrusted "the general superintendence of the affairs of the Commission, the management of its finances, the care of its funds, the appointment of sub-commissioners, and others in its employ;" and, indeed, all power whatever, except that of transferring Records from one building to another, "without the sanction of the Judge presiding over the Court to which they belong," and that of selecting Records for publication, in which they are to be assisted by an unpaid body of persons "possessing peculiar qualifications in different branches of legal or historical learning," who are, for this single purpose, to be joined in the Commission with the paid Commissioners.

In the first of these measures the Committee have merely adopted the scheme proposed by the Commissioners, and by them recommended to His Majesty's Government. The Report of the Committee adds nothing material to the reasons for adopting this measure, nor does it suggest any improvements on the plan which the Commissioners long ago matured, and placed in the hands of His Majesty's Government.

The Second Measure suggested opens a wide field for inquiry and reflection, and the Commissioners would be wanting in their duty to the public if they did not express their opinions fully and freely with regard to it.

The Commissioners are satisfied that the legal custody of the Records (those of recent date excepted, which the Judges of the different Courts may consider requisite for the daily despatch of their judicial business) should be vested in some high judicial authority, and that the care, management and arrangement of them, with certain limitations which require to be maturely considered, should be placed in the hands of a deputy or director, with a competent salary, who should have no other avocation that could interfere with the care of the Records, and who should have under him a sufficient number of clerks and officers to execute his directions. Instead of three persons, proposed by the Committee, they would recommend one person for the employment, whose station would be a guarantee for his good conduct, and whose responsibility, being sole and individual, could be made more certainly effective. But this reform, which would supersede the Record Commission for every purpose except that of publication, could not be made useful or efficient till a General Record Office was erected and fitted for the reception of the Records. In the present dispersed state of the Record Offices, the general custody and management of the Records, whether committed to one person or to a greater number, could be little more than nominal. The deputy or director not having them under his immediate care, and having no suitable means for arranging and methodizing them, would enjoy his salary without the possibility of performing the work expected from him. They repeat, therefore, that, till a General Record Office is erected, they have nothing better to propose in addition to their present establishment, than the appointment of an inspector of Record Offices, who should make monthly Reports to a Board of Commissioners constituted like the present. It is one recommendation of this plan, that such an office might be created, and a person of probity, diligence, and activity appointed to it, without any additional expense to the public, his salary being defrayed out of the annual grant to the Record Commission.

When the erection of a General Record Office is completed, a legal custos constituted, and a director or manager, with a suitable number of clerks and other officers, appointed, the Commissioners would further recommend that the whole establishment should be placed in direct communication with the Treasury; and if a Record Commission continues to exist, that its duties should be confined to the publication of Records, Calendars, and Indexes, for which, if it seemed good to Parliament, a definite sum might be annually appropriated.

On the plan proposed by the Select Committee, the Commissioners have to observe:

1. That if the new Record Commissioners are to be appointed like the present Commissioners and to be removable like them at pleasure, nothing can be more improper than to confide to a body so fluctuating and unstable the legal custody and entire management of the public Records. There stand, indeed, opposite to this recommendation the names of three learned Judges, with references to their evidence; but it must not be inferred that those eminent persons are the authority for the assertion, that "there appears to be no reason" why this scheme should not be put in immediate execution. It is almost needless to observe, that there is nothing whatever in the evidence referred to that can possibly support such a project. The Judges alluded to are favourable to a general custody in one Record Office; but it never seems to have occurred to them that any person could contend, that that custody should be vested in the Record Commission. The Commissioners are of opinion, that a body in any degree analogous to the Record Commission ought not to have the "custody" of Records; however desirable it may be that, whilst things continue in their present state, that is, until a General Record Office is erected, they should have an efficient power of controlling those in whom the custody is vested.

The Commissioners are well aware that a very considerable change in the custody custody of the Records must take place upon the establishment of a General Record Office; and it is of course competent to Parliament, even before that establishment, to take the custody of the Records out of the hands of the present keepers; but that either before or after such establishment, any general right of custody ought to be vested in a body like the Record Commission, is an opinion to which the Commissioners are decidedly opposed.

That the custody of the National Records is an important trust, and ought to be vested in responsible hands, is obvious. It is the opinion of the Commissioners that one single person is to be preferred to a Board of Commissioners. But in expressing that opinion they desire no change in the present custody of the Records till a General Record Office has been erected, and they see no pretence or justification for an immediate transference of the Records from their present keepers, either in the Report of the Committee, or in the actual state of the Records.

There is no charge against the present keepers of the Records. The Report contains no such charge. No one has brought any such charge. The cause of complaint is in the over-crowded and unsafe condition of the buildings, and the discrepancies and inconveniences with which the whole system of management is burthened. To remedy these causes of complaint, the Report recommends that the keepership should be changed. That is, because the Rolls Chapel is crowded to such excess that the Records are obliged to be put away in holes and corners; because the depository of the Pipe Records is dark and damp; and the Common Pleas Records are at Carlton Ride; and the First Fruits Office is in a house let out in chambers; therefore the custody of the Records in the several repositories is to be taken from the Master of the Rolls and the King's Remembrancer, and the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas, and vested in three paid Commissioners.

The reason alleged for this alteration is, not that the proposed Commissioners will have any power to enlarge the Rolls Chapel or to build a depository, for the Pipe Records and the others before mentioned, but merely that it is "desirable that one general custody over all the Records should be established." The Commissioners do not perceive why this general custody is desirable, unless it is accompanied by a power of remedying the evils of the present system. If the Records could be brought together into one place of deposit, one general custody would be manifestly indispensable, but, until that event can be brought about, the Commissioners cannot see any reason for interfering with the present keepers.

Such an interference, under present circumstances, would be unwise, capricious and unjust. Unwise; inasmuch as it would be a disturbance of vested interests, for the sake of introducing an avowedly temporary arrangement; an unsettlement of a great deal without the settlement of anything. Capricious; because it would be a change for mere change sake. Unjust; because it would be without any foundation of personal complaint against the keepers, or any national advantage to accrue from the change.

Custody of the kind indicated in the Report, if unaccompanied by a general place of deposit, would moreover be the source of almost interminable confusion, and of considerable expense.

It is proposed that Records shall remain in the custody of the present keepers for 20 years from their formation, and, after that period, that the custody shall vest in the new Commissioners. The offices contain long series of Records, running through different periods and terminating at the present time. At present these are all in the custody of one person. It is proposed that that custody shall be divided; those for the last 20 years, shall remain with the present keeper; those anterior are to vest in the new Commissioners. If there were some place of deposit to which these latter Records might be conveyed, this arrangement might be all well enough; but there is no such place, and for the present, therefore, they must remain where they are. Under the plan suggested, there must be a division and separation of the two classes of Records; those which belong to the old keepers, from those which belong to the new. How is that to be effected in offices so over-crowded, that the utmost efforts of ingenuity can scarcely find room for the Records in one united and consecutive collection? There must be officers appointed by the new Commissioners to take charge and care of their portion of the Records in the old offices; there must be a division of the labour connected with the offices; of the expenditure; of the fees: and all these new arrangements are to be temporary; to come to an end entirely upon the erection of a General Record Office. And what is to be the purpose answered in the mean time? The only present purpose indicated by the Report is, that "the (new) Commission should draw up as early as possible a General Report on the actual state of the Records, and of the changes it proposed to effect."

This appears to the Commissioners to be a very roundabout and inconvenient mode of effecting what may be done more simply, and more effectually. Erect a General Record Office; declare what Records shall be removed to it; and let that removal be superintended by the person who is afterwards to have charge of them. Vest the legal custody of all Records there deposited in some high judicial authority, and the actual care and management of them in some efficient deputy or director-general. Let compensation be made to the present keepers and their clerks, according to the tenure of their different offices, and where they can be made useful, let their services be retained. Let the general system of management, the calendaring, indexing, binding, and mending of the Records be committed to the deputy or director-general; and let the duties of the Record Commission be confined to the selection and superintendence of publications fit to do credit to the country, and enlarge our knowledge of the ancient history, laws, and constitution of the empire.

Until these things can be done, all change of custody and attempt at new arrangements, beyond those of the description at present carrying on, is visionary in the extreme, and would be the occasion of an useless expenditure of very considerable amount, and of a confusion almost interminable.

2. The second point upon which the Commissioners think it necessary to remark relates to the description of persons recommended as the new Commissioners.

The paid Commissioners are proposed to be three in number, "persons each possessing an acquaintance with some particular class of Records, or being in the habit of using them, either for legal or historical purposes."

The unpaid Commissioners are proposed to be five or seven in number. That "some of them should be men of high station may be desirable. The whole number should be selected on account of their qualifications for judging of the value of such publications to legal and historical inquirers." (Report, p. xli.)

"To the paid Commissioners should be entrusted the whole and undivided administration of all the business, and all the powers of the Commission, with a provision that no publication should be undertaken without the whole of the Commission being summoned, and the contemplated work sanctioned and directed by their order, upon a plan to be laid before them by the paid Commissioners." (Report, ibid.)

It is rather difficult to understand what particular classes of persons the Committee had in view in its description of the paid Commissioners. "Persons each possessing an acquaintance with some particular class of Records," seems a description especially, if not exclusively, indicative of a record keeper. Persons "in the habit of using them for legal purposes," clearly designates record agents who make searches for record evidence on behalf of litigating parties, and who are either attornies or clerks in Record Offices. Persons "in the habit of using them for historical purposes," is a very wide description, equally applicable to the philosophical historian and the humble topographer. Without detracting from the respectability of these several descriptions of individuals, it is evident that the Committee had not in their view persons of any great name or station; but men certainly not of a higher mark in society than the sub-commissioners and editors employed under the present Board.

It is to three such persons, men in the habit of using the Records for business purposes, to gain a cause or support an argument, that the Committee are willing to entrust their custody, preservation, and arrangement.

When the Commissioners call to mind the numerous—the almost innumerable—instances in which the party spirit of the advocate and of the historian has led to the concealment, the mutilation, and, occasionally, to the destruction of testimony—instances which every one, who is even slightly acquainted with either our legal or our literary history, could produce at will—they cannot avoid the expression of their most determined dissent from any such delegation of the custody of our Records.

For

For the security of this portion of the public treasure the nation has a right to every guarantee that can be devised; and, at any event, and under no circumstances whatever, ought it to be subjected to the possibility of danger from the temptations of business.

It will be remarked that the Report does not contain anything which indicates the opinion of the Committee that these paid Commissioners should be restricted from the practice of other pursuits, but merely that they should not receive pay for editing publications, or doing any other work undertaken by the order of the Board. (Report, p. xli.)

Of the unpaid Commissioners, under the proposed arrangement, it is easy to anticipate the fate. However "desirable" it might be that men of high station should appear in the Commission, it is thought that very few would be found willing to lend their rank to do honour to a Commission from all the power of which they were most carefully and pointedly excluded.

3. The third subject of remark is the nature of the business intended to be assigned to the proposed paid Commissioners.

Unless the custody of the Records be vested in the paid Commissioners, it is quite obvious that there cannot be any regular occupation for such a Board. That is the opinion of the present Commissioners, and with very few exceptions, of all the witnesses who have given testimony upon that point before the Committee. In the Appendix will be found various letters and opinions upon this subject, written by members of the present Board, and referring to a paper of Mr. Allen's, which is inserted in his Evidence. (Ev. 7321; App. to Report, p. 868.)

This opinion is founded upon the nature of the principal business entrusted to the Commissioners. It consists not so much in execution as in direction and control; and the matters directed are generally of such character as that they cannot be transacted under some considerable time. It is therefore only at distant intervals that they become the subject of direction. A few examples will prove this more clearly than description.

The Commissioners, having determined to proceed with the calendaring and arrangement of certain miscellaneous Records at the Tower, directed Mr. Stevenson to execute that service. He commenced, and made minute quarterly Reports of his progress; specifying how many documents he had calendared, and how many he had arranged since his last Report. The degree of progress which can be made in works of this description is pretty exactly known. The quarterly Reports, therefore, added to occasional communication with the secretary, and a visit from an inspecting Committee of the Commissioners, constitute a sufficient check upon his progress, and are an additional guarantee for his attention. It is difficult to conceive what more could possibly be done by a Board of paid Commissioners.

Again, in printing: the Commissioners make an order for the printing of a certain work, having first inspected a specimen, and ascertained the probable expense. From that time the business lies between the editor and the printer, and interference on the part of the Commissioners would certainly do harm, except in case of the occurrence of apparently unreasonable delay, or any other cause for inquiry. "The editors," in the words of Mr. Hallam (App. p. 869), "when once selected judiciously, should be as little subjected to systematic and minute control as an artist who receives a commission for a picture."

Again: it is determined that certain Records shall be repaired and bound. The work proceeds from day to day. Reports are from time to time made to the secretary of the number of Records subjected to these processes. He occasionally inspects the progress made; the keepers take care that their Records are properly used; and the Reports are laid before the Board at their meetings. What more could usefully be done?

Again: in the distribution of books. A Committee meets; the secretary lays before them the applications made, with the results of his inquiries respecting the applicants. The Committee determines according to fixed principles, and reports to the next Board. This is a business which occupied considerable attention at first, but the number of applications is now very few, and most of the copies printed are bespoken.

These are the principal branches in the business of the Commission, with the exception of those relating to the accounts, which clearly do not require the constant attention of a Board. At every meeting of the Board, the money wanted, and upon what account, is reported by the secretary, the checks are drawn, and there is a yearly audit.

In all this it is most evident there can be nothing to require the constant attention of a Board of paid Commissioners. Such a Board must inevitably become a mere sinecure. It could only keep itself alive by vexatious interference with the progress of the sub-commissioners, and the other persons employed under it.

It has been objected to the secretary of the Record Commission, that he is "without practical responsibility," that he is "a person irresponsible to the public." (Report, p. xxxv. xxxix.) That he is not responsible to his employers it would be hard to maintain, after the instance given of a committee of the Commission reversing his decision; and that he is not responsible to the public, it would be still more hard to evince, after the long and harassing examination he has undergone before the Select Committee. But to whom will the proposed salaried Commissioners be responsible? To none but the House of Commons; and considering the description of persons to whom it is intended that office should be consigned, it will not be alleged that in station or attainments they will be persons of higher or even of equal consideration with the present secretary of the Record Commission.

4. The fourth subject of remark is the expense of the proposed new scheme.

It is suggested in the Report (p. xl) that a saving would be effected in the salaries paid to Record keepers, and also in the salary to the secretary, as "a clerk, or secretary at little more than a clerk's salary," would suffice for the new Board.

This latter contemplated saving is clearly indicative of the notion which the framers of the Report have formed of the Board, in whom is proposed to be vested the custody of "all the Records." Both calculations, however, are obviously fallacious.

If the scheme were at once adopted, instead of a saving in the salaries of keepers, additional keepers would become necessary, in order to preserve the custody of the Records vested in the new Commissioners, distinct from those not yet given up to them.

And even after the erection of a new Record Office, it does not appear in what manner any saving could arise out of the constitution of the new Board. An equalization of service and income would no doubt occasion a saving, but that will happen whether the Board be paid or unpaid.

The saving in the salary of the new secretary, be his salary what it may, can be but little in comparison with the additional expenses of the new Board.

The remark relating to the "allowances" to the present secretary is utterly unfounded, and is fully refuted in the Evidence (7944, 7945).

COPIES of any CORRESPONDENCE or COMMUNICATIONS between Mr. Protheroe, Sir Harris Nicolas and any other Persons, with the Lords of the Treasury and the Secretary of State for the Home Department, respecting the Observations transmitted by the Commissioners of Public Records on the Report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on the Record Commission.

(Official.)

My dear Sir, 21, Dover-street, 20 Feb. 1837.

I BEG to draw your attention to the enclosed papers, and I will thank you to take the earliest opportunity of submitting them to the Lords of the Treasury.

Their Lordships sent, about the 2d of last month, the Report of the Committee of the House of Commons on the Record Commission, to our Board, desiring, as I understand, who was not then present at the Board, the sentiments of the Commissioners on that Report. A draft of the observations was sent to me, and in the quarter of an hour (for after reading the draft no more time was left me,) I wrote the enclosed paper, requesting that it might be allowed to accompany the observations when they were sent to the Lords of the Treasury. On my inquiring the other day, I learnt, to my very great astonishment, that my request had not been complied with, although no order of the Board had been made to stop the progress of this paper.

I question, most distinctly, the right of the Board to suppress this or any other paper communicating the sentiments of a Commissioner, even by an order of the Board, in such a case as the present; but, as in this case, no order was made, I view the proceedings as wholly irregular.

Since this was done the observations have been printed, and are circulated as proceeding from the Commissioners. To this document no signatures are affixed, so that it appears as if the whole of the Commissioners had approved of this publication; and I am liable to the imputation of having tacitly admitted the truth not only of remarks in which I do not concur on many points, affecting other persons and the public service, but actually impugning my own veracity; whereas, now that time is allowed me to read them, I can characterize them as nothing but the most stupid misunderstanding of my evidence, or wilful misrepresentation of my words.

You will perceive, that however irksome are all such matters as these, which bear the character of personal altercations, the matter is not one of small importance when some of the opinions of an individual Commissioner are suppressed, and others are misrepresented, on an occasion of the Government requiring the sentiments of a commission; and that Commissioner being one on whose word and evidence many of the charges against the commission are founded. Having recovered the suppressed document, I send it, though hastily written and not such as I should have desired to have prepared.

The document itself and this statement, whenever the observations come under their Lordships' notice, I beg the favour of your submitting to them, as I consider it decidedly a duty their Lordships have imposed on us, collectively and indivi dually, to submit our opinions on the Report.

It is very likely that I shall submit further opinions now that I have the document before me and time allowed me to consider it.

I remain, &c.

F. Baring, Esq., &c. &c. &c. (signed) Edward Protheroe, jun.

The draft of the observations of the Commissioners of the Public Records on the Report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on the Record Commission, has only reached me this day, the 3d February, at 12 o'clock, and I perceive that this document is to be finally agreed upon to-morrow at 12 in London; no more time is therefore allowed me than is sufficient for hastily reading the observations, which I have done, and offering, which I will now do, one or two remarks upon them.

I beg to be understood as adhering firmly to the sentiments which I expressed before the Committee of the House of Commons on all the points upon which my testimony was asked.

But I wish it to be remarked, that my evidence did not embrace many subjects of importance on which the Committee reported their opinion, and to which those observations purpose to be a reply.

My absence from London during discussions which may have taken place at the Board during the last two months, and the insufficient time allowed for any attentive perusal of the draft, preclude the possibility of my writing my opinion on the many points on which I should decidedly differ from those "observations."

I observe that in allusion to some statements of mine, it is said that the mode in which the inquiry by the Committee was terminated, prevented the production of some documents which would have proved me wrong in a particular instance. Justice alone to the Committee would lead me to state, that I do not think this a valid reason, and that I witnessed nothing but a fair disposition to listen to all necessary defence.

I beg that this note may be appended to the observations when they are communicated to the Lords of the Treasury.

This paper was returned at my request by Mr. Cooper, on the 17th February, and is communicated this day to the Treasury.

20 Feb. 1837. (signed) Edward Protheroe, jun.

My dear Sir, 21, Dover-street, 22 Feb. 1837.

I REQUEST the favour of your submitting to the Lords of the Treasury some remarks which I shall append to this letter, whenever their Lordships' attention is directed to the Observations on the Report of the Committee of the House of Commons upon the Record Commission, which were lately forwarded to their Lordships by Mr. Cooper, the secretary to the commission.

It is not, I believe, on a minute investigation into the relative value of all the evidence contained in that Report, or in the arguments by which it is impugned in these Observations, that the question of the utility of our commission is or ought to be decided. And I am fully impressed with a conviction, that their Lordships' time will be more advantageously occupied in taking a more general view of the question; but I may be allowed the permission of putting on record at the Treasury my dissent from observations which call in question almost my veracity, and the object of which is to weaken or destroy the weight of my testimony in their Lordships' judgment. To this I shall limit my remarks. I have already explained to you, that no fair opportunity was allowed me of writing my opinion on that document; but I should have remained contented with having had my general expression of dissent communicated to their Lordships, and have not proceeded to any general or partial consideration of these observations, if Mr. Cooper, with or without the sanction of the Commissioners, had not abstained from communicating my protest to their Lordships, together with the aforesaid observations.

My wishes were neither complied with nor formally refused attention by the Board; and since that time the Observations have been printed and industriously circulated.

To these observations no signatures are affixed; they appear under the general name of the Commissioners; and the world, to whom they are open, might conclude, not without foundation, that I agreed in a condemnation of myself, or that all the other Commissioners had approved of this document. Under these circumstances, their Lordships will, I am confident, perceive that I must be reasonably anxious to put in a word or two of defence and explanation.

I cannot refrain, however, from adding, that nothing is to me so distasteful as these controversies; and that I trespass with regret, even for an instant, on your time. I remain, &c.,

NOTES on the Observations, as far as they relate to Mr. Protheroe's Evidence, p. 67.

THE facts which Mr. Protheroe wished to show in his replies to the questions of the Committee were, that

The secretary compiled the agenda of the Board, and exercised his own discretion as to what part of a Commissioner's communication to that work should be inserted in it.

That when a Commissioner desired a letter or a report of his own writing to be thus submitted in the agenda, which were the notes of business printed for the Board, the secretary exercised his discretion, and printed what he thought fit, and omitted that which he did not think fit to put into the agenda.

This statement is corroborated by Mr. Cooper's remarks in this page (67); whether the omission was known by Mr. Protheroe, as intended, before the document appeared, is not the point insisted upon here.

The next point Mr. Protheroe wished to put before the Committee was, that the Commissioners had steadily and invariably refused to accept from him, or to order for themselves, any document to be prepared which should exhibit their expenditure, and the work done under their name.

This the Observations again confirm; for the Commissioners formally approved of the secretary's omission of the paper which Mr. Protheroe had sent to the secretary for insertion in the agenda, as is shown by the Minute printed in page 67.

An attempt is then made to set aside Mr. Protheroe's evidence, by representing im as talking at one time of a document being omitted in part, and at another wholly wholly suppressed; whereas Mr. Protheroe is alluding in his evidence to two distinct acts, and to two different documents.

The omission referred to in No. 1325 is that of a passage only of a letter of his, wherein he characterized in proper terms a grant of 500 l. a year to Mr. Caley, calling it, if he remembers rightly, a job, or the place created a sinecure.

The omission mentioned in 1978-80 is that of a synopsis of the work being done under the Commission; by which the engagement with every one in the employ of the Board was set down with dates, and the amount of their pay or remuneration, as far as all this information could be obtained by a Commission.

It was confessedly imperfect, because no documents existed which recorded any of the principal agreements betwixt the secretary and the persons employed by the Board; but these imperfections Mr. Protheroe contended were such as should have led the Board to remedy the defects of the system of the Commission, and not to continue the plan of concealment, which Mr. Protheroe is obliged to say, he thinks was the faulty system upheld by the secretary.

Mr. Protheroe is unable to confirm or rebut any of the remarks which follow with respect to his letters; he has not copies of them; and although he applied some days since to Mr. Cooper for a sight of these letters, he has not yet received any intimation when he may expect to see them. After delaying these observations for some days for this reason, Mr. Protheroe is obliged to despatch these remarks in haste, lest they should come too late.

With respect to the representation made by him of some information he gained about a communication made by Mr. Spearman, on the part of the Lords of the Treasury, Mr. Protheroe can only repeat that he remembers Mr. Spearman telling him of some letters of rather a sharp character having passed with respect to the accounts of the Record Commission, which Mr. Protheroe had not then seen, nor even subsequently saw.

Mr. Protheroe remembers the non-production of these papers being a matter of discussion subsequently with other Commissioners.

He can scarcely believe it possible that he should have made any mistake.

The preceding remarks, it will be understood, do not refer to a fresh publication under the authority of the Record Commission, as it would appear, of further remarks on the evidence; that document being published on Mr. Cooper's individual responsibility, and not communicated as an official document to their Lordships, is not noticed in this paper.

1836; 14th Jan. and 7th Feb. 1837; together with copies of the Minutes of this Board of the 19th Nov. and 2d Dec. 1836, and 24th Jan. and 10th and 28th Feb. 1837; from which his Lordship will perceive what steps have been taken, and what directions have been given by this Board, on the several points which fall more peculiarly under their Lordships' cognizance.

In laying these papers before Lord John Russell, their Lordships desire that you will state to him, that my Lords having adopted such measures as appeared to them to be required with respect to the financial arrangements of the Commission, they have now transmitted the whole of the papers in question to his Lordship, for such directions as he may deem it advisable to give upon the other points referred to therein.

At the same time, I am directed to transmit two letters from Mr. Protheroe, dated 20th and 22d ult., and letters from Mr. Hardy and Mr. Stevenson, dated severally the 23d ult., upon the subject of the Observations made by the Commissioners of Public Records upon the Report of the Select Committee.

I am further to state, that my Lords do not think they would be justified, under the circumstances of this case, in submitting to Parliament any estimate to defray expenses under this Commission, beyond the sum required (in addition to the 24,000 l. voted last session) to pay off the arrears then incurred, except under his Lordship's sanction; and they therefore request to be informed whether, in his opinion, any, and what amount, should be proposed to Parliament as a grant for the expenditure of the year commencing 1st April next.

I am, &c.,

The Hon. Fox Maule. (signed) A. Y. Spearman.

Sir, 55, Torrington Square, 15 March 1837.

I DO myself the honour of transmitting to you a copy of a letter which I have addressed to the Commissioners on the Public Records, and which I request you will do me the favour to lay before the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury.

I have, &c.,

F. Baring, Esq., M.P., (signed) H. Harris Nicolas.

My Lords and Gentlemen, Torrington Square, 11 March 1837.

I DO myself the honour of addressing you upon a subject of considerable importance.

Having, during the last session of Parliament, been summoned to give evidence before the Select Committee of the House of Commons upon the Public Records, I made such statements to it as I believed to be founded on facts.

It was, therefore, with great astonishment that I received from your secretary a pamphlet marked "Record Commission," bearing the appearance of having been circulated by your authority, wherein, under the subtle form of suppositious answers to suppositious questions, my evidence before that Committee is not only impeached, but my whole conduct in relation to the subject is glaringly and wilfully misrepresented; and wherein, moreover, an obscure employé of the Board has been allowed to describe me and others as being involved in a determined conspiracy to attack the Commission.

As men of honour, you must feel that it is impossible for any gentleman to submit to such aspersions. But in this matter a public question of very serious moment arises, and one which appears to merit your deliberate consideration.

The calumnies of which I complain relate to statements made by me as a witness before a Committee of the House of Commons, and it is therefore necessary, in the first place, that I should ascertain whether the pamphlet in which my evidence is impeached be a private production, circulated without your sanction, or whether it be an official publication of His Majesty's Commissioners on the Records, printed at the public expense?

I make this inquiry, my Lords and Gentlemen, first, that I may be enabled to vindicate myself from misrepresentation; secondly, (in the event of this pamphlet not having been printed by your authority,) that you may have the opportunity of relieving yourselves from the imputation cast upon you by your secretary, of having published unfounded statements injurious to the character of individuals; and lastly, (if this pamphlet did emanate from the Commission,) that the important question may be ascertained, whether the House of Commons will protect a person, whom it compels to appear as a witness before one of its Committees, from having his evidence impugned, and his conduct and motives attacked, in a personal and offensive manner, by a public Board, out of funds granted by Parliament for the public service?

Although I have been informed that I am also severely reflected upon in the "Observations on the Report of the Committee on the Public Records," cited in that pamphlet, I forbear from troubling you with any remarks upon the subject. I have not seen those "Observations;" and the respect which I entertain for the members of the Commission prevents my believing that they would "transmit to the Lords of the Treasury" a statement affecting the reputation of any individual, without acquainting him with the fact, in order that he might be aware of the charges brought against him.

I beg leave to add, that the moment I received the pamphlet, I wrote your secretary a letter, in which I denied in the strongest terms the truth of his assertions; and I am prepared, not merely to substantiate every part of my evidence before the Parliamentary Committee by his own letters, but, upon the same conclusive authority, to prove the great value he attached to the gratuitous assistance which he sought and received from me, so long as he was desirous of producing those ameliorations in the record system which I have always advocated. As an act of common justice, I feel assured that you will cause me to be favoured with an early and explicit answer to this communication.

I have, &c.,

My Lords, Notting-hill Square, 15 March 1837.

On the Votes and Proceedings of the House of Commons published this morning, a notice appears that copies are ordered of any "Correspondence of Mr. Protheroe, Sir Harris Nicolas, or any other persons, with the Lords of the Treasury and Secretary of State for the Home Department, respecting the Observations transmitted by the Commissioners of Public Records on the Report of the Select Committee on the Record Commission." After receiving a volume from the secretary to the Commissioners, purporting to refer to the "Observations," in which the secretary impugns the truth of my evidence, together with that of many other persons, I addressed an unqualified denial to the Commissioners of the statements made by their secretary in this volume, deeming it more appropriate to communicate with the Commissioners on this matter than with your Lordships. Finding now that the answers of Mr. Protheroe and others to the "Observations" which were addressed to your Lordships and the Secretary of State for the Home Department, are to be produced, and that my answer, being addressed to the Commissioners, is not comprised in that order, I trust that your Lordships will afford me the indulgence of permitting either my letter to the Commissioners, or this present letter, to accompany those ordered by the House of Commons; and herein I beg most respectfully to request your Lordships to give the direct and positive contradiction to the allegations of the secretary, and, in giving a denial in terms so general, I beg to assure your Lordships that I am prepared with documentary and other evidence, at any time, to disprove all the assertions brought forward by the secretary to the Commissioners in opposition to my evidence.

I have, &c.,

To the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury,

Copy of the Report of Sir Francis Palgrave to the Treasury, upon the State of the Record Office at the Chapter House; dated 21 January 1837.

Record Office, Treasury of the Exchequer.

The Chapter House, Poets' Corner, Westminster,
Sir, 21 January 1837.

In obedience to their Lordships' directions, as contained in your letter of the 5th instant, I have the honour of enclosing my Report upon the Record Office of the Treasury of the Exchequer. From the circumstances under which the Report is made, it appeared expedient to divide it into three heads; viz.

I. The state of the office and management thereof, and the duties performed by the establishment under the original or Treasury constitution; p. 45 to 47.

II. The duties of the establishment and the management of the office, as performed by myself and clerks, under the arrangement with the Record Commission, pursuant to the Minute of the 18th April 1834; p. 47 to 50.

III. The work performed by me and by the clerks under my direction, from the term of my appointment to the date of the Report; p. 50 to 52.

The half-yearly Reports hereafter to be made, pursuant to their Lordships' sanction, will be in continuation of the third head.

I respectfully request that their Lordships will be pleased to compare the facts, stated under heads II. and III., with the allegations in the Report of the Select Committee.

I take this opportunity of observing, that this building has recently been inspected by Mr. Barry, with reference to the general record repository proposed to be formed in the Tower of the new Houses of Parliament, and that in the opinion of that gentleman it is highly desirable to bind and box the records, previously to the fitting up of such repository, inasmuch as, by these operations, the quantity of presses required can be calculated to a degree of nicety which is otherwise unattainable, and the bulk of the records will be much reduced. Mr. Barry has allowed me to see his plan. It appears to me that the execution of it will be highly desirable. Moderate-sized rooms are much more advantageous for the deposit of books and records than large halls or galleries; they can be kept in order with greater ease, give more stowage, and are much more convenient for literary use.

I have, &c.,
A. Y. Spearman, Esq. (signed) Francis Palgrave.

Record Office of the Treasury.

Report of Sir Francis Palgrave, Keeper thereof, pursuant to the Treasury Letter of the 5th January 1837.

I. Management and Duties of the Office under the Treasury Constitution.

Origin of the office.

1. The records in this office were anciently in the keeping of the treasurer and chamberlains of the Exchequer, acting either by themselves or by their deputies; the custody of the king's title deeds and muniments not being distinguished from that of the other valuables under their care. An account of the ancient state of the office and of the manner in which it became a distinct record office under a keeper of the records, though the records are still, in point of law, under the custody of the treasurer and chamberlains, represented by the Lords of the Treasury, will be found in the introduction prefixed to the work entitled "The ancient Calendars and Inventories of the Treasury of His Majesty's Exchequer," lately published by the Record Commission*.

Establishment under the constitution.

2. The establishment consists at present of a keeper, appointed by constitution, under the hands and seals of the Lords of the Treasury, and of three clerks appointed appointed by the Lords of the Treasury, and usually upon the recommendation of the keeper for the time being.

The particulars of the appointments of the present keeper and clerks are as follow:

The total amount of the annual grant for the establishment, and which has continued without variation for very many years, is 900 l.

Keeper. Sir Francis Palgrave, keeper, appointed by constitution, dated 15th May 1834, with a salary of 400 l., granted by such constitution - - £. 400

Clerks. Mr. J. W. Clarke, first clerk. This gentleman, who had been previously employed by his father, the late Dr. Adam Clarke, in making transcripts for the new edition of the Fœdera, came to the office in 1810 as a junior clerk, and in 1817 he was promoted to the office of chief clerk, with the salary of - - - - - - - - - 170

Mr. Charles Devon, appointed in 1818, upon the recommendation of the late John Caley, esq., second clerk, with a salary of - - 140

Mr. F. Devon, appointed in 1819, also upon the recommendation of Mr. Caley, third or junior clerk, at a salary of - - - - 110

Allowed for contingencies - - - - - - - - - 80

£. 900

When the Right Honourable George Rose held the office there were four clerks, and the sum of 900 l. was divided in the following manner:

Keeper - - - - - - - - -	400
First clerk - - - - - - -	150
Second ditto - - - - - - -	100
Third ditto - - - - - - -	90
Fourth ditto - - - - - - -	80
Contingencies - - - - - -	80
	£. 900

But by a Treasury Minute or Letter (not in the possession of the undersigned), the number of the clerks was reduced to three, and the sum of 420 l., which had been received by the four clerks, was directed to be divided amongst the three clerks in the proportions above mentioned, as being paid to the present establishment.

The sum of 80 l. allowed for contingencies is applied as follows:

Beavans, messenger - - - - - - - - -	28	–	–
Gratuity to Mr. F. Devon, for extra attendance, as after mentioned - - - - - - - - - -	10	–	–
Rent to Dean and Chapter, and water rate - - - -	3	2	4
Coals, wood and miscellaneous out-goings - - - -	38	17	8

The allowance to the preceding messenger was 47 l. 10 s., but it has been reduced to the above sum.

Duties of the establishment under the Treasury constitution. 3. The duties of the establishment under the Treasury constitution are fully detailed and set forth in the "Report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on the Public Records, 1800." It is stated in such Report, that "the four clerks are required to attend daily from ten o'clock till one, holidays excepted, which are the hours of attendance in all the other offices in the receipt of the Exchequer; and their duty is to make indexes to the records, and to make searches in the same and copies thereof, as often as applications are made for that purpose;" and accordingly, until the arrangements with the Record Commission, made upon the appointment of the present keeper, as after noticed (II. III.), the office was opened at ten and closed at one, and also closed on all holidays kept in the old Exchequer, this office not having been included in the Acts for the abolition of holidays; and during the appointments of Mr. Rose and Mr. Caley, if searches were required to be made on holidays, an extra fee of one guinea was paid. It has also been the practice, as was stated by the late Mr. Rose, to allow each clerk six weeks' vacation in the course of the year, with no other restriction excepting the understanding that no more than one clerk should be absent at a time.

Attendance given during the period that Mr. Rose and Mr. Caley held the office.

4. Neither

4. Neither Mr. Rose nor Mr. Caley, the keepers, who respectively preceded the present keeper, gave any personal attendance at the office. Mr. Rose seldom came more than once a year; Mr. Caley came more frequently, but after office hours, and when the office was shut, and the clerks were absent; and he principally employed himself upon the records and instruments relating to monastic antiquities, a branch of research which he prosecuted with much diligence. He also selected and arranged records for the binders, but in this he never allowed the clerks on the establishment to interfere, and he stated to them, in this duty, "he acted as secretary to the Record Commission, for which he was paid, and that it formed no part of the official duty of the establishment." Acting in this manner, neither of the preceding keepers exercised any control over the proceedings of the clerks, the office being left almost wholly to their management, in which the principal never interfered; and as far as can be traced, such had always been the practice of the office since the records were transmitted to the Chapter House. This is proved by the fact that there neither was, nor is there any room or apartment for the principal, the office now occupied by the keeper having been one of the rooms appropriated for the clerks, whom the undersigned was compelled to dislodge; and it must further be remarked, that until after the year 1801, there was no room in the building with a fire-place, so that it is not probable that much business could have been done, even by the clerks, during the winter season.

Keepership, how exercised by Mr. Rose and Mr. Caley.

Mr. Caley in selecting records for binding acted as secretary to the Record Commission, and not as keeper.

No apartment provided for the keeper.

5. The fees for searches are reported in 1800 as follow:

Fees for searches.

	s.	d.
For every search in Domesday - - - - - -	6	8
Copies thereof, per line - - - - - - -	-	4
Search in any other record - - - - - -	8	4
Copies per folio, of 72 words - - - - - -	1	–
Examining and certifying each copy - - - -	2	–

Besides which a fee of 1 l. 1 s. was paid for opening the office on holidays as before mentioned, and 5 l. 5 s. for a general search. The late Mr. Caley gave up half the fees to the clerks, and this practice has been continued by the present keeper. But besides the fees, which are small, the late keeper, Mr. Caley, derived considerable emoluments from the records in the office, by his practice as a record agent or solicitor.

II. Management and Duties of the Office under the existing Arrangements with the Record Commission.

1. In 1822, the undersigned was appointed a Sub-Commissioner of Records for the publication of a new and enlarged edition of the Rolls of Parliament, upon such a plan as to include all the documents evidencing or affording materials for our constitutional history, at a salary of 500 l., and with allowances for the work performed, amounting on the average, from 1824, to about 800 l. more, or 1,300 l. in the whole. Of this work, one section, entitled the "Parliamentary Writs," was sent to press, and five volumes have been published, and collections formed for subsequent volumes. On the 20th June 1832, a Committee was appointed to consider of the expediency of continuing such publications, and the rate of remuneration which the editor should receive, which Committee reported that they were of opinion that "it was expedient to continue such publications under certain modification, and that the remuneration should be by fixed salary or allowance, rather than by the system hitherto pursued."

1822. Appointment of Sir Francis Palgrave as a Sub-Commissioner of Records, for the publication of the rolls of Parliament.

1832. Committee appointed to consider the expediency of continuing the works.

On the 9th March 1833, the Commissioners resolved, after deliberation, that the recommendation of the Committee be adopted, such salary or allowance to be in respect of general employment under the recent orders of the Board. That the sum of 1,000 l. per annum, payable quarterly, be tendered to Sir Francis Palgrave, for his services to the Board under the orders already passed for his employment, and under any other orders to be issued through the secretary to him, such salary not to be considered to preclude Sir Francis Palgrave from any avocation or employment not inconsistent with his duties under the Board; Sir Francis to make Reports to a Committee of Inspection three times in a year; and the resolutions having been transmitted to the undersigned by the secretary, with a communication that the salary would commence from the 25th March 1833, the undersigned by letter, dated 20th March 1833, accepted the said salary upon the conditions before specified.

9 March 1833. Order of Record Commission, fixing salary at 1,000 l. per annum.

The Record Commissioners completed the volumes of the Parliamentary writs then in the press, but the work was afterwards discontinued.

18 April 1834. Treasury Minute appointing Sir Francis Palgrave keeper.

2. By a Treasury Minute, dated 18th of April 1834, their Lordships were pleased to appoint the undersigned to the place of keeper, with the annual salary of 400 l., that heretofore received by the keepers of the records, and the present fees, or such fees as should be fixed thereafter for searches, or for copies furnished to the public; but reserving the question of what establishment might be necessary, the appointment to which will be made by my Lords, for future consideration, after my Lords should have any opportunity of consulting thereon with the Commissioners of Records; and in receiving this appointment, it was to be clearly understood by the undersigned, that his services under the Commissioners of Records are to be continued, but that the remuneration for such services is to be measured for the future, as that the annual emoluments from that, and with his salary of 400 l. a year as keeper of the records, and the produce of such fees to be received as before mentioned, shall not in the whole exceed 1,000 l., the sum then paid to him by the Commissioners of Records.

Report upon the office establishment made by the Commissioners of Records.

3. In pursuance of this Minute, the Commissioners of the Public Records appointed a Committee to examine into the state of this establishment, which Committee reported the salaries and hours of attendance of the clerks to the effect before stated; and particularly, "that Mr. Caley had led the clerks to consider that the arrangement of the records, and the making of calendars thereof, were only subordinate portions of their duty; that the salaries of these gentlemen were, considering the few hours of attendance, higher than the usual rate paid in similar establishments; and that the time devoted by them to the office business is much too short to enable them to clear off the great arrear of indexing and calendaring which remains to be performed; but as from the length of time that these gentlemen have held their situations, they would be entitled to retiring allowances, and, as they have all upon the faith of their first retainers, arranged their other avocations and employments with reference to their official employment, the Committee consider that it would be inexpedient and unjust either to remove them from their situations, or to demand any further attendance without any additional remuneration, but that they should be continued, provided that they will undertake to discharge their duties sufficiently, in such a manner as the principal of the office may direct; and the Committee thought it expedient to call the attention of the Board to this proviso, because during the time of the late Mr. Rose, and also of Mr. Caley, the management of the office was left almost wholly to the clerks, the principal scarcely ever giving his attendance, and therefore, as might naturally be expected, the relative situation of the principal and of the establishment are undefined; and the Committee are of opinion that the clerks should be informed that they are to act under the directions of the principal. The Committee further stated, that they were informed by the keeper that the clerks were willing to give additional attendance on being paid for the same, and that it had been proposed by the keeper that such additional remuneration should be made, by paying them according to the extent and nature of the work performed, the same to be certified to the secretary of the Record Commissioners, and paid by him out of the annual grant; and further, that from the great extent of the records remaining to be calendared, it was in their opinion desirable, that the keeper should employ an extra clerk or clerks for the purpose of assisting in the formation of the calendars, the expense to be paid out of the funds of the Commission; and the Commissioners further state, that they had inspected certain calendars referred to in a Report made by the undersigned keeper, and they thought it would be desirable that the more ancient should be prepared for the press, and that the secretary should be authorized to make such arrangements as might be necessary for such publication, and the Committee did not see any reason to recommend any alteration in the fees," as by the Report, a copy of which has been transmitted to their Lordships will more fully appear.

Arrangement as to salary, &c.

4. The undersigned has, from time to time, made his reports to the Record Commissioners, and to the Committee of Inspectors, and received instructions thereon; and he receives from them such a sum annually as, with the 400 l. received from the Treasury, and the balance of fees, (which, after payment of contingent expenses, is very small,) makes up the sum of 1,000 l., and the office is managed, and the duties thereof performed, by himself and the clerks, in the following manner:

5. The

5. The office is kept open daily throughout the year, with the exception of Christmas-day and Good Friday, and from nine in the morning till four or five in the afternoon; and the undersigned, Sir Francis Palgrave, the keeper, gives regular attendance throughout the year, (excepting in the long vacation*, and one week at Easter), and generally from nine or ten o'clock in the morning till four o'clock in the afternoon. As such resident and acting principal, he superintends, inspects and directs all the operations of the clerks in the general business of the office; and also in relation to making calendars, and to the arrangement and binding of the records, he himself performing such portions of these operations as, from their nature, require to be done by himself, and not by the clerks; and, in addition to the performance of these duties, he takes the duty of a clerk when, in consequence of indisposition or other causes, the clerk, whose duty it is to open or lock up, is unable to attend. The fees have not been altered; but, in the case of any general search, they are partially remitted, and all persons wishing to consult or make copies of records for historical or antiquarian information, are allowed to do so, free of expense, without any restrictions or conditions, excepting what may be required for the security of the records; and the opening of the office at nine o'clock has been found to afford an additional convenience to gentlemen so employed.

Duties performed by Sir Francis Palgrave as keeper.

With respect to the clerks in the establishment, the duties which they perform are as follow:

6. Mr. J. W. Clarke, the senior clerk, is not desirous of extending his attendance. He continues to act only under the Treasury constitution, and his attendance is therefore confined to the regular office hours, namely, from ten o'clock to one daily, excepting upon the old Exchequer holidays, all of which are regularly kept by him. He attends to searches, makes office copies, and arranges documents for the binders.

Actual duties performed by Mr. J. W. Clarke, the first clerk.

7. Mr. Charles Devon attends daily, including holidays, from one till four o'clock. He makes office copies when his help is required, arranges records in the presses and for the binding; and is employed upon the inventories thereof and calendars. He is not paid any salary for extra attendance; but a clerk, paid by him, attends daily, who assists him in making the inventories and calendars, and for which he, Mr. C. Devon, is paid by the Record Commissioners, at the rate of 4 d. per law folio of seventy-two words, upon his producing the work to the keeper properly corrected and arranged, and which he accepts as a compensation for his attendance on holidays. But this gentleman has informed the keepers that he is not desirous of increasing this attendance; i. e. of not giving, on the average, more than three hours per diem, as it would interfere with his other avocations; nor does he think that his health would admit of closer application.

Duties performed by Mr. C. Devon, second clerk.

8. Mr. F. Devon attends daily from nine o'clock in the morning till one P.M., and he returns again at four o'clock to shut up the office. If the office is kept open later than four, it is shut up by Mr. C. Devon, or by Sir Francis Palgrave. These arrangements are made to suit Mr. F. Devon's convenience, as he holds an appointment in the Duchy of Lancaster Office. He attends to searches, makes office copies when his help is required, arranges records for the binder, and is employed upon inventories thereof, under the direction of the keeper. For his extra attendance he receives 2 l. 2 s. per week from the Record Commission, and 2 l. 10 s. per quarter, out of the 80 l. allowed by the Treasury for contingencies.

Mr. F. Devon, third clerk.

9. Mr. Jowett, extra clerk, at a salary of 63 l. per annum, and Mr. J. Burt, extra clerk, at a salary of 50 l., paid by the Record Commissioners, are employed in arranging records, and upon inventories or calendars thereof, under the immediate direction of the keeper, and otherwise in the general business of the office, excepting that they are not employed in making searches or office copies; nor do they take any charge of the records, the same being intrusted to the office clerks. These gentlemen attend from nine till four o'clock, daily. They have both been many years in the public service, and deserve a higher salary than they at present receive.

Extra clerks, their names and duties.

Mr. J. C. Knight has been employed as an occasional assistant in transcribing matter matter for a catalogue of the more curious historical papers, under the direction of the keeper, at 10 l. 10 s. per quarter, and he has been paid out of a small balance in favour of the public, arising from a saving upon the allowance of 80 l. for contingencies. But when that balance is exhausted, his employment will be discontinued, unless funds are provided; but the undersigned is of opinion, that the integrity and industry and general qualifications of this gentleman deserve a permanent employment, (if he should be willing to undertake it,) as well as a higher remuneration.

III. Work performed since the Appointment of the present Keeper.

State and condition of the office when the appointment of Sir Francis Palgrave took place.

1. Upon the appointment of the present keeper, he found the office almost wholly unprovided with calendars, and the records wholly unprotected and exposed to damage and decay. (See Report to A. Y. Spearman, Esq., 9th March 1836, and the various Reports made by the undersigned to the Record Commissioners.)

These defects arose in part from the system enjoined by the late keeper, Mr. Caley, and which is stated by Mr. C. Devon, in his communication to Sir F. Palgrave (2d Jan. 1837), in the following manner, when reporting upon the duties which that gentleman required him to perform: "The chief duty pointed out to me by Mr. Caley was, to make myself generally acquainted with the nature of the records, so that I might be enabled to explain them to persons applying to make searches, and also, when called upon, to read and explain them to the House of Lords, committees of the House of Commons, and in the courts of justice, or at the assizes; and the duty required by Mr. Caley was, in arranging the records, to place them in open cupboards or on the open shelves, that we might be enabled to lay our hands on them without delay, from our local knowledge of where they are placed; not permitting us to lock up any thing, being a great enemy to the lock-up system, both in the Augmentation Office and Chapter House. Mr. Caley also recommended, when we had any leisure time, to calendar and index any of the more important records; but this he considered quite a secondary, and, comparatively speaking, unimportant duty, as he used to say, that a mere index-maker, or calendar-maker, must of necessity, from the nature of his occupation, become a dolt, being to the exclusion of more important knowledge." Mr. Caley, however, had only continued the system which he found; and the consequence was, that, upon the appointment of the undersigned, he received possession of the office in a state which, with the exception of very few of the more prominent classes of documents, rendered it impossible for any stranger to know what it contained; for although the clerks, from what Mr. Devon has termed their local knowledge, might be able to know something of the contents of a given stack or pile of records, still, as they were not distinguished by any labels, or tickets, or other designations, the undersigned could only ascertain their contents by personal examination.

Mr. Caley's views with respect to the mode of managing the office.

Mr. Caley's opinion respecting the formation of calendars.

State of the office when Sir F. Palgrave received his appointment.

The preceding observations apply to those records which had, to a certain degree, been in use; but there were many others which did not appear to have been disturbed since they were first deposited in the Chapter House. *

Furthermore, all the records were destitute of any protection against dirt, or any defence against loss or embezzlement, not above ten presses in the office being then provided with doors; and, in consequence of what Mr. Devon terms "Mr. Caley's objection to the lock-up system," few of these had locks, and of those which had, the keys were lost; and even Domesday was thus allowed to be at large. The only documents kept under lock and key were the golden bulls, which, on account of the value of the metal, were locked up in a desk.

The Record Commissioners, upon the application of the undersigned, provided locks and keys for the presses, and a considerable number of wooden boxes with locks and keys; other presses with locks and keys have also been furnished by the Board of Works; and the records which heretofore were in the open presses have been arranged and put away, as far as the means possessed by the keeper will allow. A very considerable portion of the time of the keeper in the years 1834–5, was thus employed in the general survey and examination of the records.

Employment of the keeper in 1834 and 1835.

* And for want of presses and funds to clean them, he has been compelled to allow many so to continue, particularly the very valuable papers relating to the proceedings of the Court of Wards and Liveries, and the Court of Requests.

records. In particular, his attention was called to a very large mass of unsorted documents, which were placed on the north side of the dark passage leading to the Cloisters. These were removed into the attic, and upon examination thereof, he ascertained that, amongst many documents of little value, and others rendered wholly useless by damp and neglect, it contained others of great curiosity and value, and which may be briefly enumerated under the following heads: Royal correspondence and state papers from Edward II. to Henry VIII.; despatches; papers relating to the divorce of Queen Catherine; drafts of ancient acts of parliament; proclamations; bills of privy seal; accounts of receipts and payments of the royal household; revels; army and navy accounts; and judicial documents of every description, which, when bound and arranged, will make many hundred volumes of great curiosity and importance, and which have been stowed away so as to preserve them from loss or damage, but which nevertheless cannot be rendered useful or accessible to the public, until sufficient funds are provided for cleaning and binding the same.

Progress made therein.

2. The cleansing and binding of the records being an indispensable preliminary to their arrangement, various applications have been made to their Lordships, which, as the subject is still before them, are not stated in this place; but as many records, &c., have been delivered out for binding, &c., as the funds provided would allow; and the formation of calendars and inventories has also been carried on to the utmost extent which can be effected by the employment of the time of the keeper in the office, as before mentioned, and the strength and nature of the establishment under his direction; and the following is the result:

Star-Chamber proceedings of the reigns of Henry VIII. and Philip and Mary, bundled, endorsed, and arranged in alphabetical order for the binder. Of these, 13 volumes have been bound, and as many are arranged as will make 35 volumes more.

Books of orders, decrees, and other proceedings of the Court of Requests, 226 arranged for the binder, of which 46 volumes have been bound.

Rolls of the Curia Regis, King's Bench and Common Pleas, from 5 Richard I. to Edward II., labelled and arranged in boxes; and of which 578 rolls have been cleansed, covered and repaired.

Assize, iter, crown gaol delivery, quo warranto, and other judicial rolls of a similar description, commonly called County Rolls, arranged in their proper presses and boxes, from Bedford to Northampton*; of these 338 have been cleansed, covered and repaired.

Post-mortem inquisitions, arranged and bound in 17 volumes, and many more arranged for binding.

Indexes and volumes of curious miscellaneous documents, ancient correspondence, inventories, household accounts, sorted, arranged and bound, or placed in proper trunks or cases, about 200.

N.B.—All the operations of binding and arrangement upon the above-mentioned classes are suspended until further directions are obtained from the Treasury, or from the Commissioners upon the Public Records.

Pell rolls and other finance rolls, from Henry III. to Elizabeth, sorted, labelled, and properly arranged in presses until they can be cleansed and arranged in pasteboard boxes.

Privy seals from the reign of Henry VIII. to Charles I. arranged in bundles and endorsed, and many other records placed in boxes and lock-up presses, so as to be preserved from further damage, until they can be sorted and prepared for binding.

Calendars and indexes, &c.

3. The absence of calendars, and the manner in which the late keeper discouraged their formation, will appear from other parts of this Report; and since the appointment of the present keeper the following work has been performed, for the purpose of rendering the records under his care more useful and accessible to the public, viz.:

Ancient calendars and inventories of the treasury of the Exchequer, with an historical essay, containing a description of the records in this repository, three volumes 8vo., prepared for the press by the keeper, and edited by him, pursuant to the recommendation of the Committee of the Record Commissioners. This work, work, which forms the proper introduction to any modern calendars, it may hereafter be thought fit to publish, and it is of great curiosity as well as utility in identifying the records.

Rolls of the Curia Regis, 5 Richard I. to 1 John inclusive, published and edited by the keeper from the records in this repository, with introductions, tables, indexes; two volumes 8vo.

Ancient documents relating to the history of Scotland, published and edited by the keeper from originals in this repository, with introductions, tables and indexes, (in the press).

The keeper has prefixed to all the works published and edited by him from the records in this office, a certificate or attestation, that all the proof sheets of the respective volumes have been examined, collated and compared by him with the original records under his care, and that the printed text is an accurate copy of such records. By thus giving to the public printed copies of the records certified by the keeper and accompanied by indexes, the contents of a record office are thrown open, as it were, much more effectually than they can be by calendars.

Press calendars * of the assize, iter, quo warranto, and the county rolls, above mentioned (p. 51). These rolls consist of two sets. The first series is completely calendared. Of the second series about two-thirds are calendared, but not arranged, boxes not being provided, but inventories * have been made of the whole. The rolls of the first series have been arranged in boxes as far as Northampton, but boxes are wanting to complete the arrangement of the remainder.

Press calendars of the rolls of the Curia Regis, King's Bench and Common Pleas, to the 14 Edward I., and inventories * of all the rolls of the King's Bench and Common Pleas to the conclusion of each series.

Press inventory of the pell and other financial rolls of the Exchequer.

Index to the names of the writers of the letters contained in the first eight volumes of the Cromwell correspondence, since removed to the State Paper Office.

Inventory of inquisitions post mortem, for the reigns of Henry VIII. and part of Elizabeth.

Matter collected and transcribed, to be employed in the catalogues of the miscellaneous documents and state papers in the library. These catalogues will be more interesting to the general reader than those of any other class.

Concerning the binding of the records, as well as upon the formation of the calendars and catalogues, the undersigned has recently addressed two Reports to the Record Commissioners, respectively dated the 24th December 1836, and 4th January 1837, and he is now waiting their instructions. From these Reports, as well as from others upon the same subject which he has presented to that Board and also to the Treasury, sufficient information may be collected as to the quantity of work remaining to be performed, and of the means which will be required for its performance, and he earnestly solicits the early decision of the proper authorities thereon.

* The calendars contain the full headings and titles of all the sessions and adjournments of the courts and circuits. The inventories only the county and date.

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 12 April 1837;—for,

COPY of a LETTER from Commodore Lord John Hay, containing an Account of the Co-operation afforded by the SEAMEN and MARINES under his Command to the Troops of the QUEEN OF SPAIN, on the 15th and 16th March 1837.

His Majesty's Steam Ship Phœnix,
Passages, 18 March 1837.

Sir,

I HAVE the honour to enclose, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, the duplicate of a letter which I have this day addressed to Vice-Admiral Sir William Hall Gage.

I have, &c.

Charles Wood, Esq.
Secretary, &c. Admiralty.

(signed) John Hay, Commodore.

Sir,

H. M. Ship North Star, Passages, 18 March 1837.

I HAD the honour to acquaint you by letter, bearing date the 10th instant, of the successful attack made by H. C. Majesty's forces on the entrenched positions of the insurgents in this neighbourhood, and the part which H. M. naval forces took in the affair.

The severity of the weather, it appears, delayed any further operations until the 15th instant, when H. C. Majesty's army crossed the Urumea, and immediately advanced to attack the Venta, a strongly-fortified height, with a redoubt and some large guns on its summit, and entrenched in every direction.

On the first advance of H. C. Majesty's army the insurgents retired within their parapets, which were vigorously attacked at six P. M., under a heavy fire of artillery and musquetry, and after a most determined resistance the positions were carried with great gallantry.

At daylight, the following morning, H. C. Majesty's army advanced to invest the town of Hernani, and about nine, A. M., had succeeded, after considerable resistance, in occupying all the heights north of that town. About ten, the insurgents were observed to receive large reinforcements by the Tolosa road, and which continued to arrive until noon, when a most vigorous attack was made by them on the position held by H. C. Majesty's forces, and which was so far successful as to oblige the troops on the left to retire, with loss, to the positions they occupied the previous evening.

The position on the right of the Venta, or where the artillery was placed, was also vigorously attacked by a strong column, which was successfully resisted, and the insurgents compelled to give way.

To this point Lieutenant-colonel Owen had advanced the battalion of Royal Marines to support the artillery. The important service rendered to H. C. Majesty's army by the judicious conduct of this zealous and excellent officer reflects the highest credit on him, and I had great satisfaction in noticing the steadiness and determination displayed by the officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of the battalion under his command.

The check which the insurgents met with at this period of the day left H. C. Majesty's army at liberty to maintain its position or not, the insurgents appearing to show no inclination to renew the attack.

As I considered the force belonging to H. M. squadron employed on this occasion had rendered all the assistance they were calculated to afford, I directed the different detachments to return to their ships, and the marine battalion and artillery to the positions they occupy for the protection of H. M. ships in the ports of San Sebastian and Passages.

Some

Some time afterwards I observed H. C. Majesty's army retire to the Ayete lines, on the left of the Urumea, which they continue to occupy, with the positions on the right of that river taken from the insurgents on the 10th inst.

I have the greatest satisfaction in stating that the different detachments belonging to H. M's. squadron, the Royal Marine battalion, Royal and Royal Marine Artillery, ordered to co-operate with H. C. Majesty's army during these operations, conducted themselves much to my satisfaction; and I am particularly indebted to Lieutenant Colquhoun commanding the Royal Artillery, and to the commanders and commanding officers of H. M's. vessels at San Sebastian and Passages, for the zeal, judgment and gallantry with which they carried my orders into effect.

The losses sustained by H. C. Majesty's army from the 10th to the 16th inst. amounts to about 1,300 killed and wounded, and the most authentic information reports that of the insurgents to be 2,000.

H. C. Majesty's forces in the action of the 16th did not exceed 9,000 bayonets, and it is accurately ascertained that of the insurgents amounted to 16,000.

I have the honour to enclose lists of the casualties sustained by the force belonging to His Majesty's squadron.

BOARD OF TRADE.

No. 1.

No. 1. Memorial from Glasgow; received 15 May 1832.

Unto the Right honourable the President and the other Members of the Board of Trade.

The MEMORIAL of the undersigned Merchants and Manufacturers of the city of Glasgow, interested in the trade of Spain;

Humbly sheweth,

THAT by the Treaty of London, in 1809, it was agreed to proceed to the negotiation of a Treaty of Commerce between Great Britain and Spain; that again by the Treaty of Madrid, in 1814, the contracting parties promised to proceed without delay to the formation of a definitive arrangement of commerce; that notwithstanding these stipulations, and notwithstanding the present very unsatisfactory state of the commercial relations between the two countries, your Memorialists are not aware that any progress has been made towards the attainment of so desirable an object.

That it would be of great importance to the interests of this country were its manufactures, particularly those of cotton, admitted freely into Spain on payment of a moderate fixed duty; and your Memorialists beg, therefore, earnestly to call the attention of your Honourable Board to the subject; and that you will take such steps as are likely to lead to a beneficial commercial arrangement with the Spanish Government.

No. 2. Memorial from Greenock.

Unto the Right honourable the President and the Honourable the other Members of the Board of Trade.

The humble MEMORIAL of the Chamber of Commerce of Greenock, incorporated by Royal Charter;

Sheweth,

THAT the formation of a Treaty of Commerce between Great Britain and Spain, on liberal and equitable principles, would be attended with important advantages to both countries.

That the correctness of this position has been recognized in the Treaty of London in 1809, and that of Madrid in 1814, in both of which the contracting parties undertook to proceed without delay in the formation of a definitive commercial arrangement; but, notwithstanding these stipulations, no progress has yet been made towards an improvement in the state of the commercial relations of the two countries.

That much of the commercial prosperity of this port depends on the success of the Newfoundland fisheries and of the sugar refinery business, both of which branches of trade are engaged in very extensively by parties resident here.

That the Spanish ports are shut against our refined sugars, and the produce of our fisheries is only admitted on payment of a duty which almost amounts to a prohibition; and while it would be of vast importance to the commercial interests of this country generally, and to those of this port in particular, if our manufactures and the produce of our colonies were freely admitted into the Spanish market on payment of a moderate fixed duty, it would equally tend to the advantage of Spain, by opening an advantageous market for their produce in exchange.

May it therefore please your Honourable Board to take the state of the commercial relations between this country and Spain into your early consideration, and adopt the necessary steps for arranging a Commercial Treaty between the two countries on broad and liberal principles. And your Memorialists will ever pray.

Memorial from Edinburgh; received 13 August 1833.

To the Right honourable the President and Members of the Board of Trade.

The Memorial of the Chamber of Commerce and Manufactures of the City of Edinburgh;

Sheweth,

That the attention of your Memorialists has been strongly called to the long and unaccountable delay which has taken place in arranging a definitive Treaty of Commerce between Great Britain and Spain in terms of the Treaty of London 1809, and of Madrid in 1814—an arrangement for the accomplishment of which several of the most distinguished members of both Governments have expressed themselves as highly favourable.

That your Memorialists forbear stating in detail the manifold advantages that would accrue to both countries in consequence of such a treaty, aware that your Honourable Board are already in possession of the most ample information. But, in coming before your Honourable Board, your Memorialists cannot refrain from noticing most particularly the great importance of the admission into Spain of cotton goods, the manufacture of this country, on payment of a fixed duty; and they therefore most earnestly entreat your Honourable Board to take such steps, either by the appointment of a Commercial Commission or otherwise, as are most likely and speedily to lead to a definitive and beneficial commercial arrangement with the Spanish Government.

All which is most humbly submitted and signed in the name and on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce and Manufactures of the City of Edinburgh, at (L. S.) Edinburgh, and the seal of the Corporation affixed thereto, on the 5th day of August 1833.

The Memorial of the undersigned Merchants of the city of Glasgow, interested in the trade of Spain.

The Memorialists respectfully submit to your Honourable Board, that notwithstanding the exertions which they are assured have been made for completing a commercial treaty between this country and Spain, no arrangement has yet been effected, and they have still to regret the continuance of all the prohibitions and restrictions in full force against our imports into Spain.

In consequence, however, of the recent changes in the administration at Madrid, and of the accession to power of a minister who has expressed himself as favourable to a change of the existing douanier system, your Memorialists are induced to hope that their object to gain the admission of our cotton manufactures into Spain may now be of more easy attainment; and they respectfully and earnestly beg to call the attention of your Honourable Board to this very important subject.

Memorial from Newfoundland.

The Memorial of the President, Vice-Presidents and Members of the Chamber of Commerce of Saint John's, in the Island of Newfoundland;

Humbly sheweth,

That your Petitioners, in common with all others connected with this island, have to lament a succession of unproductive fishing seasons for several years past, whereby numbers of persons have been plunged into the greatest distress.

That last year the fishery carried on at Labrador was attended with an almost total failure, and that in the present and last years the seal fishery on this coast has been much less successful than in former years.

That at the close of the last year several hundreds of our best fishermen left the colony for the United States of America; and now, after the unsuccessful seal fishery of the present season, great numbers more are following in the same direction, inasmuch that serious apprehensions are felt lest all the activity and enterprise of these fisheries, so important to the present country in a national point of view, should be transferred to a rival nation.

That the fishery at the Labrador, being exceedingly precarious, derives its value chiefly from the employment it has given of late years to the sealing vessels and men, after the termination termination of the seal fishery, and was, as is doubtless known to his Majesty's Government, but little pursued from this island, until, by the late treaties which ceded to France and America a right to occupy the part of our shores to which the sealing vessels had formerly resorted for the cod-fishery, his Majesty's subjects were driven from their own coasts to seek elsewhere new but vastly inferior sources of employment for the capital and industry which these treaties so suddenly paralysed. No. 5. Memorial from Newfoundland.

That, previous to the year 1814, your Memorialists enjoyed the benefit of a market in the ports of Spain to the extent of 400,000 quintals of fish per annum; but the duty, which until that time had been so low as 3*s.* 8*d.* per quintal, was then suddenly raised, and now amounts to 14*s.* per quintal; in consequence of which, the article not being within the reach of the great body of the people, its consumption has greatly diminished, and does not now amount to 100,000 quintals per annum.

That your Memorialists, anxious to discover some means of relief from the difficulties which press upon their commerce, have been induced to hope that means may be found by his Majesty's Government to prevail on the Government of Spain to reduce the duty now payable upon the importation of British-caught fish, so that the market formerly enjoyed in that kingdom may be restored.

All which your Memorialists humbly submit for the consideration of his Majesty's Government.

No. 6.

To the Right honourable the Lords of the Committee for the Affairs of Trade. No. 6. Memorial from Liverpool.

My Lords,

In compliance with a resolution of the Liverpool Mediterranean and Levant Association, I have the honour to lay before your Lordships the substance of a communication which the Committee of this Association has received from houses interested in the Spanish trade, relative to the unsatisfactory state of the commercial relations between the two countries, as regards the legal admission of our cotton and woollen manufactures and hardware into Spain.

It appears by the Treaty of London in 1809 (referring to previous treaties embracing the same object), that both Governments agreed to proceed to the negotiation of a treaty of commerce; and by the Treaty of Madrid in 1814, they again contracted to proceed without delay to the formation of a definitive arrangement, containing stipulations for the introduction of English manufactures into Spain on the most favourable footing; and that, pending the negotiation, Great Britain should be admitted to trade with Spain upon the same conditions which existed previous to the year 1796, and which conditions permitted the introduction of woollens.

Yet, notwithstanding the anxiety evinced by this country for such a treaty, and the acknowledged existence of these regulations, the Spanish Government has returned to a system of exclusion and prohibition of our principal manufactures more analogous to a state of war than in accordance with the regulations in question, and has converted our export trade, amounting to 3,000,000*l.* sterling annually, into a system of contraband, as injurious to the revenue of Spain as it is ruinous to the fair English trader.

It is not necessary to detail the various injuries inflicted on the commerce of this country by this system, as they are, no doubt, familiar to your Lordships, beyond stating that she prohibits the admission of all English cotton manufactures, while Spain is dependent on England for a market for wines, fruit, oil, wool, &c.; and that, although the duties on the importation of Spanish wool have been relinquished in England, the manufactures made from the coarse wools of England are prohibited in Spain; and yet, despite of their prohibitions, it is universally known they are introduced by contraband through Portugal, Gibraltar, and the North Coast of Spain.

The object of this application is to suggest the propriety of re-establishing our former relations with Spain, and of completing the intended arrangement, alluded to in the Treaty of 1814, on a basis of reciprocal advantage; and the importance of this object is the more apparent, when it is stated that the single item of cotton manufactures amounts to nearly two-thirds of the whole value of the export trade of Great Britain.

As it is thought the recent changes in the Spanish Government point out the present time as peculiarly favourable to the attainment of a commercial treaty, coupled with the well-known predilection of the Spaniards for English productions, and dealings with British merchants in all countries where our manufactures are attainable from Lima to Manilla, I am induced to hope that his Majesty's Government will as speedily as possible adopt measures calculated to attain this object, alike beneficial to both countries.

I have the honour to be, &c.

To the Right honourable the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations.

We, the undersigned merchants in Liverpool, interested in the trade and fisheries of Newfoundland, beg leave most respectfully to memorialize your Lordships on the subject of the high duties on Newfoundland cod-fish in the kingdoms of Spain and Naples.

Since the year 1814, when the royal duty in Spain was increased from 20 reals to 48 reals per quintal, the consumption in that country has materially diminished; so much so, that the present consumption in many of the Spanish markets is but little more than one-fifth of what it was previous to the increase of duty.

This loss of market has been most severely felt in Newfoundland, and has caused the fishery of that island to labour under very great depression.

We, your Memorialists, therefore most respectfully beg that your Lordships will be pleased to exert your influence in any negotiations that may take place with the Governments of Spain and Naples to effect a reduction of these excessive and oppressive duties, and adopt such measures in regard thereto as your Lordships may deem expedient.

And your Memorialists will ever pray.

The Memorial of the undersigned Merchants in Greenock, interested in the Trade and Fisheries of Newfoundland;

Sheweth,

That the excessive duties on cod-fish imported into the kingdoms of Spain and Naples are most injurious to the interests of the Newfoundland fisheries.

That the Spanish duties, namely, the royal duty of 48 reals per quintal, with some local imports, amount to fully 13*s.* sterling per British hundred weight, and are equal to about 130 per cent. on the prime cost.

That the Neapolitan duties amount to about 8*s.* 10*d.* sterling per British hundred weight, equal to nearly 90 per cent. on the cost.

That the effect of such exorbitant taxation in diminishing consumption is strikingly shown in the annexed statement of the annual imports of cod-fish at Alicant from the year 1813 till the year 1832, the royal duty having been raised in the year 1814 from 20 to 48 reals per quintal.

That, taking such statement as a fair criterion of the decrease in the imports at the other ports of Spain, it will be obvious that the loss of market for so large a portion of its produce must have been severely felt in Newfoundland, and is, in fact, sufficient to account for much of the depression under which the cod-fishery of that island now labours.

That the recent establishment of a more liberal government in Spain, and the proposed reduction of the British duties on various articles of Mediterranean produce, encourage the memorialists to hope that the influence of his Majesty's Government, if now exerted for that purpose, may be successful in effecting a remedy for the evil herein complained of.

May it therefore please your Lordships to take this memorial into consideration, and to adopt, in regard thereto, such measures as you may deem proper. And your memorialists will ever pray.

Memorial from Greenock.

During the year 1813 and part of 1814 the duty on cod-fish was 20 rs. per quintal. By the above note is seen, according as the duties were risen, the importation diminished, and the loss to the revenue in proportion, as proved by the following example:—

In 1814,	143,600 quintals fish produced, at	20 rs. per quintal - -	$143,600
1832,	26,700 „	48 rs. „ - -	64,080
		Loss to the revenue - -	$79,520

The duties in Spain are calculated by Castile (or Cadiz) weight, about 9¼ per cent. less than the English cwt. The 20 rs. and 48 rs. per quintal are royal duties alone; the aggregates amount to 2 rs. 30 mrs. per Castile quintal, or 3 rs. 6 mrs. per English cwt. at this moment, besides gate or consumption duties. The Alicant weight is a trifle heavier than the cwt.

The MEMORIAL of the undersigned Merchants of the City of Glasgow, interested in the Trade of Spain.

The Memorialists respectfully submit to your Lordship that the following Petition from the Chamber of Commerce of this City was sent to the Board of Trade in the month of May 1832:—

"Humbly sheweth,

"That, by the Treaty of London in 1809, it was agreed to proceed to the negotiation of a Treaty of Commerce between Great Britain and Spain. That, again, by the Treaty of Madrid in 1814, the contracting parties promised to proceed without delay to the formation of a definitive arrangement of commerce. That, notwithstanding these stipulations, and notwithstanding the present very unsatisfactory state of the commercial relations between the two countries, your Memorialists are not aware that any progress has been made towards the attainment of so desirable an object.

"That it would be of great importance to the interests of this country were its manufactures, particularly those of cotton, admitted freely into Spain on payment of a moderate fixed duty; and your Memorialists beg, therefore, earnestly to call the attention of your Honourable Board to the subject, and that you will take such steps as are likely to lead to a beneficial commercial arrangement with the Spanish Government."

(Signed by the Chairman, and sealed with the seal of the Chamber.)

That memorials of similar import have been sent from various other mercantile communities in this country; and although the importance of such an arrangement is admitted, and the object universally desired, your Memorialists have still to regret the delay in carrying it into effect, and beg earnestly to call the attention of Government to the completion of so desirable an arrangement.

The humble MEMORIAL of the Directors of the Chamber of Commerce and Manufactures, established by Royal Charter in the City of Glasgow;

Sheweth,

THAT your Memorialists are led to believe that there is a probability of negotiations being entered into for placing the commercial relations between this country and Spain on a more satisfactory footing. That your Memorialists cannot doubt that in such a case all the great and varied interests of this country will receive at your Lordship's hands that care and attention which their vast importance demands, and they would therefore think it presumptuous to offer any general suggestions regarding these. Your Memorialists, however, feel it to be their duty to bring under your Lordship's notice a special case, in which great injury has been done to the British interests at Gibraltar by certain regulations of the Government of the late King of Spain, in the face even, as they conceive, of existing treaties, by which manufactures and produce of various kinds (not contraband) are, when imported into Spain through Gibraltar, exposed to much heavier duties, in some cases double to what they are subjected to when imported through French, Italian or other free ports, while Spanish shipping touching even at Gibraltar are deprived of their national privileges.

Considering the immense importance of Gibraltar to this country as an entrepôt for produce and manufactures, your Memorialists feel confident that it is only necessary to call your Lordship's attention to the injurious tendency of these regulations to secure your obtaining their recall, whether the opportunity of negotiating a new commercial treaty should occur or not.

Memorial from Alicant.

My Lord, Alicant, March 16, 1836.

It being notorious that British interests and British security have for many years past been almost totally neglected by our representatives at the Court of Madrid, notwithstanding the representations repeatedly made by British residents in Spain, we, the undersigned English merchants residing in Alicant, take the liberty to recommend to the attention of your Lordship a few observations respecting the trade between England and Spain, and the grievances we have been obliged to submit to for want of protection from home.

The friendly feeling throughout the country towards England for the generous assistance she gives to the cause of the Queen, and a just, liberal and enlightened ministry being fortunately now at the head of affairs in Spain, make this one of the most favourable moments for urging the Spanish Government to adopt a less disadvantageous system towards Great Britain than at present exists; and we do not hesitate to say, that it is our firm conviction that any just demands will now be promptly acceded to, and that, on making them, it will be found that the question is not beset with those great difficulties which many suppose. Reciprocity should, in our opinion, be the basis on which any new arrangement should be founded, and we accompany a schedule or plan (No. 1) which may assist your Lordship in framing the new commercial treaty. The disadvantages under which British commerce with Spain labours are numerous; but we shall confine ourselves to some of the principal, not doubting but your Lordship will be in possession of many particulars in that respect from other quarters.

The duties on the articles comprising list (No. 2) in many instances are so high, that they amount so near to a probibition as to make their admission, in some instances, a mere illusion. It is therefore most desirable that they should be lowered by at least one-half, which would produce to Spain an increase instead of a diminution of revenue, and would be merely reciprocating the reduction made in England last year on the duties on several articles of Spanish produce, such as oil, raisins, barilla, &c.—a reduction, allow us to observe, my Lord, which should only have been made upon some corresponding benefit being conceded to England. Spanish produce carried to Great Britain in Spanish vessels is admitted there on payment of the same duties as when imported in British bottoms; whereas in Spain the produce of England in English vessels pays an increase of duties, in some cases amounting to double. This evil, if not remedied, will shortly exclude English vessels from trading with Spain entirely. A great number of Spanish vessels already frequent Newfoundland and other English possessions, with which our flag cannot compete, owing to the difference of duties; so also, on exportation, those articles of produce subject to a duty pay more in foreign vessels than in Spanish. This measure in itself is most unjust, but now it threatens much injury to British navigation, and deserves the particular attention of Government.

We subjoin another list (No. 3) which comprises articles altogether prohibited, and whose importation ought to be allowed under a protecting duty, established, not on a prohibitory, but on a scale that will leave to the natives a fair field for competition.

Your Lordship may not be aware, that although in the Spanish tariff of duties one single duty appears, there are so many additions under different denominations, that the tariff duty is a complete deception, being in many cases almost doubled; and as these additions are put on without any previous information being given to the public, the greatest uncertainty exists in all our Custom-house transactions, and real injury is done by calculations being made on one footing, whilst one is constantly surprised by some new unknown impost. This should be remedied by one sole defined duty being established, as is done in England.

Another evil, and a very great one, which attends commerce in Spain, is, that when Government makes any alteration in duties or regulations, no previous advice is ever given, thus taking the merchants unawares, in most cases to their very great injury.

The extent of about 70 leagues of coast from Alicant to beyond Almeira produces barilla in large quantities, which is an important article of cultivation to the grower. Unfortunately, however, the exportation is falling off year after year, owing to the substitution of chemical preparations. Ireland alone continues to import the finest kind, principally for the purpose of bleaching; but in that country also, substitutes are rapidly getting into use, and it is to be apprehended that very shortly that market will be lost to us, unless England and Spain come to some arrangement on this, to both countries, important branch of trade. Both have a deep interest in preserving it, which can only be done by the English Government ment taking off the duty of 2*s.* per cent. which is still levied on importation, and the Spanish Government in return allowing the importation, free of duty, of Irish linens. The above import duty of 2*s.* per cent. is returned when the article is employed in bleaching, the use to which it is principally put; so that, after all, Government reaps no benefit from it, and the drawback has the evil effect of facilitating unfair dealing, to the detriment of the honest importer, and to the trade in general; and the feeling in Ireland is against the duty, but more so against the drawback. It has been fully proved by experience that there is no chemical preparation which does not injure the quality of linen; hence the falling off in the French linen trade, the inferiority in point of strength and beauty in the linens of other countries when compared with those of Ireland, which are bleached with a mixture of barilla and potashes; but if the use of substitutes goes on gaining ground, be assured, my Lord, that the same fate awaits the linen trade of Ireland as that experienced by other countries. The linen trade of Ireland is one of immense importance, and ought to enjoy the particular protection of Government; and as Spain takes a most lively interest in the cultivation of barilla, we feel certain, my Lord, that she would make some sacrifice for its preservation. It is important to observe, that although Ireland is the only country where barilla is still used for bleaching, her linens pay a duty in Spain about 50 per °/₀ higher than those of Brabant.

No. 11. Memorial from Alicant.

England carries off at least three-fourths of the whole produce of Spain, and Spain takes very little from England in return, except what is clandestinely introduced.

The consumption of cod-fish would be greatly increased in this country if the duties were lowered, and English manufactures would find a constant market were they permitted to enter at a fair duty. It is true that large quantities come into the country fraudulently; but this, if calculated upon at all by the English Government, is at best but a very precarious vent for them. The Spanish Government is quite alive to the injurious effects of such a system of contraband, and would be glad to reap the benefit which would result to the revenue by admitting manufactures on payment of a reasonable duty; but being perhaps under the necessity of flattering the prejudices of a certain portion of the kingdom, some difficulty would be encountered on this point; but every other proposal from England, with a view to improve the commercial intercourse between the two nations, we are convinced, my Lord, would meet with prompt acquiescence on the part of the Spanish Government.

We have, my Lord, endeavoured to point out to you the principal evils of the existing system of commercial intercourse between England and Spain,—a system disadvantageous to both countries, and whose reform it is the interest of all parties to co-operate in effecting.

We now come, my Lord, to the subject of the grievances we have been enduring for a great number of years. All our applications to the ambassador at Madrid have been of no avail; on the contrary, seeing the little zeal displayed by our natural protectors, the local authorities conceived that we can be maltreated with the greatest impunity.

Forced contributions and loans have been on many occasions imposed upon us in a most arbitrary manner; and in some cases, when we complained to the ambassadors, and were instructed by them to resist and protest, our property has been seized and sold at public auction at a great sacrifice. Our dwelling-houses have invariably been and are still marked out for the billeting of officers, whilst those of several classes of the natives are exempt from the same burthen. A contribution denominated "Subsidy of Commerce" is levied for many years back on the body of merchants throughout the kingdom, a given sum being assessed to each town, and the distribution being made by the Chambers of Commerce. Of the sum paid by Alicant, above one-fourth is levied on the English. A contribution to repay to France the expenses of the invasion of 1823 is imposed, and we are also obliged to bear a proportion of it. Redress our representatives have never obtained, whilst we have the intolerable mortification to see that especially the ministers of France and America, when under the necessity of having to make complaints, obtain almost immediate satisfaction, owing to the energy and firmness they display, which produces respect and consideration for the natives of those countries, which the British subject, abandoned as he is by his natural protectors, is very far from enjoying. Numerous unlawful prizes have been made along this coast of vessels under the British flag, whilst our ships of war, though passing up and down the Mediterranean within sight of our shores, never visited or entered a Spanish port for the space of eleven years in reference to Alicant, and for many other ports, until the arrival here of the "Barham" frigate about two years ago.

We advance nothing, my Lord, but what can be proved, and we beg to refer your Lordship to J. B. Renny, esq. for the corroboration of our statements, this gentleman having in his possession sundry documents relative to them.

With a firm reliance that your Lordship will not defer taking the necessary measures to prevent a continuance of the oppression we are accustomed to experience, and looking forward to the moment when, by your Lordship's mediation, we shall again enjoy security for our persons and property, and due respect for our quality of British subjects,

We have, &c.

Memorial from London; received 27 May 1837.

The MEMORIAL of the undersigned Merchants of London connected by Trade with Spain;

Humbly sheweth,

THAT your Lordship's Memorialists are convinced that the commercial relations between this country and Spain stand in need of the prompt and energetic interference of his Majesty's Government towards enforcing some reciprocity in the international dealings; for that, notwithstanding the considerable reduction which took place in this country two or three years ago in the import duties upon commodities, the staples of Spanish produce, such as fruit, oil, and so forth, Spain has done nothing in return, and leaves British trade subject to great hardships in several particulars, three main items of which your Memorialists desire here to submit to your Lordship's consideration.

I. Irish linens imported into Spain pay a higher rate of duty than any other, though they are the only linens bleached with Spanish barilla.

II. British Newfoundland cod-fish imported into Spain in British bottoms pays about 3*l.* the ton more duty than the same commodity imported in Spanish bottoms, the total impost on this article being fully equal to the first cost and freight to Spain.

III. Generally the greater number of commodities, the growth, produce or manufacture of this country, imported into Spain in British bottoms, pay heavier duties by one-third than the like merchandise when imported in Spanish bottoms.

Your Memorialists submit to your Lordship, that so far as the charge of non-reciprocity goes, the late precedent of the case of Portugal should be at once followed, and a heavier rate of duty be applied to goods imported from Spain into this country in Spanish bottoms than attaches to the same goods arriving in British bottoms; and with regard to the exorbitant duty levied in Spain on Newfoundland fish and British linens, your Memorialists submit to your Lordship, as they intend to do more at large to the Board of Trade, that taking off altogether the duty on barilla would be the best means of bringing the Spanish Government to a proper feeling on that subject.

And your Lordship's Memorialists will ever pray.

The MEMORIAL of the undersigned Merchants of Poole connected by trade with Spain;

Humbly sheweth,

THAT your Lordship's Memorialists are convinced that the time is come that his Majesty's Government ought to enforce reciprocity in the commercial relations between this country and Spain, and especially in the branch of Newfoundland cod-fish, which, imported into Spain in British bottoms, pays about 3 l. the ton, or about 25 per cent. more duty than the same commodity imported in Spanish bottoms, the total import on this article being fully equal to the first cost and freight to Spain. This very considerable evil demands, in common justice, as regards our trade, that the late precedent of the case of Portugal should be at once followed up, and a heavier rate of duty be applied to goods imported from Spain into this country in Spanish bottoms than attaches to the same goods arriving in British bottoms; and further, that an equal duty of 3 l. per ton be exacted in Newfoundland upon all cod-fish exported in Spanish bottoms. This protection to the shipping interest would not interfere or be injurious to the interest of the fishery, because precisely the same quantity of fish would be exported for Spain, whether carried thither by British or Spanish vessels, to meet the demand in that country, which demand is not regulated or influenced by the nature of the flag, the above differential duty being pocketed by the Spanish shipowner or speculator, while the purchaser or consumer pays exactly the same price for the commodity as when introduced by British vessels.

And your Lordship's Memorialists will ever pray.

No. 14. Memorial from Liverpool; received 26th June 1837.

The MEMORIAL of the undersigned Merchants of Liverpool;

Humbly sheweth,

THAT your Lordship's Memorialists, who are British shipowners, and are engaged also in the fisheries in Newfoundland, have observed the step lately adopted to enforce reciprocity in the commercial dealings with Portugal, and consequently expect that his Majesty's Government will immediately enforce the same with respect to Spain, the differential duties exacted on all imports by British vessels in that country being very heavy, and having existed many years. Your Memorialists hope, in common justice, that this great obstacle to their trade with Spain will be removed at once, for they cannot conceive why one set of British merchants trading with Portugal should meet with such prompt attention, and those trading with Spain be so totally neglected. Not only has Spain not lowered her duty on cod-fish after the great reduction that has taken place in this country on many articles of her produce, but she still perseveres in exacting about 3 l. per ton higher duty on all cod-fish imported in British bottoms than when it is imported by Spanish vessels. The consequence is daily becoming more manifest; most of the Spanish ports are obtaining their supplies by Spanish vessels, some indeed already to the total exclusion of British shipping. Your Memorialists therefore not only suggest that the step lately taken with Portugal should be followed up in a similar manner with regard to Spain, but that a duty of 3 l. per ton be exacted on all cod-fish exported from Newfoundland or Halifax by Spanish vessels. This measure would be far from injurious to the fishery, as it would merely cause the carrying trade to return to its former and natural channel. This trade of the Spaniards, however, is so far injurious to the fishery, since they are not permitted to import any thing into Newfoundland, while many British vessels that were formerly employed in carrying out provisions in expectation of finding a return cargo of fish to Spain, cannot, under present circumstances, undertake similar voyages; and it consequently follows that the planter must obtain his provisions at a higher rate. All vessels sent out to Spain to bring home her produce are now necessarily sent out in ballast, as the Spanish vessels that come to this country obtain whatever cargo is offering for Spain, there being a clear advantage of from 30 to 100 per cent. in the duties in Spain to the shipper. This is a very great hardship to the British shipowner and speculator, who might otherwise clear something on the outward freight.

His Majesty's Government might also insist on some favour in the duties being allowed on British cod-fish over Norway fish, for this country takes off in return nearly the whole of the produce of Spain, while Norway takes nothing; and besides, Spanish barilla, used in bleaching, is favoured in this country, being admitted free, or the drawback on the duty, while Spain actually imposes about 50 per cent. higher duty on Irish linens, bleached with her barilla, than Brabant linens that make use of no barilla. Surely some advantage ought to be insisted upon for Irish linens, instead of their going to the Spanish markets under so glaring a disadvantage.

And your Lordship's Memorialists will ever pray.

Enclosure 1, in No. 15.

Copy of a LETTER from BRITISH MERCHANTS resident in Cadiz to George Villiers, Esq.

Sir, Cadiz, October 18, 1836.

WE, the undersigned British merchants, resident in this city and neighbourhood, have, on numerous occasions since your appointment as Minister to the Court of Madrid, experienced the good effects of that zeal and ability with which you have advocated the rights of British subjects when exposed to injurious and unjust exactions.

In no instance have we felt more decidedly the benefit of your able exertions than on a very recent occasion, when a demand, under the denomination of a "Forced Loan," was about to be made upon us by order of the Spanish Government.

An exaction so injurious from its amount in a pecuniary point of view, so unjust in its principle as regards foreigners, in involving them in dubious results of civil strife, and so prejudicial in its effects as a precedent, had impressed us with serious anxiety and distrust. It was, therefore, with no ordinary feelings of gratification that we learnt your energetic interference had been, for the present, successful in exempting us from the payment of this demand.

Impressed with a high sense of your past laudable exertions in behalf of British interests, and with confidence in the benefits to be expected from their continuance, we beg leave to offer you the expression of our warm and grateful acknowledgments of the energy displayed by you in our behalf, and of the confidence which we feel in the assurance of our interests being intrusted to the care of one so able and so willing to protect them.

We have the honour, &c.

George Villiers, Esq., to BRITISH MERCHANTS at Cadiz.

Gentlemen, Madrid, November 8, 1836.

I HAVE had the honour to receive, through Mr. Consul Brackenbury, your letter dated the 18th ultimo, and at the same time that I return you my sincere thanks for the flattering expressions towards myself which it contains, I beg to assure you that this testimony of your approbation for the partial success which has hitherto attended my exertions in your behalf, is equally a source of satisfaction and encouragement to me.

You must be too well aware of the nature and extent of the difficulties with which I have had to contend, to make it necessary for me to enter upon the causes which, during the last three years, have prevented an extension of the commercial relations between Great Britain and Spain.

The obstacles to any change, however important the benefits that may be expected from it, are always great in Spain, even in the most tranquil times; they are immeasurably increased in a disastrous crisis like the present, when angry passions are excited, and when any act of the Government involving Spanish interests with a foreign power would furnish a formidable weapon to their political opponents.

No Government of this country can, however, refuse to admit that Spain is solemnly pledged to a revision of her treaties with England; and as we seek no exclusive advantages, or any changes but those of which the benefits to Spanish industry and Spanish revenue are not capable of the clearest demonstration, I trust that, with the restoration of tranquillity, the commercial relations between England and Spain may be placed on such a footing, that while it will open new avenues to British enterprise, it will prove the most certain source of prosperity to Spain, and thus tend to cement the political union between two nations whose interests, rightly understood, are perhaps more identical than those of any others in the world.

To this great object the attention of his Majesty's Government has been long and anxiously directed, and no exertion of mine shall be wanting to hasten its accomplishment, or to endeavour in the meanwhile to procure the redress of such grievances as the conduct of the local authorities, or the vagueness of the engagements existing between the two countries, may occasion; and I avail myself of this opportunity for assuring you that it will always be my inclination, as it is my duty, scrupulously to attend to any communication which, collectively or individually, you may think proper to make to me, whether as regards your own immediate interests, or the modes which your knowledge and experience may suggest for ameliorating the relations of this country with our own.

I have, &c.

George Villiers, Esq., to Viscount Palmerston (received January 30, 1837.)

My Lord, Madrid, January 21, 1837.

15 December 1836.

I HAVE the honour to enclose the copy of a note which I addressed to M. Calatrava, upon the subject of the British Vice-Consul at Almeira having been compelled to serve in the national guard.

14 January 1837.

I enclose likewise a translation of the note I have received from his Excellency in reply, which contains an assurance that renewed instructions have been sent by the Minister of the Interior to the local authorities to exempt British subjects from contributing to the forced loan, from serving in the national guards, and from having soldiers quartered in their houses. With respect to this last charge, a circular from the Minister of Interior, of which I enclose the translation, was published in the Madrid Gazette of the 19th instant.

I have, &c.

George Villiers, Esq., to M. Calatrava.

Sir, Madrid, December 15, 1836.

I REGRET to have to trouble your Excellency with a similar application to the one which I had the honour to make to your Excellency on the 23d of November last, respecting the conduct of the Ayuntamiento of Santona, who insisted upon his Britannic Majesty's Vice-Consul at that place serving in the militia of the national guard, in defiance of the Royal Order of 27th July 1835, and to which your Excellency was pleased to attend with the utmost promptitude.

A similar case has occurred in the person of his Britannic Majesty's Vice-Consul at Almeira, with respect to whom I have the honour to request that your Excellency will cause such instructions to be sent as will exempt him from a service inconsistent with his functions, and his character of a British subject.

I have likewise to claim exemption from this service in behalf of other British subjects resident in Almeira, whom the Ayuntamiento of that town, in ignorance of the terms of the treaties existing between the two countries, insist on enrolling in the national militia.

Permit me to take the liberty of suggesting to your Excellency that instructions should be published in some general shape, or forwarded in a circular, to the coast towns in which British Consuls and Vice-Consuls reside, by which the Ayuntamientos of those places should be informed that British subjects are, by treaty, exempted both from military service of every description, and from having military persons billeted upon them; as also to remind the authorities charged with the collection of the forced loan of two hundred millions of the Royal Order issued for the suspending of this impost, which, I regret to say, has also been in some places unattended to, especially at Almeira.

A measure of this nature would supersede the disagreeable necessity I am so frequently under of occupying your Excellency's time with applications on this subject.

I have, &c.

(Translation.) M. Calatrava to George Villiers, Esq.

Sir, Madrid, January 14, 1837.

IN order to comply with the reclamation made in the note which, under date of the 15th of last month, you were pleased to address to me respecting the British Vice-Consul at Almeira having been included in the service of the national militia of that town, and soliciting soliciting at the same time that the exemption from this service should be made extensive to all British subjects residing in Spain, and that the authorities should be reminded of the orders of her Majesty not to include the above-mentioned subjects in the exaction of the loan of 200,000,000 of reals, as also of the stipulations in the treaties by which the said subjects are exempted from the charge of having soldiers quartered in their houses, I have the honour to inform you, with respect to this latter charge and the exaction, that I have made the proper communications to the Secretaries of State of the Interior and of Finance, in order that they may remind the authorities of both the orders and the stipulations, as you desire; requesting the latter, by her Majesty's order, to take the necessary measures, in order that neither the British Vice-Consul at Almeira, nor any other British subjects residing in Spain, be included in the service of the national militia. I therefore hope that you will perceive that your representations on the subject have been attended to.

(Translation.—Circular.) Madrid, January 17, 1837.

Enclosure 3, in No. 16.

The Secretary of State, on the 14th instant, makes the following communication to the Minister of the Interior:—

Her Majesty has been pleased to command, that through the ministry under your Excellency's charge the necessary orders be circulated, in order that the British subjects resident in this kingdom be not included in the charge of having soldiers quartered in their houses, by which means the frequent representations made to this office by his Britannic Majesty's minister on this subject, founded on existing treaties, will be avoided.

I transmit this to you by the same Royal Order communicated by the said Secretary of State for the Home Department for your information and guidance, and in order that it may be circulated to all the Ayuntamientos of this province for its execution.

(Extract.) Madrid, March 25, 1837.

With reference to my despatch of the 12th November 1836, I think it right to enclose to your Lordship copies of letters which I have received from the principal British merchants at Alicant, Tarragona and Valencia, thanking me for my exertions with the Spanish Government in their behalf.

I enclose likewise the copy of a letter upon the same subject from his Majesty's Consul at Bilbao, written in behalf of the British merchants in that city.

Enclosure 1, in No. 17.

Sir, Alicant, October 14, 1836.

We, the undersigned British merchants, resident in Alicant, having experienced the good effects of the great talent and zeal manifested by your Excellency, on all occasions when British interests have been concerned, since your appointment as Minister to the Court of Madrid, we beg to offer you our most cordial thanks for the same, and especially for your late interference with the Spanish Government respecting the present extraordinary contribution, by which we have been relieved from the advance (with possible ultimate loss) of a considerable sum of money, thereby establishing a principle which must prove very beneficial to our countrymen in future.

Those who now subscribe have already suffered severely by the exaction of contributions of this nature, forced from us in violation of existing treaties, and it has remained for your Excellency to point out and demand from the Spanish Government the due observance of our rights as British subjects.

We beg leave to avail ourselves of this opportunity to inform your Excellency that we are still subjected to the inconvenience and expense of having the military billeted upon us, which we understand is not the case in other places in Spain where Englishmen reside.

We have the honour, &c.

Sir, Valencia, October 17, 1837.

WE, the undersigned merchants residing in this city, having experienced the good effects of the talent and zeal displayed by your Excellency upon all occasions when required in support of British interests in this country, beg to offer your Excellency this testimony of our cordial thanks, and especially for your late exertions respecting the extraordinary contribution in which we were included, and steps were actually taken to enforce the payment, in violation of existing treaties. The active applications of our Vice-Consul, J. M. Peyrolon, Esq., produced us temporary relief, but there is no doubt we should have been inevitably obliged to pay this impost, were it not for the efficient measures adopted by your Excellency, which being communicated by her Catholic Majesty's Government to the local authorities, the exaction was suspended. A like firmness in support of British interests by your Excellency's antecessors might have relieved us from considerable inconveniences and sacrifices on former occasions.

We shall always recollect with gratitude that your Excellency was the first to point out and demand from the Spanish Government that English merchants should be exempt from such burthens in conformity with existing treaties; and we now confidently expect, that, by the efficacious intercession of your Excellency, whatever immunities we may be entitled to by the said treaties will be finally adjusted, and kept inviolable in future by her Catholic Majesty's Government.

We have the honour to be, &c.

Many of us have already suffered severely from the exaction of contributions of this nature, which have been forced from us in violation of existing treaties; and it has remained for you, Sir, to point out and demand from the Spanish Government that British subjects should be exempt from such burthens.

Mr. Consul Clark to George Villiers, Esq.

Sir, Bilbao, February 4, 1837.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's circular of the 17th of January, and lost no time in communicating the contents of same to the British residents here, and I feel proud to convey to your Excellency their most sincere and grateful thanks for the very great interest you take in their behalf; and they have also requested me to say, that since your arrival in Spain they have continually witnessed the unexampled exertions you have on all occasions made to enforce the rights to which they are entitled by the existing treaties between the two countries, and they are all well convinced of the multiplicity of difficulties you must have had to encounter in obtaining redress for their many grievances; and they much rejoice that you have so fully succeeded in exempting them from serving in the national militia, from having soldiers quartered in their houses, and from contributing to the new loan of 200,000,000 of reals for, had your Excellency failed in this arduous task, they must have been under the necessity of quitting the country; and they they cannot find words to express to your Excellency their gratitude for the protection you have thus given to their persons, houses and property, in the present critical situation of this unfortunate country. Enclosure 4, in No. 17.

They also beg me to inform your Excellency, that the Spanish merchants here are making an appeal to their Government for Bilbao to be in future a "free port;" and the English have desired me to ask the favour of you to make use of your influence to obtain this very desirable object, as it would be of such essential service to British trade in general, which they so well know you anxiously endeavour to promote on all occasions. Such a measure would in some degree remunerate all parties for the numerous cruel privations they have suffered here since 1833.

I have the honour, &c.

No. 18. George Villiers, Esq. to Viscount Palmerston.

(Extract.) Madrid, May 6, 1837.

I HAVE the honour to inform your Lordship, that I have received officially through His Majesty's Consul at Alicant the copy of a letter from the British merchants of that place to Mr. Renny (a gentleman who some time since travelled in Spain for the purpose of collecting commercial information), in reply to some queries which he had addressed to them.

The merchants of Alicant were invited to state any grounds of complaint they might have against myself; they, however, unanimously agreed to make me acquainted with the proceeding.

Copy of a LETTER from BRITISH MERCHANTS resident in Alicant to Mr. Renny. Enclosure in No. 18.

Dear Sir, Alicant, April 15, 1837.

MR. WHITE and Mr. Satchell have received your kind favour of the 26th ult. viâ Madrid, the contents of which they have communicated to us. That for Mr. Satchell per "Iberia" has not yet come to hand.

In reply we beg to refer to our memorial of 16th March 1836, which we confirm. We are, however, most happy to be enabled to add, that in consequence of the persevering exertions of Mr. Villiers, our present representative at the Court of Madrid, we have been relieved from some of those personal grievances of which we therein complained; viz. exemption from the present loan of two hundred millions, as per Royal Order of 13th January; from billets of the 17th ditto, and from serving in the national guard of 23d ditto 1837; and we are confident, from the zeal so evidently displayed in these instances by Mr. Villiers, that he will continue to afford us that same protection for which we feel ourselves so grateful, unaccustomed as we have been for a series of years to receive satisfaction from any of his predecessors to our numerous remonstrances.

We shall be very happy to express publicly our thanks to the Hon. Bingham Baring, or any other honourable Member, should their interference in favour of a commercial treaty, or other ameliorations in our present condition, be attended with equal success, as we are of opinion that the present Spanish ministers are individually inclined to it; and we have to beg that you will forcibly impress upon Mr. Baring's mind the subject-matter of our said memorial, and further to point out to him the manifest injury to British trade and shipping arising from non-reciprocity.

We are glad to see that M. Zulueta and other Spanish merchants in London have come forward in the same spirit, and hope that the combined efforts of all will ultimately and shortly be productive of the best results.

We have, &c.

Sworn before me at the Mansion-house this 6th day of April 1837.

Gentlemen, 5 April 1837.

I beg leave to state that the length of the Tunnel completed to this day is 736 feet 9 inches, and that, although this is much less than I anticipated, the same causes of delay referred to in my last report, dated January 25th, 1837, have operated with increased effect in retarding the progress; the runs of sand, disruptions of the ground and settlement of the bed of the river having required every exertion to continue the advance of the shield. I have therefore, at intervals, discontinued the excavation, in order to allow time for the consolidation of the disturbed ground in front, and the settlement of the covering which is now being extended towards the north shore; and having made a still more considerable reduction in the establishment, I have employed the remainder of the men, not engaged in the shield, in executing those works which, though not essential to the progress, must nevertheless have been done before the Tunnel could be completed.

I must here observe that the same causes, viz., the saturation of the ground by excessive land floods, which have produced such delay in the progress of the Tunnel, have been attended by serious inconvenience in other public works; but that, as the season advances, these causes will subside; and as I am still enabled to advance the shield, under all the difficulties which it has had to contend with, I may express my increased confidence in the power of the means employed for effecting the ultimate completion of the work.

I have also in contemplation a plan for giving employment to the men during those intervals when it may be desirable to suspend operations at the shield, which will contribute essentially towards the advancement of the undertaking.

I have, &c.

I, Marc Isambard Brunel, do swear that the information conveyed in the foregoing report is true, to the best of my judgment and belief.

Sir, Great George-street, 22 April 1837.

In compliance with the request contained in Mr. Spearman's letters to the Commissioners for the Loan of Exchequer Bills, dated Treasury Chambers, 20th January and 4th April 1837, I have again surveyed the Thames Tunnel, have had meetings with the engineers and other officers of the Company, and have now to report upon the state, progress and future prospects of the works carrying on by the Thames Tunnel Company, and the probability that such works may be completed for the amount of the sum estimated.

From the time of my former survey, in June 1836, up to the 25th February 1837, being a period of 34 weeks, 86½ feet in length of the Tunnel had been done in apparently a substantial manner: this is at the rate of two feet and a half per week.

The expenditure during the above period was 34,621 l. 6*s.* 6*d.*, of which 2,800 l. was the balance of the contract for the new shield, leaving the expense of the above length 31,821 l. 6*s.* 6*d., which is very nearly 368*l.* per foot for the work done from June 1836 up to 25th February 1837.

On the 27th February last a sinking took place in the bed of the river, owing to a run of silth into the Tunnel. This was not, as in former cases, accompanied by an increase of water, which is so far favourable; but the ground in front of the upper divisions of the shield being gravelly and loose, very great caution has since been necessary, and has been adopted. The length done during the last seven weeks weeks has thus been only about 3 feet 6 inches, and the expenditure in the same time has been nearly 3,300*l.; but a considerable part of this has been spent in throwing clay and gravel into the river, to supply the place of what had run in, in clearing the silth and sand out of the Tunnel, and in forming the culvert; so that for two weeks no attempt to advance was made. About a week since another but smaller run of silth took place, proving the necessity of the great care and caution yet required, although the engineers consider that the ground has somewhat improved and the water lessened during the last three weeks.

* The amount expended out of the Treasury grant previous to this was 29,518 l. 11*s.* 3*d.*, making a total of 61,339 l. 17*s.* 9*d.* since the works were resumed in January 1835.

The above lengths have been in the deepest and I hope worst part of the river; but the strata cannot safely be calculated as much improving (when compared with the average of the last 90 feet) until the bed of the river begins to rise, which is a distance of only about 132 feet, and to this point the bed is nearly level; thence to low water is 103 feet, and from low water to the shaft at Wapping is 325 feet, making the length to be done to the shaft 560 feet; the length done from the Rotherhithe shaft is 725 feet.

Calculating from the above data, and presuming that the very bad ground which is met with at present will not continue to such a length as to require much more addition to the recent extraordinary outlay, together with an allowance for the reductions that may be fairly expected after the first 132 feet are done, I think the amount required to complete the Tunnel should not be estimated under 140,000*l.*, nor the time under two years and a half.

The opinion expressed in my report to you, dated 1st July 1836, of Mr. Brunel's admirable shield, and the probability that the Tunnel might, by continued patience and perseverance, be completed by means of it, remains unchanged, notwithstanding the formidable difficulties to be contended with; but the qualities of patience and perseverance are necessary, for the work must not be hurried, time for consolidation being an essential element for success.

The shafts for the descents, the roads of approach, and the purchases, may be considered distinctly from the Tunnel, because, as I stated in my report above referred to, the Tunnel, if once completed under the river, is not likely to be left without the means of entering it.

Mr. Brunel has furnished me with some general drawings and his estimates for the shafts. Having considered these, my opinion is, that a sum of at least 170,000 l. (including the purchases of premises,) will be required for them and contingent works, making, with the 140,000*l.* already stated, the sum of 310,000 l.; and this, added to the 64,600*l.* already expended, makes a total of 374,600 l. Should the ground improve soon, with less water, the sum may be found in excess; if otherwise, the reverse. Experience has proved that a liberal allowance should be made to any estimate of so difficult a work. The estimate stated in Lord Althorp's letter to the Duke of Wellington (dated 8th April 1829), was 300,000 l., which included an addition to Mr. Brunel's estimate.

I think that not less than two years after the completion of the Tunnel should be allowed for the formation of the shafts and approaches.

I am, &c.

J. S. Brickwood, Esq. (signed) James Walker.

Copy of a TREASURY MINUTE, dated 2d May 1837.

My Lords have before them the application of the Directors of the Thames Tunnel Company, addressed on the 5th April to the Commissioners for the Loan of Exchequer Bills, in which after transmitting a statement of the expenditure of the Company up to that date, and an account of their liabilities, they request that a further advance may be made to them in Exchequer bills.

The Directors at the same time enclosed a report from the chief engineer showing the total progress made in the Thames Tunnel, and its present state generally.

My Lords have also before them the report dated 22d April, which has been made by Mr. Walker, civil engineer, upon the state, progress and future prospects of

---

of the works carrying on by the Thames Tunnel Company, and the probability that such works may be completed for the amount of the sum estimated, a report which has been prepared in consequence of the directions given by my Lords in their Minute of 20th January last, to the Commissioners for the Loan of Exchequer Bills, that before any further applications from the Thames Tunnel Company were transmitted to this Board, Mr. Walker should be requested again to report upon the work, and upon the progress made, accompanying such report by any observations which he might think deserving their Lordships' consideration.

In this report Mr. Walker states that the opinion expressed by him in his report of 1st July 1836, of Mr. Brunel's admirable shield, and the probability that the Tunnel might, by continued patience and perseverence, be completed by means of it, remains unchanged, notwithstanding the formidable difficulties to be contended with; but the qualities of patience and perseverance are necessary, for the work must not be hurried, time for consolidation being an essential element for success.

With respect to the probable expense of completing the Tunnel, Mr. Walker states that, calculating from the data set forth in his report, and presuming that the very bad ground which is met with at present will not continue to such a length as to require much more addition to the recent extraordinary outlay, together with an allowance for the reductions that may be fairly expected after the first 132 feet are done, he thinks the amount required to complete the Tunnel should not be estimated under 140,000*l.*, nor the time under two years and a half.

Upon the subject of the shafts for the descents, the roads of approach, and the necessary expense of the purchases which would be required, Mr. Walker observes that, having considered some general drawings furnished to him by Mr. Brunel, and his estimates for the shafts, he is of opinion that at least 170,000*l.* will be required for them and the contingent works, making, with the 64,600*l.* already expended, a total of 374,600*l.*; adding that, should the ground improve soon with less water, this estimate may be found an excess; if otherwise, the reverse.

My Lords advert to the several Acts by which the Directors of the Thames Tunnel Company were empowered to raise funds for this undertaking, and refer especially to the Act by which the Commissioners for the Loan of Exchequer Bills were authorized and required, on directions from this Board, to make advances from time to time to the extent, in the whole, of 270,000*l.*, it having been anticipated that that amount, in addition to the sum raised by the Company under the previous Acts, viz. 180,000*l.*, would be amply sufficient to complete the whole of the undertaking. My Lords have up to the present time advanced 65,000*l.* on account of the 270,000*l.* authorized by the Act referred to, so that the sum which may yet be issued is 205,000*l.*

It appears, however, from the statement and report furnished by Mr. Walker, that to complete this work, the sum required will probably amount to 310,000*l.*, or 105,000*l.* beyond the amount of the last estimate framed in the year 1833, after an experience of nine years from the commencement of the work; while it would evidently be unsafe to consider even that sum as sufficient for the purpose, even supposing there existed any authority for issuing any part of the 105,000*l.*

Under these circumstances, my Lords feel called upon to bring the subject under the consideration of Parliament, and can in the meantime make such advances only as may be absolutely necessary to carry on the current expenditure.

They, therefore, desire that a copy of Mr. Walker's report may be immediately transmitted to the Directors of the Company, that their serious attention may be called to the excess of expenditure which it appears will be required for the completion of the work, beyond the amount sanctioned by this Board or by Parliament, and that they may be informed of the view taken by my Lords upon the subject, in order that before my Lords lay the papers before Parliament, they may have an opportunity of furnishing this Board with any observations which may occur to them thereon.

Write to the Directors of the Thames Tunnel Company accordingly.

Transmit copy of this Minute to the Commissioners for the issue of Exchequer Bills, for their information.

Sir, Thames Tunnel Office, Walbrook-buildings, 10 May 1837.

I AM desired by the Directors of the Thames Tunnel Company to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated the 3d instant, transmitting by command of the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, a copy of a further report, which Mr. Walker had been called upon to make, relative to the progress and future prospects of the works now carrying on by this Company; and at the same time, calling the serious attention of the Directors to the excess of expenditure, which it appears will be required for the completion of the work, beyond the amount sanctioned by the Treasury or by Parliament; and in reply thereto, I have the honour of submitting, for the information of their Lordships, the following observations which have occurred to the Board of Directors on the perusal of the before-mentioned report, and which may be divided under three heads; viz.

Rate of Progress, Excess of Expenditure, and the Estimate for the Remainder of the Work.

First. With regard to the Rate of Progress, it is essential to be remembered that the spot at which the works were recommenced, after their stoppage in 1828, was that at which the greatest difficulties were to be apprehended, both from the depth of the river and the known state of the soil. The progress was expected to be slow, difficult and expensive; and in every report of the Directors to the proprietors, this has been particularly insisted upon, in order to guard against undue expectations. These difficulties have been augmented by the unusual quantity of rain which fell during the last autumn and winter; and which has compelled the engineer to resort to expedients which (though contemplated in the plan proposed by him on the resumption of the works) had been in a great degree abandoned from the progress made during the earlier part of the work. The rate of progress therefore having gradually lessened from the natural difficulties opposed to the work, has induced the engineer to again revive the plan first contemplated, but on a more extensive scale, yet at the same time with greater pecuniary advantage to the undertaking. The obstructions to an improved rate of progress have mainly arisen from the excessive influx of water, an impediment which the engineer, as will be stated hereafter, has suggested a plan, in the opinion of the Directors, well calculated to overcome.

Secondly. As to the Excess of Expenditure. A slow rate of progress, from the causes alluded to, has necessarily increased the cost of that part of the work effected since its recommencement; and must lead, the Directors are ready to admit, if no alteration of plan were attainable, to a serious excess of expenditure over the estimate. To this subject the Board have for some weeks past been devoting their anxious attention, as a reference to their Minutes would show. The first question they had to solve was this: what was the cause of the recent falling off in the rate advance? This they ascertained to arise, as has been stated, from the influx of water chiefly, and which, in the opinion of their engineer, was the great cause of the difficulties experienced, both in reference to delay and expense; and they also ascertained that the further the Tunnel advanced under the deeper part of the river, and in ground occasionally disturbed, that the influx of water was to be considered as an increasing evil, because the ordinary mode of contending with it, by means of pumping, becomes less efficacious, from the vast quantities of sand mixed with the water, which choked both the culverts and pumps.

The next question to answer was, whether it were in the power of the engineer to suggest an effectual remedy for this new state of things? The engineer originally proposed a pumping-well and drain on the north side of the river; and which for the reason assigned, viz., the successful progress of the work, had been set aside. The Board, however, being alarmed at the cost of the work, took into consideration a temporary suspension of the works (as per Minute, dated 29th March last), in order to bring under the notice of the Lords of the Treasury, the propriety of removing the restriction contained in their Minute dated 10th October 1834. In a report on this subject, the engineer has given it as his opinion, that under present circumstances, no mode presented itself to his mind so effectual and so economical to overcome the difficulties as the formation of the small shaft on the north side (marked A on the annexed Plan), in order, by means of it, to obtain a low level for the water to flow into which now obstructs the works, and to enable the excavation to be carried on without interruption, a practice universally adopted in all mining operations.

This

This plan involves a deviation from the condition of the Treasury Minute before referred to, and therefore the sanction of their Lordships becomes necessary It was to this scheme of future proceeding that the engineer particularly alluded, in his report, dated the 5th ultimo, which was forwarded by the Directors to the Exchequer Bill Loan Commissioners. The plan appears to the Board to present these advantages; viz. that the rate of progress would become more uniform, and therefore less expensive, by providing an ample drainage for the water, and it is therefore, in the opinion of the Board, calculated to overcome one great cause, both of the slow rate of progress, and of the consequent excess of expenditure.

The future progress of the work, however, would yet be expensive, and an excess over the estimate still probable, were the alteration of the future plan of conducting it to stop here.

The Directors are clearly of opinion that one further cause of the extra cost of the work over the estimate has arisen from this circumstance, viz., that whenever it has been deemed prudent to stop the excavation, the Company has been obliged to retain the miners employed by them, owing to the difficulty of re-assembling them if discharged, and consequently have stood at the same weekly expenditure. The complement of men and all incidental expenses have been nearly the same, whether the works progress or stand still; and it has not been in the power of the Directors to prevent this, from the necessity which the peculiar nature of the work imposes on them, of being always in a condition to seize every favourable opportunity of advancing.

It has also now become necessary, more frequently than formerly, from the state of the land springs, to suspend the excavation, in order whenever the ground is disturbed to give it time to consolidate; and to allow the covering of sand and gravel of the bed of the river, which is constantly over and in advance of the work, to settle down. This necessity the Directors repeat has rendered the work equally costly whether stationary or in progress.

This source of expense the engineer proposes to avoid by the adoption of the following plan: considering it of great importance to maintain a working establishment at all times, in order that no opportunity in making progress may be lost, it has been suggested that, so long as it is expedient to submit to temporary suspensions of the works (which will be frequently the case whilst the excavation is being carried on under the race of the river), there should be provided for the men some other occupation, connected with the works. This the engineer proposes to accomplish by employing the men, while the excavation is suspended, in commencing the great descent on the Surrey side (marked B in the annexed Plan), where the property required is already purchased, and by which means the greatest economy of time, labour and money will be attainable. Thus, instead of being subject to frequent stoppages, attended with great expense, some part of the work will always be in progress; because employment for the men above ground can be commanded, and will be constant, during the time which will elapse, before the excavation reaches low water-mark on the Wapping shore.

By thus removing the impediments to progress, and at the same time always providing for the full employment of the establishment, it is the opinion of the Directors that there will not be any serious excess of expenditure over the amount which has been sanctioned by Parliament.

The Directors, in conclusion, deem it their duty to state, that they have always afforded Mr. Walker every information in their power, and given him full access to every document he desired as well as to the works; and they cannot but acknowledge the courtesy which they have uniformly experienced from him, and the perfect fairness of his very able report, in respect of which they have made the preceding observations.

Copy of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 26th May 1837.

My Lords resume the consideration of the report of the Commissioners for the Loan of Exchequer Bills, dated 22d April last, enclosing an application from the Thames Tunnel Company for a further advance of Exchequer bills, accompanied by a statement of the expenditure, and of the progress of the works, together with a report from Mr. Walker, civil engineer, as to the future prospects of the undertaking, and the probability of the completion of the work for the sum estimated in the year 1833; from which it appears that the sum required to complete this work will probably amount to 310,000*l.*, which with the sum of 64,600*l.* already advanced under the authority of the several Acts of Parliament on this subject, will make up a total amount of 374,600*l.*, being an excess of 104,600*l.* beyond the amount of the last estimate framed in the year 1833.

My Lords read also their Minute of the 2d May instant, directing that a copy of Mr. Walker's report should be transmitted to the Thames Tunnel Company, for such observations as they might have to offer thereon, previous to laying the subject before Parliament.

My Lords have now before them the observations of the Thames Tunnel Company on the report of Mr. Walker, wherein they state that the slow progress of the work, and the excess of expenditure, is occasioned by the nature of the soil through which they are excavating, which renders it necessary that the works should be frequently suspended, and that they are obliged to retain the workmen during the periods of suspension of operations, in consequence of the necessity of taking immediate advantage of any settlement of the soil in the bed of the river, their expenses are therefore nearly the same, whether working or not. In order to overcome the present difficulties, and at the same time to give constant employment to their workmen, the engineer of the Company proposes to sink a smaller shaft on the Wapping side of the river, for the purpose of obtaining a lower level for the drainage of the water, which now flows into the present excavation in considerable quantity (a practice which is stated to be generally adopted in mining operations): this proposition involves a deviation from the course laid down by their Lordships' Minute of 10th October 1834, and they, therefore, request the sanction of this Board to enable them to carry this scheme into effect. They also propose that while the excavations in the Tunnel may be suspended, they should be authorized to employ the men in commencing the great descent on the Surrey side, marked B. in the plan annexed to their report; and by thus providing for the full employment of the establishment, the Directors of the Company trust that there will not be any serious excess of expenditure beyond the amount which has been sanctioned by Parliament.

Let copies of the letter from the Commissioners for the Loan of Exchequer Bills, of the report of Mr. Walker, with their Lordships' Minute of the 2d instant, of the observations of the Directors of the Thames Tunnel Company, and of this Minute, be laid before the House of Commons.

TRIGONOMETRICAL SURVEY OF SCOTLAND.

RETURN to an ORDER of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 12 June 1837;—for,

COPIES of the MEMORIALS addressed to the Government from different Bodies in Scotland, on the subject of the State of the TRIGONOMETRICAL SURVEY of that Country, and of the Correspondence which ensued in consequence thereof.

Whitehall, Treasury Chambers,

UNTO the Right Hon. the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury.

The humble Memorial of the President and Members of the Wernerian Natural History Society of Edinburgh,

Showeth,

THAT while your Memorialists view with the utmost satisfaction the progress which has been made in the noble Ordnance surveys of England and Ireland, and are fully alive to the immense advantages which those parts of the empire are deriving from the admirable trigonometrical operations by which their physical geography has been defined, your Memorialists beg leave humbly and most respectfully to urge upon your Lordships' attention the very defective state of the best existing maps and charts of Scotland, and to suggest to your Lordships the propriety of directing the resumption of the triangulation and completion of the trigonometrical survey of Scotland, which has been so long and unaccountably suspended after it had been auspiciously commenced.

The errors in Arrowsmith's Map of Scotland, which has the reputation of being the best we possess, are so numerous and important, as to render the construction of a geological map of the country on which dependence can be placed an impracticable undertaking; while its erroneous positions of our coasts and islands present the most formidable obstacles to navigation. The form and position of headlands, and even of considerable islands, in this map and in our best charts, are erroneously given; and sometimes dangerous rocks and whole islands are totally omitted. For example, your Memorialists beg leave to call your Lordships' attention to the following facts: The distant rocks of the Stack and the Skerry, off the northern coast of Sutherlandshire, as well as the island of St. Kilda, are totally omitted in Arrowsmith's map, while the important islands of Barra and Rona are misplaced, both in latitude and longitude. In some charts the large island of Arran is laid down as six miles from Bute, in others as nine miles, and in a third as twelve miles distant from that island. Pladda Island Light, in charts, is placed at 16′ N. of Ailsa Craig, whereas its true distance is only 10′ 20″. These last are serious errors at the entrance of so important a river as the Clyde.

Some years ago Dr. MacCulloch was employed, at the public expense, to make a geological survey of Scotland, a circumstance utterly unknown to any public body in Scotland, until the Parliamentary Paper showed that he had drawn from the Treasury upwards of 7,000*l.* for that service. But the only fruit of this expenditure is the publication of his posthumous geological map, on which, unfortunately, little reliance can be placed for local details, as a trigonometrical survey should have preceded any attempt to represent the position of the rocks and mineral productions by a coloured map. Of this truth Dr. MacCulloch appears to have become sensible when he advanced the imperfection of our best maps as an excuse for his delay in preparing the materials he had collected.

Your Memorialists do not consider it necessary to enter into any detailed observations on this occasion on the numerous and important advantages which must result to navigation, commerce and agriculture, or the scientific interest which would arise from the completion of the trigonometrical survey of Scotland, as your Memorialists have no doubt that these are obvious to your Lordships; and they have the fullest confidence in the desire of His Majesty's Government to extend the benefits of accurate geographical knowledge to all parts of His Majesty's dominions.

Signed, in the name of the Society,

University, Edinburgh, 5 May 1837.

Robert Jameson, President.

Sir, Office of Ordnance, 22 May 1837.

In reply to your letter of the 12th instant, forwarding a Memorial of the Wernerian Natural History Society of Edinburgh, on the subject of the trigonometrical survey of Scotland, I am directed by the Master-general to transmit to you, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, a copy of a report from Col. Colby, to whom that Memorial had been referred.

I have, &c.,

A. Y. Spearman, Esq., &c. &c. (signed) C. R. Fox.

Sir, Ordnance Map Office, Tower, 16 May 1837.

In obedience to the Master-general's order of the 15th instant, I have the honour to report on the Memorial of the president and members of the Wernerian Natural History Society of Edinburgh, forwarded by the Lords of the Treasury in their letter of the 12th instant.

The suspension of the trigonometrical survey of Scotland arose from the urgent demand for the townland survey of Ireland. The principal triangulation preparatory to the townland survey could only be performed at its commencement by officers who had been trained, and instruments which had been used in the survey of Great Britain. The funds annually granted were not more than adequate to the unavoidable expenses of carrying on the Irish and English surveys; and a partial resumption of the Scottish survey, without a separate grant for the purpose, would have retarded the other surveys, without producing a countervailing advantage to Scotland.

I believe the Memorialists are perfectly correct in their statements of the inaccuracy of the existing maps and charts of Scotland, but in respect to the navigation of the Clyde, the Memorial of the provost and magistrates of Greenock has been under consideration since the 22d September last; and Captain Henderson of the Royal Engineers will be ready to proceed with the trigonometrical survey of the coasts surrounding the Firth of Clyde this summer, if the Lords of the Treasury are pleased to grant the requisite funds and orders.

In regard to the general survey of Scotland, which appears to me to be the principal object of the Memorialists, I beg to observe that I should propose, if funds can be granted for the purpose, to recommence the principal triangulation on the north-west of Scotland next summer; but for that purpose I shall require timely notice, that I may train one or two officers this year. This part of the operation will not cost more than from 800 l. to 1,000 l. per annum.

But I should not propose, at present, to organize any separate establishment, for filling up the interior of the triangles, by the survey of roads, &c. At least three years would be required to form and train such an establishment, before it would become sufficiently effective to proceed with any valuable degree of rapidity, and in three years from the present time, if sufficient funds are allowed, an equal, if not a greater force may be spared, without the cost of training, from the survey of Ireland.

It is, however, highly important that the gentlemen of Scotland should thoroughly consider what kind of survey will be most beneficial to their country, that no time may be lost, and no unnecessary expense incurred after the survey has has commenced, whether they wish to have a survey for territorial and general purposes, like the survey of England and Wales.

When the exact nature of the survey required is known, proper means may be devised for its execution, and its probable cost may be estimated.

(signed) Thomas Colby, Colonel Royal Engineers.

To the Inspector-general of Fortifications.

UNTO the Right Hon. the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury.

The humble Memorial of the Lord Provost, Magistrates and Council of the City of Edinburgh,

Showeth,

That while your Memorialists view with great satisfaction the progress which has been made in the Ordnance surveys of England and Ireland, and are fully alive to the vast advantages which those parts of the empire are already deriving from the admirable trigonometrical operations by which their physical geography has been defined, your Memorialists beg leave most respectfully to urge upon your Lordships' attention the very defective state of the existing maps and charts of Scotland, and to suggest to your Lordships the propriety of directing the immediate resumption of the triangulation and speedy completion of the trigonometrical survey of Scotland, which has been so long suspended after it had been auspiciously commenced.

The form and position of headlands, and even of considerable islands, not only in Arrowsmith's map, but in our best charts, are erroneously given, and sometimes dangerous rocks are totally omitted. For example: the distant rocks of the Stack and the Skerry, off the northern coast of Sutherlandshire, are left out by Arrowsmith, while the important islands of Barra and Rona are misplaced, both in latitude and longitude. In some books and charts the nearest distance of the large island of Arran is stated or laid down as four miles from Bute, and in others as nine miles from that island. Pladda Island Light is placed as 16′ N. of Ailsa Craig, whereas its true distance is only 10′ 20″. These last are very serious errors at the entrance of so important a river as the Clyde; and the Memorialists would scarcely have believed their existence possible at this day had not the astounding truth been communicated by Mr. Galbraith, an eminent mathematician of this city, as the result of careful observations made during his residence in Arran last summer.

Your Memorialists are informed, that of the great triangulation of Scotland, by which the positions of the principal objects are ascertained, the greater part was executed nearly 20 years ago, though the results have not yet been published, and that the remaining part can be soon accomplished at a small expense.

The completion of this triangulation and its publication would confer great advantages on commerce, geography, navigation and science generally. While your Memorialists are desirous that this portion of the operations should forthwith be brought to a termination, they submit to your Lordships that the proper measures should be speedily taken for having the general survey of Scotland proceeded with, and maps formed and published on a suitable scale, so that Scotland may be placed on the same footing as the other parts of the British islands.

May it therefore please your Lordships to give directions for the immediate resumption of the triangulation, and for the speedy completion of the trigonometrical survey of Scotland.

Signed, in the name and by appointment of the Magistrates and Council,

Thomas Sams,

Edinburgh, 30 May 1837. Preses and Acting Chief Magistrate.

UNTO the Right Hon. the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury.

The humble Petition of the President and Fellows of the Royal Society of Edinburgh.

The Petitioners beg leave most respectfully and earnestly to urge upon your Lordships the propriety of directions being given in the proper quarter for resuming and completing the trigonometrical survey of Scotland.

The existing maps of the country are most incorrect and inadequate to the wants of modern science, whilst the very circumstance of an accurate survey having been begun by Government precludes all chance of a new one being undertaken in any other quarter.

The Petitioners do not deem it necessary to enter into any details respecting the numerous geographical errors which characterize the best existing maps of Scotland, as many of them have already been pointed out by Dr. MacCulloch and others, who have surveyed the country, nor to dwell on the advantages which commerce, agriculture and science must derive from the completion of the survey, because they are well assured that their importance cannot fail to be appreciated by your Lordships.

Copy of TREASURY MINUTE of the 13th June 1837 on the subject of the annexed Papers.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer informs the Board that he has communicated with Sir Hussey Vivian with a view of ascertaining whether the resumption of the great triangulation of Scotland would interfere with the progress of the Ordnance surveys in England and Ireland, and what would be the expenses attendant on that step.

Mr. Spring Rice also lays before my Lords a copy of Colonel Colby's report on the subject transmitted to him by the Master-general, and observes to their Lordships that though Colonel Colby does not recommend that this triangulation should be recommenced at the present advanced season of the year, he thinks it advisable that preparations should be made for resuming it in the year 1838, and that he also estimates the expenses of making the preparatory arrangements at between 200 l. and 300 l., and that, for the continuance of the triangulation, not to exceed 1,000 l. per annum.

Write to the Secretary of the Ordnance, acquainting him, for the information of the Master-general and Board, that my Lords are pleased to sanction the recommencement of the triangulation, under these representations, and requesting him to move the Master-general and Board to give the directions necessary for carrying the measure into effect in the manner adverted to in this Minute.

Forwarded to the Master-general, in compliance with his Minute of the 1st inst. to Col. Colby.

This relates to the same object as was reported upon by Col. Colby on the 16th ult., and forwarded by my Minute of the 18th.

It is right I should apprize the Master-general that the general triangulation and survey of Scotland forms no part of any estimate recognised by Parliament.

6 June 1837. Fk. Wm. M.

Sir, Ordnance Map Office, Tower, 2 June 1837.

In obedience to the Master-general's reference of yesterday's date, on a letter from the Chancellor of the Exchequer, relating to the Memorial from the Royal Society of Edinburgh, which is herewith returned, I have the honour to report my opinion that it would not be expedient at the advanced season of the present year to recommence the principal triangulation of Scotland; but that no delay whatever would arise in either the English or the Irish surveys if the trigonometrical survey of Scotland were resumed in the year 1838.

Provided I receive the requisite orders to enable me to make the necessary preparatory arrangements during the present summer, the expense of making the preparatory arrangements this year would not exceed 200 l. or 300 l., and the expense of carrying on the trigonometrical survey for the principal triangulation of Scotland would afterwards be from 800 l. to 1,000 l. per annum.

I have, &c.,

The Inspector-general of Fortifications,

Sir, Office of Ordnance, 23 June 1837.

HAVING submitted to the Master-general and Board of Ordnance your letter, dated 13th instant, referring to a representation which the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury have received from the Royal Society of Edinburgh, of the advantages which would be derived from the resumption and completion of the trigonometrical survey of Scotland, and also to a report from Col. Colby on the subject, by which it appears that he does not think it advisable that the triangulation should be recommenced at the present advanced season of the year, but proposes that preparations should be made for resuming it in the year 1838, the expenses of which preparations he estimates at between 200*l.* and 300*l.*, and the continuance of the triangulation not to exceed 1,000*l.* per annum, and communicating their Lordships' sanction to the recommencement of the triangulation under these representations,

I have the honour to acquaint you the Master-general and Board have given the necessary directions for carrying the measure into effect in the manner proposed by Colonel Colby, as desired by the Lords Commissioners.

And, lastly, We do hereby, for Us, Our Heirs and Successors, grant and declare, that these Our Letters Patent, or the enrolment or exemplification thereof, shall be in and by all things valid and effectual in Law, according to the true intent and meaning of the same, and shall be construed and adjudged in the most favourable and beneficial sense for the best advantage of the said University, as well in all Our Courts as elsewhere, notwithstanding any non-recital, mis-recital, uncertainty or imperfection in these Our Letters Patent. In witness whereof, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent.
